LAME-BRAIN PARKERS

There seems to be a reluctance on the part of drivers when it comes to parking correctly. People insist upon using as much space as possible instead of being considerate of their fellow commuters.

There is nothing more disturbing than to arrive at school and have to waste many precious minutes searching for a parking spot. It's really disgusting to see single parking facilities unused by lank-brains who either don't know any better or just don't care.

Diagonal parking would do. Cross streets would have to be closed to automobiles. There would be no need for using the opposite side of Palermo street. This would promote better relations with the residents who live on Palermo St.

We actually don't have a parking problem but we try damn hard to make one for ourselves.
