About the Playwright

David Cohen, a native Bostonian, is a playwright, actor, director, dramaturge, and educator. He was educated at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, University of Manchester, England, and received an M.F.A. in playwriting at Brandeis University under the supervision of noted author, Israel Horovitz.

While at Brandeis, two plays—Tanglewood and Friends Indeed!—were performed off-off Broadway at the Cubiculo Theatre. After graduation, he moved to New York as a staff writer for CBS’s “Bicentennial Minutes” and at age 23 was commissioned to write Piaf—A Remembrance. The musical opened at Broadway’s Playhouse Theatre on Valentine’s Day 1977.

Highlights of his subsequent work include Where Credit is Due (with music by Glenn Smith—Picollo Spolletto Festival), the PBS documentary “The Incredible Dream” (narrated by Ed Asner) and three feature screenplays (including Paramount’s Friday the 13th: A New Beginning with M. Kitrosser).

Cohen has been associated with the Provincetown Playhouse, Spolletto Festival, Champlain Shakespeare Festival, Theatre-in-the-Works, Paramount Pictures, and CBS Television. He has received fellowships from the Virginia Center for the Creative Arts, the Millay Colony for the Arts, and the Wurlitzer Foundation of New Mexico. Baby Grand was a finalist for the Massachusetts Playwriting Fellowship and was awarded the Wabash College Playwriting Prize.
About the Cast

P. Michael Bourgoin (Fishman) has performed in major roles in several area theaters including the Portland Players, the Town Players, and the Russell Square Summer Theatre, and directs for the Biddeford City Theatre. Mike is the theatre director at Bonney Eagle High School.

Sean Casement (Sam) is a freshman theatre major here at the University of Southern Maine. He comes to the Russell Square Players with extensive high school acting credits, including being named to the All Festival Cast three years in a row at the Maine State One-Act Play Festival. In addition to drama, Sean enjoys karate, skiing, and music. This is his RSP debut.

Robert McGurn (Pep) is a teacher of English at Bonney Eagle High School in Buxton, on sabbatical leave to the University of Southern Maine to earn a B.A. degree in theatre. Long active in the Buxton Town Players, he has appeared there in several shows, most recently as Father Rivard in The Runner Stumbles.

Morgan Shepard (Delmadean) is an English major here at the University of Southern Maine where she also works as the assistant editor of the Free Press. Morgan has gained much acting experience through her work with the Theatre Project in Brunswick and in community theatre. USM audiences will remember her performance last spring as Elizabeth Calder in the Russell Square Players Association production of 1959 Pink Thunderbird.
