CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION

You all remember the overgrown birthday card for Orono and the hundred brightly burning birthday candles. With the Centennial celebration going until Feb. 1966, the Centennial Committee is still going strong. The Circle K Clubs at Portland and Orono are selling centennial trees on a nationwide scale. These balsam fir cost $5 and it has been reported that Johnny Carson is now the proud owner of a Maine fir tree. Anyone interested in having his own forest is asked to see a Circle K member. A series of pictures by the WCSH artist, Arthur Hahn, will go on sale around Maine Day. These five 11 by 14 inch scenes of the Orono and Portland campuses are $3 a set. The committee's goal is one million which goes into a Centennial Fund used for scholarships.

On Maine Day the committee is planning a float, a replica of the new building, for the parade at Orono. Also, in Portland stores there will be window displays of the University.

New ideas and all kinds of help are needed for these projects. So, contact Judy DeRocher, Gary Curtis, Bob Silva, Miss Fernald, Dr. Cole, or Mr. Van Amburg.

The bubble burst for the Humpers as the Faculty Flabs bested them in the featured game of two weeks past. The Flabs led by as much as eighteen points and held a comfortable lead throughout the last three periods. The Humpers found themselves down ten points at the conclusion.

Other results of the week:
- Moneymakers (Abbott) 87 over DDV (DeTore) 28
- Junkies (Coleman) 69 over Judges (Hazard) 52
- Frosh (Pendexter) 53 over Rolling Stones (Lebreque) 48
- Unquenchables (Eastman, Turkington) 66 over Tee Holes (Cushman) 61

As usual, W. Callendar of the Flabs cleared the boards and loaded the net, as he was the individual standout in this game. D. Sturgeon and Callendar repeatedly took the ball away from the Humpers E. Gorham. It was embarrassing even to those watching, since it was obvious that the pair had much experience in the double teaming tactic. Too bad Gorham couldn’t have thought as fast as he did in the state legislature. B. Brownell threw one of the nicest behind-the-back passes I have ever seen. He was driving for the basket but saw Callendar blocking his path, so he whipped the ball to J. Cimino in the corner. Cimino grabbed it and drove the baseline for an easy layup leaving Callendar flatfooted. P. Kendall of the Flabs made a nice give and go, receiving the ball back for a layup. He even surprised himself. J. Sparrow and J. Cimino could not handle the Flabs terrible threesome. The Faculty can be outrebounded by resorting to their own tactics. Give them back just what they’re dishin' out without appealing each push to the referee. This game is decided off the backboard.

Some intramural observations: why doesn’t E. Gorham of the Humpers stay under the basket rebounding rather than trying to dribble the ball up… Believe it or not our mistake-free athletic director had a technical foul called on him. Seems he didn’t report to the scorekeeper. For shame… D. Sturgeon tips you off when he’s going to pass or shoot… A. Gioibi of the Moneymakers is setting the league afire with his speed and shooting… Cote of the Tee-Holes is one of the best at grabbing arms and getting away with it… The Judges have been found guilty of an unorganized attack… Tee-Holes came close to beating the Unquenchables.

The intramural game of the week is Friday’s clash between the Moneymakers and the Unquenchables. The Moneymakers have not been defeated in five games and the Unquenchables have lost only once. Look for this to be THE game of the season.
