Acting Director's Message

by Perry S. Sutherland

So how does one begin to provide an update on the changes that have occurred at The AIDS Project since October? From a change in administration, a reduction in office space, and an increase in the demand for services, we have had quite an intense transitional period.

Staff changes have included the departures of Executive Director Bob Mitchell and Director of Volunteer Services, Peggy Quinlan. And we are announcing the arrival of Diana Carrigan, Case Manager for the region including Androscoggin and Oxford Counties.

As Peggy leaves, and as finances prevent us from filling the position, we are looking to restructure our volunteer program. Are there any volunteers out there who would energetically accept leadership/coordinator responsibilities?

And as Diana Carrigan comes aboard, we recognize the need for assisting the development of support services and volunteer resources in the Androscoggin & Oxford County areas in conjunction with the Androscoggin Valley AIDS Coalition.

You'll certainly notice a change in our office space next time you stop by. We've reduced our size at Monument Square by almost 40%, and are planning to continue cutting our overhead costs. Unfortunately, with the budget crunch, we've also had to ask staff to reduce their time by 20%. Reductions are difficult when demand for services increases, but we're doing what we believe is necessary to keep The Project healthy.

At the same time, we are formulating a more solid financial plan (see John Preston's comments below). The need for expanded service in each of our programs will undoubtedly continue. Our mission and planning needs to effectively respond to these increasing needs.

From The Board of Directors

by John Preston

The AIDS Project's financial problems are tragic. They're not only devastating because our agency's funding needs are so great, they're awful because they're growing so quickly. The pressures on The AIDS Project's limited resources are constant evidence that AIDS is steadily growing in Maine, as it is all across the country.

The Board of Directors is committed to undertaking a major fund-raising drive to alleviate the horrible financial status of the agency. We intend to dramatically increase the number of Every Penny Counts canisters throughout Southern Maine. We intend to approach fraternal and other civic and religious organizations in the region. We intend to increase the frequency and reach of The AIDS Project's direct mail solicitation and to investigate telemarketing techniques as well.

Our sense of commitment about these activities has sharpened. We are not just trying to save an institution or to perpetuate an agency. Our fund-raising activities are a direct result of a sense of obligation we feel:

To our clients. The AIDS Project has existed in a state of financial crisis since the day it was begun. Our clients have the right to expect us to be a constant, sturdy force in their lives when they approach us for services. Allowing our organization to carry on as anything but a safe and firm foundation for our clients is a dereliction of our duty.

To our staff. The The AIDS Project staff performs some of the most difficult and draining social service work imaginable and they do it for very little money. Their salaries are consistently below levels they could earn elsewhere. The least we can do in the face of this dedication is to make sure the staff works in an atmosphere of security and confidence.

To our community. The entire community deserves to know that there is a professional agency dealing with AIDS, the greatest threat to our public health.

To our future. The AIDS Project is now focused primarily on delivering services to our clients. Our on-going financial crises have kept us from doing all the educational work we have to do. Every cent we don't spend on education - the most potent means we have to stop this epidemic - the more money we'll have to spend on client services in the future.

Education today means fewer AIDS cases tomorrow.

Please remember all of this when you see an Every Penny Counts canister at your local store, when you receive a direct mail appeal, when you hear the voice of a The AIDS Project volunteer on the phone, when you see an announcement of yet another fund-raising event.

The Board of Directors is devoted to making The AIDS Project financially secure. But we need all your help to make it happen.

Information for PWA/HIV+ 's Visiting Canada

As of January 1990

From: The Vancouver PWA Coalition

If you are planning to travel to Canada and you have been diagnosed with HIV or AIDS, there are certain facts you should know before you cross the border. Canada, like the United States and many other countries, has a policy which states that persons who are HIV antibody positive are not admissible for entry into the country. The reality is that most visitors are not questioned when they cross the border. However, some are stopped and people have been turned back because of their HIV status. Your best protection for hassle-free travel is knowing the rules.

If border guards suspect that you are HIV antibody positive, they can require that you submit to examination by two medical specialists to determine your state of health. Anyone who "looks ill" or goes to a special "disabled persons" window is suspect. While an examination does not necessarily include testing for HIV, it can. You cannot be discriminated against or denied entry into Canada because you are gay. However, it's been shown that Canadian Immigration personnel have selected people who "look gay" (whatever that means) for screening about HIV-related health issues. The application and seems to be very much a matter of personal zeal on the part of personnel.

Canadian HIV/AIDS groups are actively working to address the political issue. In the mean time, we advise you to keep a few precautions in mind. Naturally we do not think anyone should volunteer the information that they have HIV/AIDS to Canadian Customs and Immigration personnel. But if your status is discovered somehow (through AZT in luggage, or other means) be prepared to show: a return ticket out of Canada, proof of medical insurance that will pay for care if you require it while in Canada, and adequate funds to meet your daily food and shelter needs while in Canada.

The Vancouver PWA Society is actively working to have Canada become an enlightened and progressive world leader in how it responds to PWA needs. Both before you leave and during your trip, you can contact Advocacy staff at the Vancouver PWA offices for individual orientation or questions. Phone: (604) 683-3381 or FAX: (604) 683-3367, or write Vancouver PWA Coalition, P.O. Box 136 1215, Davie Street, Vancouver, BC V6E 1N4 CANADA

AIDS: Testing and Privacy Considers the Ethical Issues of the HIV Test

The University of Utah is pleased to announce the publication of the book AIDS: Testing and Privacy which will be of special interest to members of The AIDS Project.

As of January 3, 1989, over 80,000 Americans had developed AIDS. The best estimate is that 80,000 Americans will acquire AIDS in 1992. There is no cure for AIDS, and virtually everyone who develops AIDS dies. But death is not the only threat to those who contract AIDS. Discrimination in housing, employment, and insurance is already widespread. The U.S. Government gave sanctions to such behavior when it required HIV testing to screen applicants for the military, Peace and Job Corps, and the State Department.

AIDS: Testing and Privacy looks at AIDS and HIV testing from both a medical and an ethical point of view. Throughout the book, the authors seek to find a balance between the individual right of privacy, which the authors see as fundamental value, and the need to prevent this disease. The question is how to preserve civil liberties while the search for a means to stem the epidemic continues.

The ethical questions in AIDS: Testing and Privacy include: 1) should some groups be required to be tested for HIV infection, 2) what limits, if any, should be placed on insurance companies' and employers' ability to test applicants, 3) should people admitted to hospitals be tested, 4) who should have access to test results, and 5) do AIDS patients and their physicians have a moral obligation to warn others who might be at risk?

The decisions we make about HIV testing may well set a precedent for society in the future, as other tests are developed that determine predisposition to a variety of diseases. AIDS: Testing and Privacy, which lists for $18.00, will provide a valuable resource for medical professionals, policy makers, and special interest groups. To order, call the University of Utah Press, toll-free at 1-800-444-8638, ext. 6771, and identify yourself as a member of The AIDS Project to receive the book for $14.40, special 20% discount.

Anonymous HIV Antibody Testing

by Chuck Sawyer

Many people want to know about HIV antibody testing and the location of the nearest anonymous testing site.

A call can be made to The AIDS Hotline at 775-1267 or 1-800-851-2437 Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 5 p.m., or Monday and Wednesday evenings from 6 to 9 p.m. to find out where anonymous antibody testing is performed.

When calling a test site, a counselor should speak with you about your risk level prior to scheduling an appointment. The procedure for anonymous testing should then be explained. Your age and sex should be the only identifying information the test site has. Testing is limited to certain days and times and is done by appointment only. The charge for the test is $15. The charge may be waived, however, depending on your ability to pay. Payment may be made only in cash, as credit cards or checks limit the procedure's anonymity.

Maine state law requires that pre and post-test counseling be provided when anyone receives an HIV antibody test. The pre-test session usually takes about 45 minutes prior to the actual blood test. When the nurse draws your blood, you will be given a card with a number on it; this will be your identification when you call back for results. The results will take about 10 working days. You must call to schedule a post-test session to receive your results, as they are not given by phone or mail.

Remember, test results do not become a part of your permanent medical records when testing is done anonymously. And also remember that no one can test you for HIV antibodies without your written, informed consent.

Statement of the Steering Committee for The International Conference for Persons with AIDS/HIV

The organizers and Steering Committee of the IVth International Conference for Persons With AIDS/HIV met in Madrid, November 24-26, 1989, and discussed the discriminatory practices at border crossings. Specifically we discussed the U.S. policy stating that people with HIV infection must apply for a waiver declaring their HIV status and that this policy directly affects our participation to the VIth International Conference on AIDS in San Francisco in June 1990.

We feel we would jeopardize our right to confidentiality if we apply for this waiver and that this policy threatens, for no public health reasons, our ability to travel. HIV should not be used as a basis for restricting travel. Travel restrictions for persons with AIDS/HIV have not proven to be an ineffective way to prevent the spread of the disease. Persons with AIDS/HIV have long been part of education and prevention.

We, therefore, unanimously agree to withdraw our participation in the San Francisco Conference until the change of regulations, return to our own countries and encourage solidarity with all our partners involved in AIDS work to change this discriminatory policy.

Thanks, Thanks, Thanks!

by Perry S. Sutherland, Acting Executive Director

So many people help make our existence possible, our invaluable volunteers, our financial and moral supporters, local businesses and service organizations, schools, local and state government employees, and the list goes on. We hope that each of you realize how important you are to us, and how much we appreciate your support, though that appreciation may often go unspoken.

We express our sincere gratitude for the multi-faceted work of those volunteers who devote many hours of their time to our mission. Volunteers working with people living with HIV infection help to augment the quality of life for our clients and their supporters. Volunteers who help us manage the day-to-day operations of The Project, as well as participate in fundraising activities, help to keep us vital and visible in the community.

We also acknowledge the hard work and support of several efforts in this Newsletter edition. Our sincere thanks and respect goes to :

The committees who made the Cut-a-thon and this year's Visual AID auctions possible.

That energetic group of individuals who organized Alternative Mediums 1990. Their commitment and effort in making this event successful were remarkable.

The Dignity chapter of Augusta, who organized a fundraiser at Slate's in Hallowell to benefit Merrymeeting AIDS Support Services, Androscoggin Valley AIDS Coalition, and The AIDS Project.

We also acknowledge the special efforts of the committee that organizes the Thursday lunch program, as well as the efforts of the Cumberland Congregational Church and First Congregational Church UCC of South Portland to keep our freezer stocked with frozen meals.

Visualization and Healing

Regina Kelley will be writing visualizations periodically for The AIDS Project Newsletter. She will conduct a workshop in May; also on April 25, there will be an informal discussion after dinner at the PWA Coalition, 377 Cumberland Avenue, Portland. For more information call the PWA Coalition at 773-8500. All are welcome.

University Of Southern Maine AIDS Policy Summary

PURPOSE

The USM AIDS (Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome) policy has been established to protect both the rights of individuals infected with HIV (Human Immunodeficiency Virus) as well as the health and safety of all others at the institution. Current research indicates that AIDS and ARC (AIDS-Related Complex) may develop from HIV infection. Individuals infected with HIV may not always be diagnosed or have symptoms of AIDS. HIV infection is not transmitted by casual contact.

DISCRIMINATION

The University of Southern Maine will not discriminate in any manner against any person who is infected with HIV. This includes admissions, facilities access, hiring, housing, promotion, tenure and/or termination.

TESTING

The University of Southern Maine will not require HIV testing for either its students or employees. Persons who want more information can contact a health care provider either at the University or off-campus.

CONFIDENTIALITY

All University personnel should think carefully before including any information about known or suspected HIV infection in any student or employee record. Information about a person's HIV status may only be included in medical or healthcare records and not in student or employee records of a general nature. Furthermore, it is against the law to disclose HIV test results to anyone without the written consent of the person being tested. This means that no one, under any circumstances, may discuss or share records of HIV test results with anyone other than individuals designated in writing by the tested person.

PENALTIES

Disclosing a person's HIV test results without written consent may result in disciplinary measures under University policy. Also, Maine law states that anyone who does tell another's test results may be sued for actual damages and costs, plus a civil penalty of up to $5,000.00.

SAFETY

In the event of exposure to potentially infectious body fluids (blood, semen, vaginal secretions), surfaces should be cleaned with a commercial disinfectant or household bleach (diluted with 10 parts water). Gloves should be worn while cleaning the area.

USM AIDS TASK FORCE

The USM AIDS Policy establishes a Task Force whose mission is to review, update, interpret and advise regarding the USM AIDS Policy. This Task Force includes representation from all areas of the University Community. To contact a member of the Task Force, call Student Health Services or the Division of Human Resources for more information.

The full USM AIDS Policy is available from Human Resources Policies and Procedures in the offices of all deans and directors, in the libraries and in Student Health Services on both campuses.
