CLASS SONG.

BY MISS J. E. BODGE.

We stand upon the border-land, between the old and new,
We pledge the heart, we join the hand for dear old Seventy-two;
Together we have wandered on for many a toilsome day,
With friendship's fadeless flowers blooming all along the way.

CHORUS.—Hurrah! Hurrah! Hurrah for old and new,
O, ne'er shall break the golden chain that circles
Seventy-two.

To-day, how pleasant is the light that gilds the coming years;
We think of all the joys and smiles, and leave out all the tears;
We gather all the laurel-buds, the green and perfect leaves;
And reach beyond the dust and blight to gain the harvest-sheaves.

CHORUS.

O, thus forever, as we drift adown the changing tide,
We'll look beyond the sombre clouds, to find the silver side;
Encircled by the mystic charm that haloes S. N. C.,
One priceless gem within our hearts forever more shall be.

CHORUS.

And when the voyage is over, and we reach the far off shore,
May we be reunited there, to separate no more;
And sometimes looking backward o'er the waters wild and wide,
We'll bless the love that guided us along The Brighter Side.
