Biographical Sketch

Gerald E. "Jerry" Talbot was born in 1932 in Bangor, ME, which at the time was home to Maine's largest African American community, many people having come to the state from Canada. His family traced their history in Maine back to the mid-18th century and the black Revolutionary War veteran Abraham Talbett. Talbot worked for some time with his father, W. Edgerton "Edgar" Talbot, the head chef at the Bangor House hotel, and graduated from Bangor High School in 1952. After serving in the army from 1953 to 1956, he moved to Portland and wed Anita Cummings of Portland, with whom he raised four daughters. The family faced job and housing discrimination, but Talbot eventually secured steady work in 1966 as a compositor with the Guy Gannett Publishing Company, where he would work for 25 years.

In Portland, Talbot also became actively involved with the civil rights movement in Maine, particularly through the NAACP. He served as president of the Portland branch of this organization three times, in 1964-66, 1970-71, and 1978-80, and was a vice president of the New England Regional NAACP. He joined the "March for Jobs and Freedom" in Washington, D.C. in 1963, participated in a voter registration drive in Mississippi in 1965, and played an important role in passing Maine's 1966 "Fair Housing Bill." He was the first African American elected to the Maine State Legislature, serving three terms from 1972 to 1978. During his time there, he proposed a 1977 bill titled, "An Act to Prohibit the Use of Offensive Names for Geographic Features and Other Places in the State of Maine," which passed. He also co-sponsored, with the late Larry Connolly, the first "Sexual or Affectional Preference" (1977) amendment to the Maine Human Rights Act. He was the first black chair of a legislative committee – the Human Resources Committee (two terms) – and was the first black speaker pro-tem of the Maine House of Representatives.

Talbot also served on the Maine State Board of Education from 1980-84, as chair in 1984. Simultaneously, he was on the New England States Board of Education Commission. He has been on the Maine Vocational Technical Institute's Board of Trustees and the Muskie Board of Visitors at the University of Southern Maine. In 1980, he founded Black Education and Cultural History, Inc. (BEACH), which sponsors conferences, offers scholarships, and serves as a vehicle for speaking out against discrimination. Talbot is co-author with H.H. Price of several articles and the book, Maine's Visible Black History: The First Chronicle of Its People, published in 2006.

Throughout his life, Talbot collected documents, books, photographs, and objects with significance to the African American community, both in Maine and beyond. These materials documenting black history, heritage, and culture, were exhibited often throughout Maine, including at the State House. In 1995, in order to ensure that the materials would be forever accessible to the public for educational purposes, Talbot donated his collection to the Special Collections of the University of Southern Maine, where it serves as the backbone of the African American Collection of the Jean Byers Sampson Center for Diversity in Maine.

Information for this biographical sketch was compiled from Maine's Visible Black History: The First Chronicle of Its People and was supplemented with further details found at: <http://www.portlanddems.org/talbot.htm>. A full resume can also be found in the collection file.

Collection Description

The Talbot Collection is a collection of materials, many pertaining to the African American experience, gathered by Gerald E. Talbot in the course of his life. It is divided into five series containing like materials: Papers, Posters, Objects, Photographs, and Serials.

The Papers Series contains Talbot's personal and professional papers, including papers from his service in the Maine Legislature, as well as materials gathered by him. The Papers have begun to be processed, and are housed in 38 boxes. Subseries will be added to the finding as completed. Books were part of the donation, 532 titles, and are being cataloged into the African American Collection of Maine's book collection. They may be found in the Libraries' online catalog by searching Talbot's name as author.

In the Paper Series, The NAACP files are made up mostly of materials relating to the Portland Branch, from its inauguration in 1964 and spanning the next thirty years. From its inception, the Portland Branch was an influential proponent of civil rights. So much so that within three years of its founding, the Portland Branch was host to the entire New England Conference of Branches convention. The Portland Branch was involved directly with a number of legal cases, and specifically with the state of the prison system in Maine. They threw a number of events and annual Martin Luther King Day celebrations. Key synopses of the NAACP contribution in Portland can be found in the 20 year special edition publication materials and the interview Talbot engaged in with Charles L. Lumpkins of University of Maine, Orono.

The rest of the NAACP collection contains specific branch materials from Bangor, and a number of other branches around the country with whom Talbot had a connection. Rich historical information on the NAACP's engagement with various civil rights issues can be found in the Maine Committee on Indian Affairs and the Maine Human Rights Commission files where Talbot was a member of both. This collection also includes materials from the National organization of the NAACP dating back to 1955. It provides researchers some of the cultural context through which the smaller branch organizations operated and also a connection to some of Talbot's travels around the country for various national conventions.

The Posters Series consists of posters and other graphic formats documenting African American history and culture. The material has been organized into five topical groups: University of Southern Maine (USM), Made by Talbot, Events/Information, Politics, People/Groups. In deciding where to place a poster, the order of the groups is the order of preference, thus the fact that the poster had to do with USM would take precedence over Made by Talbot, which takes precedence over Events/Information, and so on. Within the groups, material has been arranged in chronological order, oldest to newest, with undated material at the end. The posters take up 21 mapcase drawers.

The Objects Series contains artifacts pertaining to Africa, African America, and America in general. The artifacts range from wooden, cast iron, ceramic, and beaded items, to a framed original KKK charter and paper reproductions. Many items in this series were given to Talbot by family and friends. The objects are housed in 13 boxes (some irregular) and 9 oversize drawers.

The Photographs Series covers a wide range of subjects, from family studio portraits of the 1800s and more informal snapshots from the 1960s and 1970s, to civil rights marches and Miss Black Teenage Maine Pageant contestants. Many of the photographs came from the Portland Press Herald. There are 512 photographs, 11 glass plate negatives, and copy negatives in 9 boxes and two mapcase drawers.

The Serials Series consists of incomplete runs of 7 magazine titles primarily of interest to African Americans. The titles include Ebony (1956-1995), Jet (1968-1993), Essence (1992-1995), The Crisis (1974-1995), Black Enterprise (1978-1995), Emerge (1990-1991), and Black ethnic collectibles (1987-1989). The Collection does not include all issues within the date ranges. They are housed in 26 boxes.

Series 5 Serials (1956-1995)

This Series consists of incomplete runs of 7 serial titles. The Collection does not include all issues within the date ranges.

Ebony magazine is a major publication that caters to African American middle-class consumers in a format similar to Life magazine, its contemporary.

Jet magazine was founded in 1951 as a “Weekly Negro News Magazine.” It is still published, in a format with more than news.

Essence magazine focuses on issues important to African-American women, featuring stories on health, career development, fashion, parenting, and social issues, along with lifestyle articles written by and for Black women.

The Crisis magazine, founded/edited in 1910 by W.E.B. DuBois as a crusading voice for civil rights, paved the way for later magazines such as Ebony and Jet. An official publication of the NAACP, The Crisis magazine continues to examine critical issues confronting African Americans, the broader American society, and the world.

Black Enterprise magazine focuses on business and economic topics for and about African Americans, providing news and commentary on money management, personal finance, business management, professional and managerial issues, and updates on industry trends. According to business critics Karen M. Rowley and David D. Kurpius, Black Enterprise's focus on the Black business community provides an alternative view of society to that given by the two mainstream business publications, Forbes and Fortune, which focus almost entirely on covering the White-dominated corporate world.

Emerge Magazine lasted from October 1989 to June 2000. During that time, Emerge distinguished itself as the premier African American news-magazine and garnered more than 40 national journalism awards.

Black ethnic collectibles magazine provides information regarding Black Memorabilia, Black art, and other collectible items which depict the roles of African Americans in American history.
