LE MESSAGER

Edition-souvenir

Le Messager, Lewiston, Maine

Samedi, 18 juillet 1970

150ème ANNIVERSAIRE DE L'ETAT DU MAINE

1820-1970

Durant 86 ans Le Messager a été l'organe des Franco-Américains de la région.

A l'occasion du 150 ième anniversaire de l'Etat du Maine, que l'on fête cette année, il fut décidé de le faire revivre en publiant cette édition spéciale, numérosouvenir qui sera distribué gratuitement.

Cette publication coincide également avec les JOURNEES CANADIENNES-FRANCAISES.

LES 24 ET 25 JUILLET 1970

à Lewiston et Auburn

Ce MESSAGER est respectueusement dédié à la mémoire de
M. JEAN-BAPTISTE COUTURE, qui en fut le propriétaireéditeur durant plus de 50 ans,

M. JEAN-BAPTISTE COUTURE

J. B. Couture, chef de la culture française à L-A

J. B. Couture, comme il était généralement connu, portait un nom bien canadien-français (Jean-Baptiste), mais, dans la famille, il était tout simplement Jean.

D'après le livre intitulé: "Franco-Americans of Maine", publié en 1915 à Lewiston, M. Couture est cité comme un des citoyens franco-américains les plus importants de l'Etat, et, comme rédacteur du Messager, un qui ne cédait pas sa place à personne comme dirigeant de l'opinion publique parmi les personnes de la Nouvelle Angleterre qui avaient le français.

On peut ajouter que M. Couture fut vraiment un guide politique, un instituteur, et un défenseur des droits de ses compatriotes, au prix même de son propre honneur et de celui de sa famille.

A part de publier Le Messager pendant près de 50 ans, il fut également écrivain pour tous ceux ayant-M. Couture dirigea nombre de pièces théâtrales dont le but était d'instruire autant que de récréer notre population de langue française; il fut co-fondateur du club Musical et Litteraire qui réunissait dans ses membres l'élite masculine de nos deux villes; il prit part à nombre de productions musicales—compris opéras—et, fait que l'on ne répète pas assez souvent, il réussit si bien à traduire de l'anglais au français la pièce musicale "Pinafore" de Gilbert et Sullivan, que sa version fut présentée plusieurs fois, notamment à Lewiston-Auburn sous les auspices de divers groupements.

M. Couture se dévoua aussi au centre des sociétés mutuelles qui occupaient une large part dans la vie des premiers immigrés du Canada en nos deux villes.

M. Couture servit sa ville comme membre du "Lewiston Common Council" pendant deux termes; il représentait sa ville, pendant deux termes aussi, à la Legislature d'Etat, et, quand la prohibition cessa et l'Etat prit charge de la vente de liqueurs alcooliques dans le Maine, M. Couture fut choisi comme membre de la première commission d'Etat pour diriger cette entreprise.

La République Française reconnaît son dévouement à la cause française en Amérique en lui décernant la décoration: Chevalier de la Legion d'Honneur.

Notes Généalogiques

M. Couture est né à Québec en 1867, un des 19 enfants d'Ortner et Marie Hebert Couture.

Le père était alors débardeur à 1895 à l'âge de 72 ans. Sa épouse le suivait l'année suivante.

Le père était instituteur dans un temps où l'enseignement au Canada se faisait presque généralement par religieuses et religieuses, et il était difficile pour un laïque de se créer une carrière dans cette profession. Il lui fallut alors à Labrador, à une certaine période de sa vie, et M. Couture racontait que la famille y connut la "misère noire".

M. B. Couture étudia à l'Ecole Normale des Frères à Québec, puis se voulut à étudier le métier d'imprimeur au journal Québécois "L'Evenement", encore bien connu de nos jours. Il y demeura cinq ans, puis vint à Lewiston, en 1886, où il devint employé du Messager. Son fils, Faust, nous dit qu'il quitta Québec à l'âge de 17 ans, mais fit un stage de deux ans aux Etats-Unis, avant de s'établir à Lewiston.

Cinq ans après son arrivée dans le Maine, M. Couture acheta Le Messager, et, en 1909, il déménagea l'établissement de la rue Lincoln à la rue Lisbon, qui est encore le centre de la vie commerciale de Lewiston. L'édition a trois étages, en briques, et encore une belle propriété de cette rue. Le Messager jouissait alors d'un bel outillage pour imprimerie de toutes sortes, en plus de ce qu'il fallait pour imprimer le journal. Les employés augmentaient selon le besoin, et, pour eux, le travail au Messager était aussi une école, car on en apprenait tous les jours au contact des divers journalistes qui se suivaient à la rédaction du journal.

En arrivant à Lewiston, M. Couture avait été se loger chez la famille Brunelle, débardeurs, et le père était boulanger bien connu dans la ville, et sa épouse était autrefois Adelaïde Tousaint. Tous deux étaient nés au Canada, et ils eurent huit enfants, dont Clara, couturière, devint l'épouse de M. Couture. De leur union, il est né cinq enfants: Yvette, Sybille, Valdore, Berthe et Faust. Seule Sybille est décédée.

Les deux fils furent longtemps employés au Messager, mais, après la fondation du poste de radio, WCOU, M. Faust en devint le directeur, et le fut jusqu'à sa retraite. Entre temps, M. Rowbotham de Auburn et Rumford, avait acheté l'imprimerie et se charge de publier Le Messager avec l'aide de M. Roger Soucier, mais, finalement, même l'imprimeur cessa d'être chose payante, et M. Rowbotham vendit en mai de cette année pour aller s'établir à Norway où il continua la publication de journaux hebdomadaires en se servant de procédés modernes nécessaires de nos jours pour publier avec profit.

Les filières du Messager, ayant une valeur historique, données à la bibliothèque d'Etat située à Augusta, capitale de notre Etat.

Lorsque l'imprimerie du Messager fut démolie, le Lewiston Evening Journal, publication locale écrite en anglais, racontait qu'en 1930, il y avait 800 journaux publiés en français aux Etats-Unis, et, de nos jours, il n'en reste que 100.

Welcome Canadian Visitors From Your Family and Friends at Bates Manufacturing Company

There are more than 3,000 members of the Bates employee family, and many of them proudly claim a French-Canadian ancestry.

Since Bates started its first loom in Lewiston 120 years ago, the company has welcomed many of our northern neighbors into its ranks and played a major part in fostering the growth of French-Canadian heritage in this community.

We cordially invite our French-Canadian neighbors to visit the Bates Mill Store and see the beautiful home furnishings made at our Lewiston plant by their friends and relatives at Bates.

Bates Mill Store — Canal and Ash Sts., Lewiston / Water St., Augusta

open weekdays 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.
Saturdays 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

L'Histoire résumée du Messager, journal français de 1880 à 1966

LE MESSAGER, journal que nous honorons par cette édition-souvenir, à l'occasion du 150e anniversaire de l'Etat du Maine, fut publié en français à Lewiston en 1880 à 1966.

Les fondateurs furent le docteur Louis J. Martel et J.D. Montmarquet; et les premiers actionnaires: marchands en vue de cette période: MM. Régis, Pierre et Louis Provost, avec M. Hubert Delorme.

La publication de ce journal fut longuement faite dans une petite batisse en bois près du canal, rue Lincoln, rue où tous les établissements importants pour les canadiens-français du temps étaient situés.

Aux cours des années, le journal démenagea rue Lisbon dans son propre édifice au numéro 225. M. J.B. Couture, propriétaire du Messager depuis 1891 fut celui qui démenagea le journal rue Lisbon, en 1909. Sa famille démenagea aussi, occupant un logis à l'étage supérieur. Avec les années, ce logis fut transformé en studio pour le poste de radio WCOU, fondé par M. Couture, et, encore logis là. Pendant longtemps, ce poste fut sous la direction du fils cadet de M. Couture, Faust Couture, maintenant à sa retraite.

M. Couture, comme il est raconté dans les notes biographiques publiées avec sa photo, fut le directeur-propriétaire du Messager pendant le plus grand nombre d'années—certainement, pendant un demi-siècle. Au début, il composait lui-même, ayant appris ce métier à l'Événement de Québec, mais, avec les années, son beau-frère, M. Arthur Brunelle, lui succéda. Ce dernier fut employé au Messager pendant 25 ans, et pendant les six dernières années il fut contremaire dans la salle de composition.

Après le décès de M. Couture, son fils Valdore dirigea Le Messager pendant quelques années. Le journal fut ensuite mis en vente, et fut acheté par un groupe de citoyens locaux, désireux de continuer le journal, et l'avocat Edouard Beauchamp fut le président de la corporation.

Pendant tard, le directeur d'Etat et ancien maire de la ville, M. Romeo T. Boisvert prit la direction du journal, mais les lecteurs, abonnés et annonceurs diminuèrent continuellement, il fallut se soumettre à disconinuer la publication.

Entre temps, M. Albert Rowbotham de Auburn et Rumford, avait acheté l'imprimerie et se charge de publier Le Messager avec l'aide de M. Roger Soucier, mais, finalement, même l'imprimeur cessa d'être chose payante, et M. Rowbotham vendit en mai de cette année pour aller s'établir à Norway où il continua la publication de journaux hebdomadaires en se servant de procédés modernes nécessaires de nos jours pour publier avec profit.

Les filières du Messager, ayant une valeur historique, données à la bibliothèque d'Etat située à Augusta, capitale de notre Etat.

après sa mort, elle épousa Jerry L. Dennison, avec qui elle demeure à Auburn.

M. Tardivel étudia le droit après avoir quitté Le Messager et il pratiqua sa profession à Brookline Mass. pendant un demi-siècle. Il revint à Lewiston avec son épouse, née Anna Kavanagh (soeur de l'avocat Albert L. Kavanagh, longtemps bien connu à Lewiston) et ils demeurèrent au Foyer Marcotte où tous deux sont décédés, M. Tardivel, le 25 octobre 1949, et, elle, le 24 mai 1957. Leur fille, pianiste de renom, fut active plusieurs années à Hollywood dans les vues animées.

M. Michaud, de nature plus austère, se spécialisa plutôt à l'écriture d'articles "profonds" selon l'expression de nos jours. Il commandait surtout de s'instruire, et aidait cette cause en donnant des cours d'études aux jeunes qui travaillaient en bonne heure dans la vie en ces temps-là, et il donnait aussi des cours d'études à ceux qui voulaient devenir citoyens américains et devaient étudier non seulement la langue anglaise mais les éléments les plus importants du gouvernement.

Pendant la première guerre mondiale, M. Michaud écrivit une colonne intitulée "Le Bombardier", où il suivait et commentait les activités de la guerre en Europe ou nos Franco-Américaines servirent leur nouvelle patrie en grand nombre.

M. Michaud épousa Amanda Simard de Lewiston. La seule enfant du couple de mariés est Miss Charlotte Michaud, journaliste de l'avenue, surtout pour journaux publiés en anglais à Lewiston et à Portland, mais, pendant 25 ans, elle fut correspondante pour La Presse de Montréal. années par MM. L. N. Gendreau et J. L. Michaud.

Il y avait des correspondants aussi, citoyens de la ville, qui contribuaient articles variés, mais qui n'étaient pas "au bureau" comme l'étaient ceux déjà cités. Ces correspondants il y eut les avocats P. X. Anger et F. X. Belleau, et le docteur J. A. Girouard qui contribua des poèmes pendant presque toute sa vie.

Official Program of Events in Androscoggin County

Marking Maine's 150th Anniversary as a State: 1970

Dr. Garcelon's Brainchild

By Ralph B. Skinner
Co-chairman County
Sesquicentennial Committee

A fitting introduction to Androscoggin County's observance of Maine's 150th anniversary, as a State, was a scholarly address on "Statehood for Maine," delivered by Attorney Vincent L. McKusick of Portland before the Androscoggin Historical Society April 28, 1870. The Society's selection of the speaker and subject was readily endorsed by the Androscoggin County Sesquicentennial Committee.

Recognizing that this Androscoggin County Sesquicentennial Committee was one of the most active in promoting county-wide observance of Maine's 150th anniversary as a State, the Maine State Sesquicentennial Commission designated a costume ball in Lewiston Memorial Armory, on June 6, as its official occasion under sponsorship of the County Committee.

Governor and Mrs. Kenneth M. Curtis Jr., attended in costume of the year 1820, and led the grand march. Other dignitaries attending included Judge and Mrs. Benjamin Butler and their two grandchildren from Farmington, likewise in period costume. These, with many others, garbed in styles of a century-and-a-half ago presented a most colorful picture when the grand march concluded in a phalanx of people filling the ballroom floor. George O'reilly was Master of Ceremonies; Mrs. Harriet Simpson and Mrs. Maria Robinson, Recreants.

This most enjoyable affair was the starting event of the Androscoggin Committee's observance program to extend through the remainder of the year.

Even before the opening ball took place, Representative Louis J. Alber of Lewiston, chairman of this County's Sesquicentennial Committee, had named two prominent educators to co-operate with school officials in the county's two cities and 12 towns in carrying out observance programs in their schools. The two were Miss Geneva A. Kirk, instructor in government and history at Lewiston High School and president of the Maine Teachers' Association, and Mrs. Jo Anne Lapointe, head of the history department at St. Dominic's Regional High School, Lewiston.

The program recommended by them includes not only studies and exercises memorable of Maine's history, but competitive projects by grades to conclude, in November,

State Ball in Lewiston was Opening Feature — Lewiston-Auburn Students Participate — Souvenir Newspaper Published — Art Show, Textile Exhibit, Field Contests, Visitation Days, and many other Events Scheduled.

With a History Fair held in a hall centrally located in the county, the first to be presented following the June 6 ball was a day carnival in Greene, on July 11-12, under sponsorship of the Allen Pond Improvement Association. This included field events, a food sale, a dance, a beat parade and races. The committee-in-charge was headed by Daniel Myrand.

The next event was the second annual re-opening, for a commemorative service, of the historic Penley's Corner Church on North River Road in Auburn. Closed for many years, this quaint old church, with walled cemetery beside it, was the scene of a Sunday service on July 20, last year, in recognition of Auburn's centennial as a city.

Another service was held on July 19 this year, in recognition of Maine's sesquicentennial. On both occasions, the church, with its stenciled walls, carpeted floor, and kerosene light chandeliers, drew a capacity attendance. Many of those attending were in costumes of the bygone era.

The clergyman was the Rev. Lawrence Hathorne, the soloist, Mrs. Donald Hinckley, and the organist, Mrs. Hazel Penley Grant.

The committee, each time was the same: Mrs. Charles Sylvester, Mr. William Wilson and Miss Harriett Vickery, long-time townspersons, will include a fireman's muster, an obsolete automobile parade, and a chicken barbecue.

Being arranged for early August in an old-fashioned dance to be held on the black-top parking lot at Morgan's IGA store in Greene. This is in charge of a joint committee of Leeds and Greene townspersons, the Town of Leeds having been favored on June 21 by a sesquicentennial gesture from military personnel from the General Oliver O. Howard Reserve Training Center in Auburn.

These officers and enlisted men turned out 120 strong to improve a trail up Boothby Hill in Leeds to the Peace Monument erected in 1888 by Maj. Gen. Howard, and his brothers, Brig. Gen. Charles Howard and the Rev. R.B. Howard, in memory of the 121 Leeds men who served in the Civil War. Trees near the monument were cut, a flag pole raised, and a dedication ceremony conducted by the Rev. Carl Geores with Miss Suzanne McGough as soloist.

An exhibition of handwoven and handprinted textiles will be held at Bates College through Aug. 8, following a formal opening July 12, at the college Treat Gallery. This is a collaboration of the Town Building entrance; a dinner in the Town Hall; an afternoon band concert, singing by a male quartet, field events, and a carnival. A dance will be held that night. Sunday services will be held in the Community Church at Poland Center.

The committee-in-charge, which also produced a history of the town, consisted of Mrs. Vila Lothrop, chairman; Mrs. Philip Thompson, secretary; James W. Burns, treasurer; the Rev. Bertram Wentworth, publicity; Mrs. Stanley Young, Glenn Torrey and Willard Stone, program.

Because all of their communities derived from the original Barkerstown land grant and the Town of Poland in succession, representatives from the Towns of Minot and Mechanic Falls and the City of Auburn co-operated with the Poland celebration committee.

On the night of Saturday, July 25, a colorama will be put on under lights at Walton Field in New Auburn. The Pine Tree Warriors of Lewiston will be hosts to other drum and bugle corps and drill teams from many parts of New England. Bertrand Dutil of Lewiston will be in charge of this production.

The next scheduled sesquicentennial program after that will be that of the Towns of Lisbon and Durham to be held at Lisbon Falls on August 22. This affair arranged by a committee including Town Manager Dwight Dougherty, Rotary Club President Jack Rogers, Frank Paul of the Lisbon Falls Fire Department, and other townspersons, will include a fireman's muster, an obsolete automobile parade, and a chicken barbecue.

The Tamrac Players, the local Little Theatre group, will produce a pageant and fashion show on the nights of Aug. 23 and 29. On Sunday, July 25, the same day as the Lewiston visitation program, the Town of Poland will celebrate its 175th anniversary as a town. The all-day program will include a morning parade, a flag-raising and speaker program at the Town Building entrance; a memorial service at the Memorial Park in Poland.

The many features of the county administration will be explained, and the Museum of the Androscoggin Historical Society will, always, be a source of great interest.

The visitors, to include groups of school children, will be taken on tours about the building including the new jail section and the addition that provides needed office space and modern basement facilities for the County Civil Defense Training Center.

APPRECIATION

C'est l'hon. Louis Jalbert de Lewiston, président du comité pour le comté Androscoggin qui eut l'idée de publier cette édition-souvenir du Messager, à l'occasion du 150e anniversaire du Maine.

Ce journal, qui remplit longtemps une part importante de la vie franco-américaine à Lewiston-Auburn, fut toujours publié entièrement en français, mais, comme ce numéro doit servir tout le comté, ou plusieurs citoyens ne lisent que l'anglais, il semble être à propos d'avoir de la copie en anglais.

La copie publiée en anglais est de nature historique, souvent dans le langage des temps pionniers, et on y perdrait peut-être de son cachet en traduisant en français.

La publication attireira certainement un grand nombre de lecteurs en ayant sa copie écrite en anglais et en français.

Nos remerciements s'adressent aux annonceurs qui ont rendu cette publication possible, et qui ont été généreux à défaut des dépenses de la célébration du 150e anniversaire de l'Etat dans notre comté; à l'hon. James E. Philoon, Auburn, qui fut longtemps commis des cours de justice pour le comté; qui est un descendant de premiers colons; et qui est aussi un ancien président de la "Androscoggin Historical Society", qui nous a prêté des documents historiques importants que nous publions dans ce numéro-souvenir; à M. Ralph B. Skinner, le officiel Auburn historian, extenseur editorial assistance; et à la committee, charged with publishing this issue; Adelard Janelle, Amedee Courtemanche, Paul Lacombe, Eugene A. Hamann, Mrs. Anton E. Mainente, Mrs. Walter A. Lavelle, Lionel A. Dugal, Wilfrid E. Dulac, Anton E. Mainente, Mme Walter A.

Lavalley, Lionel A. Dugal, Wilfrid E. Dulac, Joseph A. Poliquin, et votre rédactrice.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

Credit is due to the Hon. Louis Jalbert, Lewiston, chairman of the Androscoggin County Sesquicentennial Committee for conceiving the idea of publishing this souvenir-edition of Le Messager.

That newspaper, long a feature of Franco-American community life in Lewiston-Auburn, was always published entirely in French, but since this issue must serve an entire county where many residents read only English, it seemed proper to include some copy in that language.

The copy in English is of historical nature, often in the language of the early days, and to translate it into French, would have risked losing some of its historical character.

It is also believed that by having copy in both French and English, this issue will attract a greater number of readers.

Our thanks to the advertisers who made this issue possible, thereby contributing to finance the county observance of the State's sesquicentennial; to the Hon. James E. Philoon, Auburn, long clerk of courts for Androscoggin County, a descendant of early settlers, and former president of the Androscoggin Historical Society, for making valuable documents available for this issue; to Ralph B. Skinner, the official Auburn historian, extenseur editorial assistance; and to the committee, charged with publishing this issue;

Adelard Janelle, Amedee Courtemanche, Paul Lacombe, Eugene A. Hamann, Mrs. Anton E. Mainente, Mrs. Walter A. Lavelle, Lionel A. Dugal, Wilfrid E. Dulac,

Ce que nous célébrons dans le Maine au cours de 1970

"Sesquicentennial" est un mot intéressant à la contribution française.

La France envoie des missionnaires à la fin du 15e siècle, le Père Biard fonda une mission indienne sur les rives de la rivière Penobscot. Deux ans plus tard, une colonie Jésuite établie à l'île du Mont Desert était dispersée par l'équipage d'un vaisseau anglais.

Quelques colonies furent formées par après par les Français, mais c'était plutôt pour faire commerce de fourrures; que pour établir des foyers.

Les Anglais traceront des cartes du territoire, de la rivière Penobscot jusqu'au Cap Cod-nommant cette section "Nouvelle Angleterre", et c'est en 1620 que les "Pilgrims" arrivèrent à Plymouth, Mass. Par don, en 1622, les Anglais cedaient la "Province du Maine" à deux de leurs.

Il s'établissent sur une île à l'embouchure d'une rivière qui deviendra la rivière Kennebec, en 1605.

Monhegan fut fondé en 1622; Saco, en 1623; et York (sous le nom de Agamenticus), vers 1624. Saco et York sont près des plages qui sont maintenant connues sous son nom anglais, Mount Desert Island. Champlain voyagea le long de la rivière Penobscot jusqu'à la ville de Bangor, et il explore la rivière Kennebec, en 1605.

Les Anglais vinrent plus tard et s'établirent où le village de Popham est maintenant situé. D'autres nations vinrent avant et après ceux-ci plus haut, mais pour cette édition, nous sommes plus d'après lui, et les visiteurs dans ce charmant village y trouvent encore plusieurs inscriptions rappelant le souvenir et les actions de ces premiers colonisateurs.

Quand la France céda le Canada aux Anglais en 1763, les missions catholiques furent délogées, et elles n'existaient plus quand vint la Révolution Américaine.

La guerre entre les Français alliés aux Indiens contre les Anglais se poursuivait régulièrement, causant beaucoup de souffrances chez les habitants du Maine. Les Indiens furent abusés, la dissension se fit entre les habitants du Maine et les gouvernements au loin dans le Massachusetts, et on commença à résister contre les impôts imposés par le gouvernement.

Après la Révolution Américaine, la population du Maine augmenta rapidement, et comprenait 228,705 personnes en 1810. Vint ensuite la Guerre de 1812 entre les Etats-Unis et l'Angleterre, qui augmenta les difficultés dans le Maine. Les Anglais occupèrent l'Etat jusqu'en 1815.

Entre temps, les problèmes entre le Maine et le Massachusetts n'avaient fait que se multiplier, et la guerre finie, l'agitation devint de plus en plus vive pour la séparation entre le Maine et le Massachusetts.

Après plusieurs controverses, la chose fut résolue et le Maine se sépara du Massachusetts en 1819, et était officiellement acceptée dans l'Union des Etats-Unis, le 15 mars 1820.

C'est ce dernier événement que les citoyens du Maine observent 150 ans après, pendant toute cette année de 1970.

Androscoggin County Birth

Androscoggin County Birth:
Dr. Garcelon's Brain Child
By Hon. James E. Philoon

The idea of creating a new county was the creature of the alert, ambitious and aggressive mind of Dr. Alonzo Garcelon (later to become Governor of the State) of Lewiston. His great grandfather, James Garcelon, had come to Lewiston with his family in 1776. James was of French Huguenot extraction and came from the Island of Guernsey in France. He was acquainted with Paul Revere of Revolutionary fame, through whom he received his mail from his people in France. His great grandfather on his maternal side was Amos Davis, who settled in Lewiston in 1774.

Dr. Garcelon was a visionary who exercised a strong influence in shaping the development of Lewiston which, at that time, was in a period of rapid growth and industrial expansion; whose soul was afire to put these visions into reality, and by his sheer courage and unfaltering labor, against difficulties that would defeat any ordinary man, brought them to pass.

The Doctor's scheme for a new county gained popular and active support in Lewiston, Lisbon and Webster, towns from Lincoln County whose county seat was Wiscasset; the town of Auburn, Danville, Durham, Poland and Minot to be taken from Cumberland County whose county seat was Portland; the towns of Livermore and Turner to be taken from Oxford County whose county seat was at Paris Hill in the town of Paris; and the towns of East Livermore, Greene, Leeds and Wales to be taken from Kennebec County whose county seat was Augusta.

Travel Difficulties etc.

At that time, except for the railroads which served a relatively small section of these towns, travel for any distance was by stage or by put them in a new county, as proposed, would mean greater expense to their tax payers, since it would involve payment of a larger proportional share of the expense of constructing county buildings, paying salaries of county officials, maintaining a jail, holding terms of court, equipping and like, than they were required to meet as a part of the larger county of Cumberland, already equipped with county buildings, etc., with more and larger towns to share the tax burden.

The Doctor Persists

Despite this opposition, the Doctor and his supporters caused an act to be prepared and presented to the Legislature, providing for the creation of the new county, with Lewiston as the shire town and began an active campaign to obtain passage of the act.

To obtain this result required the persistence of determined men. More than one session of the Legislature went by before its passage was secured, and then only after heated arguments, compromises and promises.

At each Legislative session would be seen the determined Doctor carrying in his hands a map of the proposed county, presenting his case to any legislators who would hear, and using all the influence at his command to accomplish his purpose.

Location of County Seat?

As the campaign advanced, opposition to the making of the new county was less evident; but on the matter of making Lewiston the shire town, the opposition was strong. Hoping to wean the Lewiston supporters promised to furnish the necessary offices and Court Room free from expense to the County during the interim.

The Auburn citizens, while favorable to a referendum, were opposed to having Lewiston named the temporary county seat; but withdrew their objections upon receiving assurances from the Lewiston group, as they later claimed, that they would be willing "To oblige the town on the West side of the river, would they only come up to the work and help on the proposed measure."

New County is Born

This policy of a compromise succeeded where all other methods had failed, with the result that that Act as amended was passed by the Legislature on March 18, 1854, and Androscoggin County came into being. The Act, as passed, did not name the shire town, but provided for a referendum to be held on October 2, 1854, at which time the voters of the several towns in the county were to choose between Auburn, Danville and Lewiston. All honor to Dr. Alonzo Garcelon, who called the fair of Androscoggin County.

First County Offices

Following the passage of the Act, came a short interlude of peace, but it was not long before the partisans of Lewiston and Auburn were collecting their ammunition, and assembling their forces for the capture of the shire town, of which we will speak later. In accordance with the powers given him, the Governor, William G. Crosby of Belfast, appointed the following County Officers to serve until the next State election:

Treasurer
Judge of Probate
Register of Probate
Sheriff
Register of Deeds
County Attorney
Clerk of Courts

County Commissioners

The County Commissioners Meet

The first session of the County Commissioners was called to meet at the office of Calvin Judson in Lewiston on April 4, 1854. The lack of a quorum caused repeated adjournments. Their first meeting as a full board was held at the Clerk's office in Gardiner Block on Main Street, Lewiston on April 21, 1854. Stephen H. Read was elected chairman.

James Goff Jr., the County Treasurer was chosen agent to purchase supplies. Ham Brooks was elected Coroner and gave a bond of $5,000 to qualify for that office.

Problems of a New County

In creating a new county, many important changes have to be made. Suits at law involving citizens in the county, have to be transferred from the courts in the former counties in which the different towns in the new county were formerly situated. Apportionment has to be made of its part of the debts of the former county. Revenues previously raised by taxation have to be proportioned in the same way, and matters pending before the Probate and County Commissioners Courts, transferred to the county having jurisdiction.

Temporary Quarters

There being no County buildings, the first term of Supreme Justice C. Atkinson held in Hall on Main St. in Lewiston. This was in the building later known as the Lower Maine Central Station, (now the City Motel), where subsequent terms were held until Auburn Hall, which was in process of construction, was completed, and where sessions were held until the new county buildings were completed.

Probate Courts were held in Engine Hall, a wooden structure situated on North Main Street, Auburn. The county offices were at first housed in various offices in Lewiston, and later in the Orra Davis house in Auburn, which was a brick building located where the Auburn Theatre* now stands, and in the Engine Hall above mentioned.

First Term of Supreme Court

The first term of the Supreme Judicial Court

James Goff, Jr.

Stetson S. Hill
Charles Clark
John H. Otis
Charles W. Goddard
Cyrus Knapp
Stephen H. Read
Job Chase
Emery S. Warren

opened on Aug. 22, 1854, Chief Justice Ether Shepard presiding. The first Grand Jury to serve consisted of the following: Issacher Lane, Foreman; Ebenezer G. Bryant, Jesse Crossman, Elisha S. Goff, John Goss, Jess Harlow, Isaac Kilgore, Abraham Luce, Martin Leavitt, Seth Martin, William Millett, Charles A. Newell, Rufus Prince, Charles Peables, James Parker, Wm. Rose, Charles Woodside and Foster D. Wentworth. That they were on the job was shown by the fact that twenty-two indictments were found against alleged offenders in the county.

The first Traverse Jury was comprised of Daniel Lara, Foreman, (grandfather of the author), Charles C. Atkinson, Jacob Barker, Ebenezer Cobb, William Davis, Ammi Dunham, Melier Gibert, John N. Jones, George Littlefield, Emery Lombard, True G. Green and Jos. Manson.

The second Traverse Jury was composed of: John Smith, Foreman, Sewall Merrill, William Munroe, Peter Noyes, Ichabod C. Norris, Amida Pettingill, James Pebbles, John Penley, Joshua Parsons, Beta Pierce, William L. Read and John Strickland.

The Supernumeraries were: James Thompson, John True, Wm. A. Tibur and Job D. Thompson. At this term Manderville T. Ludden was admitted to the Bar, and the following were admitted to citizenship: Richard Butler, alias Patrick Bourk, William Collins, Oliver Bartley, Timothy Welch, William O'Donnell, Dennis McCarty, Edward Ockran, Timothy Callahan, Michael Hogan, Michael Mulgeeney, Richard Neagle, Dennis Griffin, Rich Butler, Maurice Lawler, Dennis Murphy, Patrick Marshall and John Leonard.

The term was an extremely busy one, both as to civil and criminal matters, and lasted seventeen days.

A Breach of Promise Suit

There were several civil trials before a jury. Perhaps the most interesting was the suit of Frances D. Mallett against Lucius M. Packard for breach of promise, to which the defense pleaded that he did not promise. The attorney for the plaintiff was Timothy Ludden, and the attorneys for the defendant were Seth May and John Goodenow.

The trial occupied about two days. The Lewiston Falls Journal of Sept. 2, 1854 says of this trial: "In this case we had an exhibition of the ability of the most able counsel that the County affords. Mr. May (Seth May, who later became a Judge of Supreme Judicial Court, and grandfather of Seth May, a practicing attorney of Auburn), in his argument to the jury occupied some two hours, in an energetic, convincing style.

Mr. Ludden followed in a plea of four and one-half hours, yet during his lengthy speech the hall was crowded to capacity.

The jury returned a verdict for the plaintiff in the sum of $413.33.

The Battle Ringer

Meanwhile, the campaign for a shire town had gotten into full swing. The seeming strategy on the part of Lewiston to have Danville included as one of the towns from which the selection would be made, and thus divide the vote on the west side of the river, failed, as the people of Danville disclaimed any desire to be made the shire town, and threw in their efforts in favor of Auburn. The fight thus became one between Auburn and Lewiston, with the winning of the voters of the surrounding towns as the closing moments of the campaign.

A Campaign of Promises

The partisans of each side made a thorough canvass among the voters of these towns. Each tried to outbid the other in the financial inducements offered to relieve the outside towns of much of the expense of constructing the county building and supporting the court system there.

Each tried to outdo the other in political strategy and feelings reached the boiling point at the time for voting neared.

The entire campaign might well be characterized by the song sung at many a "Promised Me," and it can be said without contradiction that the partisans of Lewiston and Auburn were literally and figuratively the most promising men in the County.

The Pot Boils

Regarding the campaign, the late William H. Weeks, who was the son of Howe Weeks, one of the leading citizens at the time, is quoted as saying: "You have heard of mud slinging and wire pulling in political campaign time? Well, here's something (pulling out from a sheaf of old papers a faded pink hand-bill), which I suppose refers to the hottest time these two cities ever saw, or ever will see—the time when each was struggling for supremacy of the shire."

A Counter Attack

An unexpected offer of financial assistance made by the Lewiston citizens, Judge Nahum Morrill, on Sept. 30, 1854, just three days before the election, drew up in his own hand and circulated the following subscription paper, which is now among the archives of the Androscoggin Historical Society, which reads: "Whereas as a part of the subscribers hereunto have deposited with James Goff, Jr. Esq., Treasurer of the County of Androscoggin, the sum of $5,000 in cash to be appropriated by the County Commissioners, or other persons thereto legally authorized, and a plan of action adopted.

It was decided that on election morning, Auburn would have representatives at each of the outside town meetings, bearing a personal message to the voters, with far more convincing inducements than Lewiston had offered.

A Dramatic Incident

Electon day is at hand, and the voters of the town of Turner are about to open the town meeting, when Judge Nahum Morrill from Auburn appears and requests permission to address them, which is granted.

After calling attention to the Lewiston letter, which promised to pay that town's part of the expense, he tells them:

"We want a court house in Auburn and we don't ask you to accept our promises that we will pay Turner's part"; then reaching his hand into his pocket, he withdraws it and lays out before the assembled multitude a bundle of cash—Turner's estimated portion of the expense, as convincing proof of his sincerity.

Les villes de Lewiston et Auburn sont reliées par quatre ponts, à l'heure actuelle, mais deux de ces ponts sont uniquement pour chemins de fer. On prépare maintenant la construction d'un troisième pont pour piétons et voitures. On estime le coût de ce pont à cinq millions. Nous devons donc évidemment protéger les bords de la rivière près des chutes spectaculaires. On doit aussi indiquer, par enseignes, les lieux où nos premiers colons stabilisent leurs demeures. La rivière Androscoggin, qui donne son nom au comté, fournit le pouvoir qui opère les grandes filatures Bates ou plusieurs de nos citoyens ont obtenu leur premier emploi.

Dans les premiers temps, on travaillait "au moulin"

Les filatures Bates de Lewiston, ouvertes en 1850, furent un grand point d'attraction pour les Canadiens-Français qui vinrent s'établir en cette ville vers 1870.

Les émigrés, qui arrivaient presque tous les jours, surtout de la Province de Québec, ne connaissaient pas la langue anglaise généralement, alors il leur fallait un emploi et cette lacune pouvait être surmontée.

En pays étranger, peu importe ses autres capacités, si l'on peut parler la langue courante, et les ouvertures pour gagner sa vie diminuent.

Les filatures offraient un travail manuel, et pour faire affaire étaient nécessaires quelques personnes parlant le français, les parents qui travaillaient la toute leur vie firent instruire leurs enfants, et plusieurs d'entre eux ont pu voir leurs enfants employés dans les bureaux de ces mêmes filatures.

Avant que les conditions de travail aillent à la famille, et les parents fournissent le nécessaire après le revenu collectif.

Il fallait faire attention à l'heure car les salaires n'étaient payés promièrement qu'à tous les mois; puis à toutes les deux semaines-alors, fallait voir d'avoir assez d'argent d'une paye à l'autre. Les émigrés étaient généralement économies, mais les conditions citées les y强制 aussi. Et l'anglais s'apprenait à l'autre, mot à mot, phrase par phrase, selon le besoin. On identifiait les magasins par les enseignes—"la botte noire" était où l'on vendait des chaussures; le magasin "à bras d'or" était un magasin général où les vitrines étaient protégées par des pipes en bronze. Tout était reconnu de cette façon.

Les filatures Bates à Lewiston datent maintenant de 120 ans, et sont encore l'industrie la plus importante de la vie économique.

Les filatures sont nommées d'après le fondateur, Benjamin E. Bates, qui fut aussi un des principaux contribuants pour la fondation du collège Bates, aussi située à Lewiston, et nommée d'après lui à cause de sa générosité.

La population de Lewiston

s'élève à au delà de 40,000 personnes, dont la grande majorité est d'ascendance française. On peut parler français à Lewiston ou dans les filatures, alors les commis de langue française étaient compris.

If you have concours-surprises pour les enfants de bas de 10 ans, samedi le 25 juillet au Parc Kennedy de Lewiston. Ces concours, avec prix pour les gagnants, seront sous la direction de M. Arthur Raymond, président du Club Richeleau de Lewiston-Auburn.

George Carignan was the first French-Canadian to settle in Lewiston. He came in 1860 from Wotton, Que. A daughter of this first settler married Joseph LeBlanc, founder of the Lewiston Steam Dye House, which is still operated by members of this same family, but is now known as LeBlanc's Cleaners. It is the oldest Franco-American business establishment, and it served as training center for many owners of similar establishments now operating in Lewiston and elsewhere.

Histories of Androscoggin Towns Provide Interesting Facts

Historical notes on the cities and towns that make up Androscoggin County form a lengthy story, so we forego any introduction.

By Hon. James E. Philo

Durham
The first town to be settled in this area was Durham which was first known as Royalborough. In 1766 the Pejepscot Proprietors voted to have lands laid out and cleared for a new township and a log house erected to accommodate settlers.

This was done and the territory incorporated as the Plantation of Royalborough. They chose this name in honor of Col. Isaac Royal, a Proprietor who owned some 3,000 acres of land in this area.

Having amassed a large fortune, Col. Royal later purchased a palatial residence in Medford, Mass., to which he moved. This residence is still standing and is known as the "Royal Mansion". He was suspected of being a Tory and sought refuge in England, to which he departed in 1776.

In March 1786 Col. Jonathan Bagley, Belcher Noyes and Moses

Little were detailed to procure settlers. (Noyes, who was acting as their Agent at the time, was empowered to execute deeds.) The first settler of the area was Major Charles Gerrish, who came with his family in 1763. He was followed by Judah Chandler ten years later.

By 1774 there was a considerable settlement in the Plantation, with the result that in 1788 the Proprietors petitioned the General Court of Mass., for its incorporation as the town of Sharon or Bristol.

The General Court, while favorable to creating a town, apparently did not like the names suggested, for on Feb. 17, 1789, the territory was incorporated as the town of Durham. This included the original land of the Proprietors and Bagley's Gore, which had been originally granted to Jonathan Bagley by the General Court and conveyed by them to the Proprietors in 1766.

By 1790 its population had grown to 724; by 1800 to 1242; by 1820 to 1560; and by 1850 to 1623.

During the early decades of 1800, Durham was an extremely prosperous center of industry and commerce. At one time it had six saw mills, a tannery, a chair factory, a ship yard and several fulling mills.

Its principal village was at Southwest Bend, which was on the main traveled highway from Freeport and North Yarmouth to Monmouth, Winthrop and Augusta. Two ferries, across the Androscoggin River, were operated here up to 1810, when they were displaced by a bridge which was maintained up to 1849, when it was carried away by the spring freshet of that year and never replaced.

For many years its four stores constituted the mercantile heart of the region. They carried a larger stock in trade and did more business than those in Lewiston, Auburn and Danville combined.

I 1848 my grandmother, who lived in Turner, drove from her home through Auburn and Danville to Southwest Bend, where she purchased her wedding dress.

The coming of the railroad to Auburn and Lewiston in 1848-49 and the rapid industrial development of these towns, shifted the center of trade to that area and Southwest Bend passed into the background.

Danville

The area which was to become the town of Danville was first laid out by the Pejepscot Proprietors as the township of Pejepscot. It was incorporated in 1802 as the town of Pejepscot. The first town meeting was held in a schoolhouse at Danville Corner on April 12, 1802, at which a committee was appointed to lay out town roads. By 1803, 12 roads had been laid out and road signs erected at the intersections.

It is said that at one time there was a post office erected in a neighboring town with the inscription "Pepesquint 5 miles". In 1819 its name was changed to Danville.

The first settler in the area of the town was Abel Davis who came in 1762 and made his clearing near the New Gloucester line. He was followed by John Merrill, who settled near Davis in 1778. The population increased rapidly in the following years. By 1800 it had a population of 701; by 1820 it had increased to 1083.

There were considerable settlements at Danville Corner, New Auburn and Goff's Corner. Up to 1859 the line between Danville and the newly created town of Auburn was as follows: beginning at a mark on the big rock in Lewiston Falls, it passed diagonally across Court St., north of the Elm Hotel and Auburn Hall and thence on a line past the rear of the plant of the Maine Baking Company.

From this you will see that a major portion of the business center, formerly called Goff's Corner in the immediate vicinity of Lewiston Falls, was located in Danville.

In 1859 that part of Danville lying between the Little Androscoggin River and the Auburn line was annexed to Auburn. Eight years later the remainder of the town was likewise annexed to Auburn.

In 1736 the Great and General Court of Massachusetts made a grant of land to the officers and soldiers commanded by Capt. John March, Capt. Stephen Greenhill and Capt. Philip Nason and their heirs, as compensation for their services in the expedition into Canada in 1690.

This was to be located on the West side of the Merrimac River, adjoining Contoocook. The Proprietors entered the land, laid out a township, built houses, mills, bridges and cleared roads at great expense. But also on final determination of the line between the states of Massachusetts and New Hampshire, it was found that their township was in New Hampshire and their grant invalid.

For many years the Proprietors sought redress from Massachusetts without success. In 1765, however, the Great and General Court relented and granted to them a township of land to be known as Bakerstown, to be laid out on the East side of the Saco River, to adjoin some former grants to be seven-and-a-half miles square, 8,600 acres being allowed for waters and ponds.

Said location was not to interfere with Pejepscot Claim, or the town of New Gloucester. They laid out a claim only to discover two years later (1767) that part of the territory was claimed by the Pejepscot Proprietors.

was as follows: beginning at a mark on the big rock in Lewiston Falls, it passed diagonally across Court St., north of the Elm Hotel and Auburn Hall and thence on a line past the rear of the plant of the Maine Baking Company.

(Ralph B. Skinner, official Auburn historian, informs that this structure was demolished, making the Knight House the oldest remaining frame dwelling in the central portion of Auburn.)

In the same year, Benjamin True, Jabez, Levi and Daniel Merrill, all of Turner (then Sylvester Canada) and Jacob Stevens of New Gloucester cleared land on Merrill Hill.

Goff Hill Area

In 1785, James Goff Sr., settled in the Goff Hill section on Lake St. in 1821, James Goff Jr., who became a large land owner in and around the present district of Auburn, and his son, James, a prominent part in its development, moved in and went into business with Jacob Read, who shortly before had moved a building across the river into what is now Minot, built a saw and grist mill and operated a ferry. He played a prominent part in the affairs of the two towns. More settlers came during the next few years until by 1850 its population was 21215; in 1850 its population was 1353 despite the reduction in its area which was set off as the town of Minot.

The following year he bought out Read's interest in the building and business. This was the first store in this area, around which there developed a considerable settlement called Goff's Corner. There were other settlements in North, East and West Auburn, Stevens' Mills and other areas.

An important contributor to the early development of Lewiston and Auburn (known as Lewiston Falls) was the toll bridge which was erected in 1823, between the two villages. It was located where the present North Bridge now stands. Previous to that a ferry had been operated at first by Zebina Hunt, beginning in 1812.

These roads as laid out from the Little Androscoggin River over (Barker's) Mill district, New Auburn to Sylvester Town and cut a road one rod wide North and south through the town to connect with the Bakerstown road.

With the annexation of Danville in 1859 and 1869 it became an important and rapidly growing town. Its population in 1850 was 2,840; in 1869 was 4,022.

I am pleased to welcome residents and friends of Maine to Androscoggin County's Sesquicentennial Celebration and Franco-American Days. Our Maine citizens of French descent have made significant contributions to the culture, history and commerce of Maine throughout our 150 years of statehood.

Androscoggin County's hospitality is warm in the French Canadian tradition, and I look forward to seeing old friends and making new ones on this happy occasion.

Edmund S. Muskie
U.S. Senator - Maine

Il me fait grand plaisir de souhaiter la bienvenue aux citoyens et amis de l'état du Maine, à l'occasion de sa célébration sesquicentenaire de la part du comté Androscoggin, et de ses jours dévolus aux franco-américains.

Nos citoyens de décente française ont fait une contribution très significante à la culture, histoire, et industrie du Maine, à travers nos 150 ans comme un des Etats Unis.

L'hospitalité des citoyens du comté Androscoggin brille en sa tradition canadienne-française.

Sur cette heureuse occasion, c'est avec plaisir que je revois mes vieux amis, et c'est ainsi que j'espère en faire des nouveaux.

Edmund S. Muskie,
Sénateur, Etats-Unis, Maine

It is a great pleasure to see again "Le Messager", the voice of the people of Maine of French origin. I offer my congratulations to the Sesquicentennial Committee of Androscoggin for this imaginative gesture.

Here, in the United States, we are a unique society. Each nationality has given us the best of its heritage—and the Franco-Americans particularly.

You, the Franco-Americans, have built the modern economy of Maine. You have conquered the difficulties of language, the hostilities of certain people, and you have found prosperity and respect. You remain proud of your heritage, your language and your religion.

As Governor of Maine, I want to salute the Franco-American citizens of our country and our State in this year of the 150th anniversary. I am certain that, in the years to come, the Franco-American communities will continue their great contributions to LIFE IN MAINE.

Kenneth M. Curtis
Governor, State of Maine

A l'occasion des fêtes de commémoration du 150e anniversaire de l'Etat du Maine, il me fait plaisir, à titre de Gouverneur et à titre personnel, d'offrir mes vives félicitations, par la voix du Messager, aux organisateurs de la célébration dans le comté d'Androscoggin, et de leur souhaiter plein succès.

Le Maine est heureux de compter, au nombre de ses loyaux citoyens, une large population d'ascendance canadienne-française avantageusement et largement représentée dans le comté d'Androscoggin. Ces Franco-Américains, conscients de la valeur de leur héritage culturel, ont mis à la disposition de leurs concitoyens les avantages de leur double culture et de leurs qualités innées. Ils ont pris une part active dans la vie et les affaires de leur comté et de leur Etat.

En esprits éclairés, ils ont su adapter la fidélité à leurs origines aux devoirs ainsi qu'aux priviléges de leur citoyenneté américaine.

Ils furent des pionniers et il me fait plaisir de m'associer, aujourd'hui, dans l'hommage qui est rendu à l'un d'eux, le regretté Jean-Baptiste Couture, ainsi qu'à sa famille, par la publication de ce numéro extraordinaire du "Messager" qui fait revivre brièvement ce journal. M. Couture en fut le propriétaire-éditeur pendant plus de cinquante ans et contribua ainsi à l'acculturation des nouveaux-venus du Canada dans leur nouvelle patrie américaine.

Le 25 juillet, le village de Poland célébrera le 175e anniversaire de sa fondation avec un défilé, discours, dîner public, concert, concours athlétique, un carnaval, une grande danse. Un concours élégance sera lancé le lendemain à l'Oldise Community. Les villages de Mint et Mechanic Falls, et la ville d'Auburn prendront part à cette célébration parce qu'à début, ces trois endroits ne formaient qu'un même groupement.

comme Androscoggin formé pour observer le 150e anniversaire du Maine.

De ces premiers jours de Messager, il ne faut pas oublier Liane "du Messager", dont le nom était Camille Lessard. Elle entra comme employée dans la salle de composition à son retour du couvent au Canada, et y travailla aussi sa vie active, mais surtout au bureau. Elle faisait ce qu'on appelait "la cuisine", c'est-à-dire, c'était sa fonction de répondre aux demandes de tous ceux qui se présentaient au bureau. Elle continua à faire ceci même après son mariage avec M. Henri E. Roy, dont elle prit si bien soin jusqu'à sa mort que les enfants du premier mariage de son mari n'en furent pas privés.

Quelques autres se souviennent d'Henri Devitry, venu ici de France où il avait servi dans la Légion Etrangère de son pays. Il fut un des meilleurs rédacteurs du Messager, à Lewiston, il laissa une veuve et un fils. Ce dernier quitta la ville, et on ne sait parmi le personnel survivant du Messager ce qu'il est devenu.

George Fliteau, maintenant à la bibliothèque publique de Lewiston, Liane se maria un peu tard dans la vie, et demeure depuis nombre d'années en Californie; veuve maintenant, et presque aveugle.

On se souviendra aussi d'Odile LaPlante, dont les enfants et petits-enfants demeurent encore à Lewiston. M. LaPlante était agent d'immeubles, et, tout en ayant à ce travail, prenait des abonnements pour Le Messager.

Omer Gauvin—maintenant au Foyer Marcotte—fut le seul qui fut employé au Messager le plus longtemps; Il travaillait "au moulin" premièrement, du côté financier.

Louis-Philippe Gagné, n'oubliions l'intérêt, alors il vendait des annonces. Avec le temps, il y consacra toute son énergie. Peu de personnes pouvaient résister quand Omer vendait des souvenirs de Québec d'où il est venu ici, puis sur ses impressions de la vie à Lewiston, pour ensuite prendre quasi-direction de la mentalité franco-américaine puis écriture et un programme hebdomadaire sous les ondes WQOU qui fut très suivie, introduisit le mouvement de la raquette à Lewiston et la Nouvelle Angleterre, fonda le club Les Vigilants qui dans ses premières années contribua beaucoup à diverses entreprises civiques et scolaires; et devint une force dirigeante en politique qui le mena à devenir maire de la ville.

Son épouse, née Ernestine Hamann, le préféra à Lewiston quand sa famille vint s'établir ici, et c'est pour se rapprocher d'elle que M. Gagné vint s'établir à Lewiston et l'épouser. Ils eurent sept enfants, et le père les dirigea pendant quelques années dans la présentation de programmes de chants canadiens-français. M. Gagné organisa aussi plusieurs productions musicales et théâtrales de genre populaire par troupe qu'il faisaient venir du Canada et qui étaient très populaires.

Il continua à faire ceci même après son mariage avec M. Henri E. Roy, dont elle prit si bien soin jusqu'à sa mort que les enfants du premier mariage de son mari n'en furent pas privés.

Auburn Wins

The County Commissioners canvassed the votes on October 20, 1854 and found the result to be as follows:

	Lewiston	Auburn	Danville
Lewiston	949	11
Lisbon	172	60
Wiscasset	190
Wales	70	25
Leeds	143	48
East Livermore*	227	26
Livermore	58	50
Turner	84	153	2
Poland	15	422
Minot	27	255
Auburn	12	778
Danville	17	535
Durham	23	282
	2,041	2,909	2

Believing these difficulties could be overcome, the Commissioners entered into negotiations with the owners: Samuel Pickard, Wm. R. Little, Maria Harrick and Mary B. Little, for its purchase. In this they were successful. The County purchased the land for $1,800. At a meeting of the County Commissioners held on Nov. 1, 1854, the County Treasurer, Isaac Hayes, was authorized to issue County notes payable January 1, 1862, to be used in payment of the purchase price.

On November 27, 1855, the Commissioners appointed Isaac B. Small, Agent, to make a contract for grading the site for the construction, and voted to accept the plan and description of the proposed buildings, which had been prepared and presented by Gridley J.F. Bryant, Architect, from Boston, Mass., who had drawn plans for other county buildings in Maine. At the same meeting, it was "Ordered that plans, drawings and specifications be prepared by Mr. Bryant and submitted to the Board for their approval."

The Board also authorized advertising for sealed bids for the work and material needed for the erection of the buildings, in the Democratic Advocate, Lewiston Falls Journal, Portland Advertiser, and the Kennebec Journal.

Specifications

The Board approved the specifications which Mr. Bryant had been directed to prepare. These were then printed in a pamphlet containing forty-six pages, for distribution among prospective bidders. These read in part as follows:

The buildings are to consist of a Court House measuring 97 ft. by 54 ft., which is to be three stories in height; an Arcade measuring 97 ft. by 54 ft., which is to be two stories in height; a Keeper's House 63 ft. by 25 ft., two stories in height; a 'Jail' measuring 58 ft. 8 in. by 46 ft. 4 in., containing cells three stories in height! etc.

However, while the construction was still in progress, the offices of the County officials were occupied by them as soon as they were completed in the summer of 1857.

An Enduring Structure

Those who have had any opportunity to inspect the buildings constructed by Mr. Currier and his workmen, can testify that they were built to endure, and through the ninety-seven years (now 110 years) of their existence, the only evidence of any settling of the buildings can be seen in that section which was built over the brook, and even this is very slight.

Thus Androscoggin County, having been created, its county seat selected, and its county buildings erected, was now ready to take its place as a going concern among the counties of the State.

This is an historical account of the formation of Androscoggin County as contained in an address delivered by the Hon. James E. Phalon, Auburn, then County Clerk of Courts, in commemoration of the County Centenary on March 18, 1954.)

* Auburn theater is now a parking lot on Court St., diagonally across the street from the county building.

* East Livermore is now Livermore Falls.

L'Etat du Maine existe depuis cent cinquante ans. Durant cette période, aucun groupe n'a contribué plus à la "qualité de vie" dans notre Etat que ses citoyens d'heritage Franco-Américain. L'énergie, les valeurs solides et l'inmanquable bonne humeur des Franco-Américains ont contribué à faire du Maine l'état unique et merveilleux que l'on connaît aujourd'hui. Que jamais l'on perd de vue ces contributions.

Maine has been a State for one hundred and fifty years. During that time no group has contributed more to the quality of life in our State than its citizens of Franco-American heritage. The energy, the solid values and the unfailing good humor of the Franco-American has built Maine into the unique and beautiful State we know today. May we never lose sight of these contributions.

Old-time Traveling
A party set forth from Waltham on Aug. 18, 1772, as directed. It consisted of Ebenezer Waters as surveyor, Elijah Livermore and Richard Woodward as chairmen, and Thomas Fish and Ebenezer Woodward as assistants. They left Waltham on Aug. 18, 1772, and went to Boston where they engaged passage to Hallowell in the good sloop Fenix and waited for a fair wind and three days later were on their way.

The next day after their voyage began, they landed near Col. Lithographs, a few miles up the Kennebec River. Two days later they arrived at Hallowell. They then took their wagons in a boat "Up to Snow's," which was a mile below Fort Western. They then tried to procure a battoe without success. Arriving at Winthrop with their stores, they bought boards with which to make a battoe." They carried this to a Mr. Frost's near Wilson Pond in Winthrop.

Here, with the aid of Ichabod Howe, they constructed a "battoe" which they launched in the pond. They crossed Wilson Pond. They then carried their boat a short distance overland and launched it in Androscoggin Pond, which they crossed and entered Dead River, through which they sailed to the Androscoggin River and from there to their destination. They spent September and October surveying lots on the east side of the river and then returned home to report their findings and the plan they had made.

In Nov. 1772 the Proprietors voted to open a "Horse-way" to Sylvester Canada, and a cart road was opened from Elijah Livermore, Ebenezer Learned and Thomas Fish were detailed to carry on the work. They proceeded to complete the road to Winthrop, which made Hallowell more easily accessible.

Hallowell was the nearest "seaport" and trading post for Livermore and surrounding towns.

For the next 50 years this cart-way was the scene of the slow, but steady, passage of ox teams along its narrow and deeply-rutted surface.

Livermore: 1st settler

The first settler in Livermore was Elijah Livermore, who came in 1772 and erected his temporary cabin, and later the first frame house in town, which is still standing. He was a large owner of land, at one time owning some 2,000 acres. Other settlers followed in quick succession after the Revivalists. By 1795 it contained 60 families.

On Feb. 28, 1795, the township was incorporated as the town of Livermore. By 1800 its population had grown to 863; by 1810 to 1,560; by 1820 to 2,174; by 1850, although its area had been reduced by the incorporation of the town of East Livermore, its population was 1,764.

Livermore Falls—East Livermore

The town meetings were usually held at Livermore Center, on the west side of the river. In the absence of a bridge, this caused great inconvenience to those living on the east side, especially as their meetings were held in March, which was a time of high water and floating ice, making travel across the river extremely hazardous.

He

came upon an Indian village at the mouth of the Twenty Mile River (Nezinscot) in Turner. With the muzzle of his gun pointed downward, indicative of peace, he courageously entered the village where Chief Sabado and his braves gave him a friendly welcome and invited him into their wigwams.

Thus began a friendly relationship with them that served him in good stead in the following years. They named him Father Thomas and sought his services as arbitrator of their quarrels.

On Dead River near what is now North Leeds was located an Indian village of which Sabatis was Chief.

They urged Thomas to settle among them and offered to give him the land occupied by their village. He accepted their offer and the Indians moved their village to another spot in the vicinity.

In the spring of 1778 the two brothers came up the Androscoggin River to Dead River in a dugout loaded with farming implements, camp utensils and stores to the spot the Indians had given Thomas. They proceeded to spade the ground, plant seeds and erect a cabin for Thomas and another for Robert on the opposite side of the river. Having completed this work they moved to New Gloucester where they remained until fall when they returned, harvested their crops, buried their potatoes and departed to their New Gloucester home.

In March of the next year (1779) they returned with three goats and more utensils and supplies, which they had hauled by sled over the snow and ice. They procured a supply of maple sugar and venison and continued work on their clearings. After a short stay they returned home. "On a pleasant day in June 1779, the two brothers left New Gloucester accompanied by five men, and two young men with five horses....on which the brothers packed their good wives and five children."

They followed a slightly hushed trail to the Androscoggin River. After fording the Little Androscoggin River they halted for lunch just below Lewiston Falls. From this spot they observed some three or four houses on the opposite side of the river. They then proceeded by a trail which had been made by some families, who had preceded them enroute to Turner, and arrived at the outlet of the Twenty Mile River at about three P.M., having traveled since early dawn.

They were now four miles from the destination. Here they had two dug-out canoes. The three men and horses returned to New Gloucester that same day. The women and children were landed on the east side of the Androscoggin. Guided by Robert they walked along a spotted trail to the log house on the south side of Dead River which they reached before sunset. The other members of the party made their way by boat up the Androscoggin and Dead River to their clearings.

Le recensement de 1960 donnait une population d'au delà de 40,000 personnes à la ville de Lewiston. Son premier colon, Paul Hildreth, est venu s'établir ici en 1770, et un siècle plus tard les Canadiens-Français emigraient en si grand nombre, que, depuis plusieurs années, les Américains de descendance française sont en grande majorité dans notre ville.

La ville de compléter la construction d'une école élémentaire qui a couté au delà de un million; en 1972, on propose la construction d'une école secondaire qui coûtera dans les six millions, le YWCA commencera la construction d'un édifice au printemps; la ville propose aussi la construction d'une nouvelle bibliothèque et d'un poste d'incendies. Une banque est en construction actuellement près de notre hotel de ville.

La ville a aussi un programme dit "Urban Renewal," avec demeure pour personnes âgées, et une autre en construction. Lewiston est une des 150 villes du pays choisies pour un programme "Model Cities"; et la ville aura prochainement un pont additionnel, qui coûtera cinq millions, entre Lewiston et sa ville-sœur Auburn, toutes deux sur les rives opposées de la rivière Androscoggin, avec ses chutes formidables qui fournissent le pouvoir pour ses industries.

Lewiston est reconnue comme le "Coeur Industriel" du Maine, a cause de ses filatures, ses manufactures de chaussures, et elle se maintient à la page avec de nouvelles opérations en "electronics."

Les Franco-Américains de la ville jouent une grande part dans toutes ses activités. Depuis 1925, ses maires ont été élus tous les ans parmi ce groupe. Ils sont en grande majorité dans le nombre de fonctionnaires, soit eux, ou nommés, aux divers postes municipaux.

Commission Historique, la plus nouvelle de nos commissions et la première établie dans le Maine, comprend Charlotte Michaud, le Rev. Frere Richard Boucher, s.e.; et Adelard Janelle. Ce groupes fait des recherches dans le but d'identifier les sites historiques de la ville, et deux de ses membres ont commencé à préparer un relevé de l'histoire des premiers Franco-Américains établis ici.

Here, in the wilderness, they established two hospitable homes, with latch string ever out, offering entertainment and shelter to wandering hunters, Indians, and the new settlers who were to join them in the new township. For convenience of the Indians he established a trading post, where he conducted a large trade in furs and operated a store.

In 1780 a road was bushed out through Greene to Lewiston and communication opened by way of Androscoggin Lake and thence overland to Winthrop. Settlers now began to come in considerable numbers until by 1790 it had a population of 263, which had increased to 1,652.

On Feb. 16, 1801, the plantation was incorporated as the town of Leeds.

Wales.

The first settler in Wales was James Ross, who came there from Brunswick in 1778 and made a clearing on the western slope of Sabattus Mountain. Other settlers followed until by 1810 it had a population of 471, which had increased to 612 in 1850.

Lisbon.

Lisbon originally a part of the plantation of West Bowdoinham, which had been cut off out of the land of the Kennebec Company and which extended along the westerly line of Bowdoinham about nine miles to the division line of the Pejepscot and Kennebec Proprietors, and from the Northerly boundary of Topsham and Little River Plantation to the southerly line of Wales and Litchfield.

In 1788 this area was incorporated as the town of Bowdoin. On June 22, 1799, a portion of Bowdoin, which was to become a part of the present towns of Lisbon and Webster, was set off and incorporated as the town of Thompsonborough. On account of its extreme length and the later unpopularity of Gen. Samuel Thompson for whom it was named, its name was changed to Lisbon in 1802.

The above-mentioned Little River Plantation was granted by the Pejepscot Proprietors in 1780 for 250 Pounds to Samuel Thompson. It extended from Little River to the Sabattus River and further to the division line of the Kennebec and Pejepscot Proprietors. It was first settled by Ezekiel Thompson, brother of Samuel in 1792. This plantation was annexed to Lisbon in 1808. During the same year the easterly section of the town was set off and incorporated as the town of Webster.

The first settler in the original Lisbon area is said to have been one White, whose first name and the year of his arrival are not stated. He erected a log hut on the road to Gardner. Other settlers followed during the next few years until by 1800 its population was 360. By 1850, its population was 1,495.

These first settlers paid little attention to farming but preferred the more lucrative work of lumbering. At that time this territory was covered with abundant growth of pine of the highest quality. Two saw-mills were soon in operation on the Sabattus River. By 1800 there were six large saw-mills, a grist mill and a carding mill along Little River.

In 1799 John Dean established a ferry at Southwest Bend. In 1810 this ferry and another one operated in the same area was displaced by a bridge, which was carried away in the spring freshet of 1819 and immediately replaced. This latter bridge was carried away in 1846 and never replaced.

Webster

The area that was incorporated as the town of Webster in 1846 was known in the early days as Burn Meadow. Its first permanent settler was Robert Ross, who came in 1775, and built his cabin nearly in the center of the town.

Unfortunately his cabin was destroyed by fire, which forced their return to New Gloucester for the winter. He returned the next spring and rebuilt his cabin. In the fall of that year David Pettengill arrived from New Gloucester and erected his cabin near the Hildreth's.

Hildreth was a roving character, who preferred hunting and fishing to pulling stumps and clearing his population of 1110.

Lewiston

I have purposely saved Lewiston to the last because of the great part it played in the creation of Androscoggin County.

On January 28, 1766, the Pejepscot Proprietors granted a tract of land which was to become the towns of Lewiston and Greene, to Moses Little and Col. Jonathan Bagley, of Newbury, Mass., conditioned on the settlement of 50 families with at least houses by June 1, 1774, and "clear the road to the area approached by Royalborough (Durham) to meet them near Topsham."

This grant described the township as follows: "A tract of land on the east side of the Androscoggin River, commencing at the 'Twenty Mile Falls' on said river; from thence to extend five miles up said river...from thence to extend on a course Northeast five miles; from thence on a course Southeast four miles; from thence on a Southern course to Androscoggin River, and up said River to said falls."

The first settler was Paul Hildreth, who came with his wife and infant child, from New Gloucester in 1770. He erected his cabin on the east bank of the Androscoggin River near the present site of the Continental Mill. He remained here during the summer and fall.

Unfortunately his cabin was destroyed by fire, which forced their return to New Gloucester for the winter. He returned the next spring and rebuilt his cabin. In the fall of that year David Pettengill arrived from New Gloucester and erected his cabin near the Hildreth's.

Hildreth was a roving character, who preferred hunting and fishing to pulling stumps and clearing his land. "He would make a clearing on a lot, build a camp and sell out for a trifle to a new settler. In this way he commenced several lots."

Soon more settlers were coming into the area. A road was cleared to Monmouth in 1792 and Hildreth chartered a ferry which was operated by him one-half mile below the Falls, until 1795 when he sold out to Samuel Robinson and soon after went to Gardner.

The Proprietors, feeling that a saw-mill and grist-mill were a necessary factor in promoting early settlement of the area, approached Lawrence J. Harris of Dracut, Mass., and offered to give him two lots of land at the Falls if he would erect such mills. This was accepted by Harris.

In 1771 Harris proceeded to the area, accompanied by eight workmen, who proceeded to erect a building for a saw-mill. They completed their labors and returned to Dracut in late October that year. In the spring of the next year Harris returned, bringing his family, his household goods and the necessary tools and workmen for the erection of a grist-mill. Both mills were near the Falls, near where the Columbia Mill now stands.

In the absence of a dam, the necessary water for operating the mills was conveyed into a small pond by means of a flume which extended into the river on a ledge near the summit of the Falls. From that time and many years thereafter the Falls were known as Harris' Falls.

More Travel Notes of Old
The journey of Harris and his family from Dracut, Mass., to Lewiston Falls was not an easy one. At Dracut the party embarked on the Merrimack River in two light boats, in which they had stored their tools, goods and provisions, and rowed across the river to the Androscoggin River, where they portaged their boats over the falls and continued down the river to Lewiston.

and proceeded down the river to Newburyport.

From there their boats were towed by a sailing vessel along the coast to Harrasackett (Freeport), where they disembarked. The boats were taken ashore and conveyed overland through the woods over a spotted trail to Royalsborough (Durham).

Here (probably Southwest Bend) they pitched their boats on the Androscoggin River and proceeded up the river as far as Dyer's Rips (opposite the Catholic cemetery.) Here they were forced to land and haul their boats overland to calmer waters upstream; where they again launched their boats and proceeded without mishap to the foot of Androscoggin Falls. On landing, they began to erect a temporary shelter.

Building a Fireplace

Mr. William Garcelon in his early notes on Lewiston history, dated March 10, 1865, described the process of building a fireplace and chimney for their temporary home, which was constructed by Harris, two daughters, Lydia and Hannah, as follows:

"First drove up stakes, then collected stones, built a foundation, called clay from the bank, made or laid a thick bed of mortar on the foundation, and it dry a little, then caused small sticks to split and bent them, secured the ends in the foundation and shaped the sticks for their oven, this frame covered with bark then the roof overlaid with a layer of clay, permitted to dry a day or two, then another layer or so on until it had attained a sufficient thickness to hold the heat. When all was thoroughly dry and solid, fire was introduced and it was burnt out and made an excellent oven which served them some year or two."

As soon as the saw-mill was put in operation, Harris erected a house at a point a short distance west of what is now Lincoln Street, a few rods North of Cross Canal, where he resided for several years. Upon his death in 1784 the mill lot came into possession of his son, who sold it, with the exception of the mill privilege which had been reserved by the Proprietors, to Dan and Lemuel Reade, who turned

The following deposition given by Amos Davis in 1796, gives the story of his coming to Lewiston:

"I moved from Southampton, N.Y. in 1762 to New Gloucester. Soon after my arrival there I heard of land called 'Pejepscot' lying between New Gloucester and the Androscoggin River, said to be the 'Pejepscot Claim' by purchase from the 'ingens'. Likewise I remember of hunters telling of going and having been over to Androscoggin Great Falls."

To the best of my remembrance I became acquainted with Col. Jonathan Bagley...and Capt. Moses Little in the year 1770 who were drawn to land out in a township near Androscoggin Great Falls and having employed one Bill Clegg to survey a tract called Lewiston and running part of said tract or township into 100-acre lots and in 1771 and 1772 they, being proprietors of said tract informed me and others of giving settlers 100 acres of land each where they should choose in said Lewiston, and in the year 1772 I, with others, went to see the tract of land.

Finding it favorable to our minds, we were desirous to know how their title was, so that we might go without danger of being called on by other proprietors or persons. Col. Bagley informed us of his examining the claims or titles of lands, and he found it as good as any in the then Province, and we might depend on their title to be good.

For the encouragement of settlers they proposed cutting or clearing a road from Gloucester to Androscoggin River near the Great Falls and from thence to clear a road down river to Royalsborough, which they accomplished. All the town was not lotted.

They agreed with me to continue to lot out said town which service I entered upon in the spring of 1773. Finding it agreeable to me to settle there, I made my pitch of a lot there and in the fall of said year I made preparations to move my family and same winter I moved my family there."

Explication Necessaire

Une spécialité du Messager pendant les 86 années que ce journal fut publié à Lewiston fut la présentation régulière d'un "feuilleton". Ces feuilletons étaient presque toujours des histoires d'amour, que l'on publiait par tranches dans chaque numéro.

Si je puis prendre maintenant un abonne au cours de sa livraison de journal, le plaisir qu'il en avait était presque toujours que le lecteur avait aussi la lecture du "feuilleton" ... et, parfois, le jeune porteur n'avait aucune idée de ce dont il s'agissait, mais, à force d'en entendre parler, sa curiosité était piquée, et il ne tardait pas à se renseigner, et à l'apprendre.

Alors, dès que l'idée est survenue de publier un Messager-souvenir, à l'occasion du 150e anniversaire de l'état du Maine, il va sans dire qu'il a fallu penser à un feuilleton-sans cela, il aurait manqué une partie intégrale du journal qui fut si longtemps un complément de la vie franco-américaine en nos deux villes jumelles de Lewiston-Auburn. Car, dans les temps dont nous parlons, tous "nos gens" recevaient le Messager. Ce n'est qu'au cours des dernières années de sa publication que nos jeunes ont commencé à parler du Messager comme le "journal de papa" ou de "maman".

C'est pourquoi en voulant présenter un feuilleton à nos lecteurs, nous avons jugé de l'adresser surtout aux personnes d'un certain âge. Cependant, comme ce numero-souvenir du Messager sera unique, il faut nécessairement publier notre présentation au complet, au lieu de page par page, ou selon l'ancienne expression, "feuilleton" par "feuilleton". L'idée première est de rappeler de vieux souvenirs.

N'ayant pas les mêmes moyens que l'ancien Messager pour porter matière à "feuilleton", il a fallu nécessairement l'écrire soi-même, et, pour cette raison, l'auteur demande d'avance que nos lecteurs soient indulgents!

(La Redaction)

Parlons d'Amour

Feuilleton — complet Special à cette Edition Souvenir

Puisque l'attrait spécial des anciens feuilletons du Messager était surtout les histoires d'amour, pourquoi, en cette édition-souvenir, ne pas simplement vous présenter un assemblage de pensées sur l'amour, ses joies, ses tristesses, et ses compléments? et ainsi plaire aux lecteurs de tous les âges, et de tous les goûts, car y a-t-il de quoi de plus important pour tous que: l'amour. Alors, voici:

Aimer, c'est mettre son bonheur en jeu—car, quand on aime, son bonheur de tous les jours dépend entièrement de cet étranger à qui l'on a donné son cœur. Aimer c'est être heureux seulement si l'objet de son amour aime en retour.

On parle de la furie de la femme qui est forcée de réaliser qu'elle n'est pas aimée par celui qu'elle aime: furie, dit-on, qui n'a pas sa pareille. Si elle aime profondément, elle est foudroyée par le refus ou l'absence d'un amour réciproque.

Intutile de se heurter au pourquoi. C'est une épreuve à accepter.

N'aime pas qui veut. L'amour est un don des dieux qu'ils accordent, il semble parfois, par coup de dé.

Histories of Androscoggin Towns - continued

Other settlers followed them including the Reades, the Hains and the Gouloins, until by 1788 there were 75 families scattered through the plantation.

Green set off

For many years the center of business was at Lowell's Corner, in the area now called Hospital Square. In the decade from 1840 to 1850 the population had increased from 1801 to 4584. In 1788 the easterly portion of the plantation was set off and incorporated as the town of Greene. In 1795 the remainder of the plantation was incorporated as the town of Lewiston.

The tremendous growth in the population of Lewiston is explained by the story of its industrial development, which was promoted by public spirited and optimistic citizens, who saw visions and dreamed dreams. This development is the story of the Genesis of Androscoggin County, as will appear later.

Greene

From 1775 on there began to develop quite a settlement in the easterly half of the township of Lewiston. On Feb. 12, 1788, these settlers petitioned the General Court of Mass., asking that this area be set off from Lewiston and incorporated as a town with the name of Greenland. This proposed name, evidently did not satisfy the General Court, who on June 17th of that year incorporated the area as the town of Greene. This name was selected in honor of Gen. Nathaniel Greene of Revolutionary fame. At the year of its incorporation it was said to have a population of some 500. By 1800 it was 933; by 1850 it had increased to 3,348.

The Railroad Arrives at Auburn & Lewiston

Previous to 1845 practically all of the manufacturing in Auburn was done in the thriving villages of North and West Auburn. The manufacture of shoes was becoming an important industry. This was at first centered in West Auburn, but by 1845 it was gradually beginning to develop in the Goff's Corner area.

With the arrival of the railroad, industrial and other business began to make rapid growth in the vicinity of the Falls. On March 28, 1845, the Androscoggin & Kennebec Railroad was incorporated; among whose incorporators were Wm. P. Frye, James Lowell, Nathan Reynolds, John M. Frye and Dr. Calvin Gorham, all or nearly all, of whom were from Lewiston.

The road was completed as far as Auburn in Nov. 1848, and as far as Lewiston in March of the next year, extending to Windthrop in July of the same year. This line was later consolidated with the Portland & Kennebec line and became the Maine Central Railroad.

The Industrial Development of Lewiston to 1854

Before 1817 Little & Bagley, who had, as previously stated, purchased the Harris interest in the mill lot, had erected and operated a small carding and fulling mill in that area, which had been carried on for some time.

In 1819 Little hired Dean Frye of Brunswick to manage the business which grew rapidly. This mill was destroyed by fire in 1829 and immediately replaced by a three-story building. The basement was used as a fulling mill and the second floor for carding and finishing cloth.

Dean Frye was succeeded by his son, John M. Frye. It was soon proposed to manufacture satinette. To do this required more capital and a larger plant. As a consequence, the Lewiston Falls Manufacturing Company was incorporated in Feb. 1834. Its incorporators were John M. and Wm. E. Frye. The new company purchased the fulling mill. This was converted into a satinette mill and the necessary looms and other machinery installed. These were the first looms to be operated in Lewiston. In 1836 a mill built of brick was added to the plant for making cashmere.

In 1836 John A. Briggs erected a wooden building in the vicinity, the rear part of which was three stories high; the first story, or basement, of which was used for a machine shop; the second floor for a wood turning mill and cabinet shop, and the third by Ephriam Wood for manufacturing cotton warp and batting. He was Lewiston's pioneer in cotton manufacture. This mill was dissolved in 1851.

The Great Androscoggin Falls Dam

Locks & Canal Co. was incorporated on Feb. 23, 1836. Its incorporators were Thomas Little, Josiah Little, Samuel Pickard, and Edward Little. This corporation held title to the water power of the falls and a large amount of land on either side of the river in its vicinity.

In 1845 its name was changed to Lewiston Water Power Co. Between 1846 and 1850 many valuable lots were added to their holdings. In 1850 this Company began the construction of a canal. This was completed in May of the following year as far as Bates Mill No. 1. In 1857 the stock and real estate of this Company was sold to the Franklin Company.

In 1857 the Bates Manufacturing Co. was incorporated. This Company immediately began the construction of this No. 1 Mill, which was completed the same year. Shortly after this, its No. 2 Mill was completed and put into operation.

In 1850 the Hill Manufacturing Co. was incorporated. This Company proceeded to construct a mill which was completed in 1854. Ten years later, a second mill was completed by them.

This is an historical account of the original towns of Androscoggin County as contained in an address delivered by the Hon. James E. Philpot, Auburn, then County Clerk of Courts, in commemoration of the County Centenary on March 18, 1954.

Oui peut expliquer pourquoi un homme peut aimer telle femme, ou telle jeune fille aimer tel garçon? Le point d'arrivée premier à peut-être été une certaine démarche, une chévreuil qui encadre un visage gracieusement, une bouche souriante, un petit nez retroussé, il faut si peu faire pour allumer la flamme de l'amour...

On n'en reste pas là. L'amour a ses périodes de curiosité. Il faut revivre l'aimée, l'étudier, la comprendre, connaître ses gouts, et reconnaître ses défauts, car il y a toujours. A savoir si les qualités dépassent les défauts. Et, quand on aime, même les défauts ont un certain cachet qui ne déplait pas.

On en vient à vouloir toucher. Ainsi, l'amour c'est un procédé graduel. De nos jours, les gens se démontent pour la femme à la première rencontre comme s'ils ne peuvent tenir debout autrement. Mais, dans l'ancien temps, quand la femme était gantée, au moins d'un point trop petit, on ne touchait que du bout des doigts, et pas trop fermement, de peur de heurter la main qui était toujours ménée...

Le premier contact de main à peau nue était toute une aventure. C'était peut-être un baiser masculin qui ne faisait qu'effleurer la main féminine, car on y allait délicatement dans ce temps-là.

Nous avons dit plus haut que l'amour est un don des dieux. Qu'il s'acceptent comme tel ceux qui en sont privilégiés, et qu'ils en remercient Dieu.

C'était comme demander la permission de déposer la main aux lèvres. Comme les jeunes manquent de délices avec leur façon d'agir avec familiarité qui ne s'achevait, autre temps, que petit à petit, et donnait le temps d'être savourez avant de procéder à une autre étape:

Parlons donc du baiser, si nécessaire au amour. C'est la première communion entre les deux qui s'aiment et c'est aussi un moment d'amour aussi. On peut vivre, en amour, sans baisers répétés-un baiser est si effervescent qu'il faut si peu faire pour allumer la flamme de l'amour...

IN GRATITUDE

I am proud to testify to the valuable support given me by the above-named committee, and by many others who assisted on a more-or-less temporary basis. No one person alone can accomplish, without help, all that can and should be done to fittingly observe this important anniversary in our State's history.

If, by our joint efforts, we have been able to revive or instill pride in one's city, town, county, state and country, we will rest with satisfaction.

Our thanks go to the Couture family for permitting this special edition of a newspaper that formed so intimate a part of their family life, to the committee headed by Adelard Janelle which worked toward the financial success of this enterprise, and to Miss Charlotte Michaud, Mrs. Anton E. Mainente and Ralph B. Skinner, whose talents and experience brought this souvenir-edition into existence.

Louis Jalbert, chairman of the
