MAYORALTY ELECTIONS
by Sonya

Were you heart-broken because you were too young to vote in the February 20 election? Were there tears on your pillow because you hadn't the chance to decide such a popular issue? TAKE HEART!

Another earth-shaking topic is being decided this week and everyone can put their X in the little box and feel a little prouder of our great democracy. Don't you sort of hear the band a'playin' an old Phil Souza march, and doncha see Old Glory a'wavin' in that breeze? Can't you smell that apple pie a'cookin' and can't you see mom a'waitin' at the gate? Oh beeyouteeful for spacious —— forgive me, I'm getting a little carried away — but if you only knew how I crawled through the Iron Curtain in my best bikini to get here to this great land of the secret ballot — and that barbed wire smarts! -- after all those stitches and iodine and Band-Aid Plastic Strips — to see you not taking full advantage of that which I turned my skin to ribbons for — VOTE! VOTE! VOTE!

Vote for the mayor of this institution!!

To the editor:

Last Saturday the class presidents and representatives from Orono met with their counterparts on the Portland campus. Mr. Arthur Mayo, assistant dean of men at Orono, and Mr. George Van Amburg, director of student activities at Portland, were also included in this group.

After lunch, which was provided by the Portland branch of the University, the group met in the student lounge of LEB. The main issue revolved around the introduction of an Interclass Co-ordinating Council on the Portland campus. Other issues discussed were more student participation in student leadership, faculty chaparones, lack of communication and interaction among the three campuses, and social activities, among others.

The majority of these students from Orono had never been on the Portland Campus and were actually quite anxious to tour the surroundings. Contrary to the belief of many students that one should judge and downgrade the existing facilities, I emphasized those items which were of definite value and importance. The visiting students were impressed with the library facilities, the proposed expansion, and the city atmosphere. But these are material values and have negative importance when compared to what the facilities are producing—namely, you students.

Visiting Orono students will remember the quality and maturity of the people on the campus far more than they will the facilities. The mor al of this boils down to the fact that, as students of this campus, should never apologize for the facilities, and should, instead, express our realization of a college education for what it is—that material values fall far below the development of the thinking, creative individual in this college atmosphere.

"The Teacher and School" is the subject of the second meeting of the course which will be held this Thursday night in room 235 of Bonney Hall. Speakers will be Mr. Burleigh Loeveitt, Extension agent for Cumberland County and Theodore S. Johnson, Submaster of Portland High School.

Those interested in registering for this course can apply at the Cooperative Extension Service.

STUDENT SENATE

The Senate meeting of April 5 was routine except for a few items of new business. The annual spring topic of Maine Day has been approached. Cousins Island and Ferry Beach are being looked into as possible sights.

The Constitution for the Inter-Collegiate Union has been approved, and copies have been sent to the other participating schools.
A corporate executive and an athletic coach have jobs which are almost synchronous in duties and responsibilities. Both are involved in making decisions; both are held responsible for these decisions; and both are under extreme pressure to produce. The corporate executive must produce profit and dividends to stockholders or he is soon replaced. The athletic coach must produce victories because, at least on the college level, the name of the game is WIN. There is no substitute for victory regardless of how lousy the team members, how poor the facilities, or how rigorous the schedule. For, without victory the contest is meaningless. It’s idiotic. It has no intrinsic value nor purpose. Therefore, I propose that corporate executives should be hired to assist athletic coaches.

For example, R. Sturgeon could teach the team members the fundamentals of the game, and, oh, someone like R. McNamara (the used to be President of Ford Motor Company either before or after the Edsel days). I can’t remember which. Anyway, you now know him as that Secretary of Defense who prophesied that we would be out of Viet Nam at the end of 1964, then 1965, now 1966. Oh well, the Edsel’s failure wasn’t so bad after all) could administer, co-ordinate and organize the team toward victorious goals.

Intramural Impressions: As of last Friday the only undefeated teams in the League were “Unquenchable-Humpers” who knocked off “Eagles” and “Poor Ernies”.... THE game of the year is shaping up to be the final contest on April 21 when “Unquenchable-Humpers” battle “Poor Ernies”

Short Putts: UMP’s D. Hall won both of his matches in the split of the golf doubleheader in Rhode Island last week. He defeated one of New England’s top golfers...Team member J. Jones also poked in a hole-in-one on a 175 yard hole in this doubleheader. He used an iron on the once-in-a-lifetime shot.

Deadline for signing up for wrestling has been extended to April 22.

INTRAUDRAL SCORES
Money-Men won by forfeit over the Roses
Batesmen 56 - Kenyon Kings 56
Holes in the Head by forfeit over Crunch Unquenchable-Humpers - Ed. 44 - Bates 5
Batesmen by forfeit over The Wolves
