Biographical Note

Harriet Putnam Henry was born on Sept. 28, 1923 in Ashland, Ky., the daughter of Donald H. Putnam Sr. and Hannah Russell Putnam. She was a direct descendant of John Putnam, who arrived in Salem, Mass. in 1640 and of Major General Israel Putnam of Revolutionary War fame. She graduated from Smith College in 1945 and earned a J.D. from George Washington School of Law in 1954. In Washington she worked as an economic analyst in the Office of the Quartermaster General (1945-46), and as a research analyst in the National Security Agency (1946-1957). She came to Maine in 1958, establishing the Portland Housing Authority and serving as its chair. She was also active in the Portland League of Women Voters, serving as president from 1963-1965, and as the chair of the tax committee.

In 1968 she became the research director of a project under the Office of Sea Grant Programs and the University of Maine Law School to study marine resources, fishery regulations, shore property zoning, regulations and restrictions, and other marine related affairs. The project resulted in a four-volume study entitled Maine Law Affecting Marine Resources (1969-1970). From 1970-1973 she served as a consultant to public agencies on marine, environmental law, and coastal zone management related projects.

In 1973 Henry was appointed as Maine's first female judge by Governor Kenneth Curtis. She became an advocate for women judges, serving on the boards of the National Center for State Courts, the Woman's Judges' Fund for Justice, and as a chair of the National Association of Women Judges Professional Leave Committee. She worked to ensure proper maternal and paternal leaves to ensure judicial job satisfaction. She also was known for her work in the areas of child abuse and child welfare, serving as co-chair of the Children Committee on Child Support Rules. She wrote the history of the Maine Court: The Maine District Court: Twenty-five Years of Progress in 1987. She was also a founding member of the National Association of Women judges, a member of the ABA Coordinating Committee on AIDS and the Bio-Ethics. She retired from the District Court in 1990.

In her retirement Henry chaired The Commission to Study the Future of Maine Courts. She served on the Board of the Maine Historical Society, Sweetser, and Piper Shores. She was a Chair member of the Maine Humanities Council, a member of the Maine Commission on Governmental Ethics and Elections, and a corporator of Maine Medical Center. She was a member of Trinity Episcopal Church in Portland and served as a member of the Episcopal Diocesan Commission on Ministry and was chief judge of the Diocesan Ecclesiastical Court. She received an honorary degree from Bowdoin College, an honorary degree and the Mary Hartman Award from the University of Maine, Orono, and the Deborah Morton Award from Westbrook College. In 2003, the Maine Humanities Council dedicated the Harriet P. Henry Center for the Book in her honor. Henry died on September 11, 2004 at the age of 80 after a battle with ovarian cancer. She was survived by her husband and three children.

Description of the Papers

These papers contain 58 items. Topics include women in the courtroom, women judges and lawyers. Also, some papers have to do with women's rights in general, abortion, sexual assault, and child support/family matters. Dates span 1944 to 1996; the bulk of which is from 1980-1990. The collection includes publications and correspondence from the American Bar Association; Henry's college papers; articles, reports, and clippings about women in the law profession; bibliographies about women's issues in the courtroom; and publications about women in law from a variety of journals.
