CLASS ODE

1959

The challenge of the generations past:
That knowledge has been gleaned and wisdom gained,
Revealed of God to His created Man,
Wrested from environment and mind
And nurtured by the need for man to know.
The past has given us a heritage,
And so a challenge—that the past may live.
We meet this challenge, GOING FORTH TO TEACH.

The challenge of tomorrow's world to us:
That knowledge must increase and yield still more;
That there are "worlds to conquer"—to explore,
Too small or else too great to comprehend,
Within our earth and in the universe.
It is our opportunity to reach
The minds of those who'll be tomorrow's Great.
We meet this challenge, GOING FORTH TO TEACH.

The past is opened into future—yea—
And future, by the hour, becomes the past.
Within this moving frame of time we live
And by our deeds give purpose to our lives.
The privilege of learning from the past
Becomes responsibility for us—
That generations of the future learn.
We meet this challenge, GOING FORTH TO TEACH.
