Ships taxiing down to take off. They're headed out for practice fields, which are used to relieve the traffic burden here on Hatbox Field. Most of them have gone and the traffic you see is rather light. Traffic patterns are flown with teamwork and precision. Timing, anticipation, and relative speed sense besides precision and co-ordination make for good traffic flying. By the time these boys graduate their work in traffic is close to perfection.

Hello Bill:

How are you. I have received your well letter and I thank you very much. Tonight it rained all night so we did not go in the wood. We had class on reading compass. Tomorrow night we are going in the wood for a night's problem. For now I am fine. I am very busy & write Mother C. tonight she writes me everyday
