2ND ANNUAL U M Pu S AWARDS

The time hasag sin rolled around for the U M Pu s to present its annual, long awaited, eagerly looked forward to awards. This year the committee spent many weary hours, locked in a soundproof room, debating heatedly to find the most worthy candidates. For those of you who won, congratulations! For those of you who didn’t, many came close, and there’s always next year. Believe me, the committee really had a rough time, for all of you deserve something. And so with no further ado and adon’ts we present:

Name dropper of the year award to Charles Langmaid Cragin III.

Super skier of the year award to Dexter Field.

Soloist of the year award to Specs Eaton.

It is customary after six months or so of business for a company to take inventory. While we make no claims to be a company, we would like to stop and look back to see what the school year, 65-66 has brought.

Of course, there have been many innovations and additions in curriculum, but this is to be expected with a growing campus. It is the other side of college life that we would like to look at now. In one year's time the additional activities and events that have come to our campus have been outstanding and very welcome. In keeping with the image of a university there has been something for everyone.

For the musically minded there has been a wide range from the G-Clefs and the Citations to Henri Honegger, the Carnegie Trio, Eutreppe Quartet and the University Singers. But and thanks for this tedious job of planning and arranging goes to Mr. L. Morrill Burke.

One of the high lights of the year, we think, has been the speeches by the gubernatorial candidates sponsored by the Young Republicans and Young Democrats.

The movie series brought to campus by Dr. Hansen, is something we would like to see continued next fall. AMS and the Business Club have also contributed to this interesting program, sponsoring the all-time favorites "Hamlet" and "Viet Nam Operations".

In the speech department, Dr. Hansen has contributed to the 'other side' of university life with the plays, "Hedda Gabler", and "Playboy of the Western World" to be given soon.

The program of poetry readings directed by Miss Epstein was also new and welcome. To each and everyone of these people we would like to say 'thank you for your contributions to UHP'.

This is the 27th issue of the U.Pus printed this year - 14th issue for this editor and we certainly have learned a lot between issue number thirteen and this one. Editing a paper is something like taking a required course: some days you don't feel especially firm or profound, but in the end you sit back and feel it was a worthwhile, exciting experience.

In looking through old back issues that date to the fall of 1964, we can see the changes that time has wrought. The U.Pus has become a little more organized in its layout and the stories have become a little more sophisticated. This would not have been possible with-out advice and help from faculty and staff and we'd like to give credit and thanks to them all.

Thanks to: Bryant Jones, our advisor, whose advice and encouragement was invaluable, and who has had to put up with an immeasurable amount of grief and confusion, but throughout it all remained fairly calm and cheerful; to Mr. Van Aurburg, who suffered through the confusion of a Tuesday afternoon and night of getting out the paper and getting it together; to Mr. Hansen, the second floor office secretary, who has assisted us in printing the U.Pus; to Frank Tordoff who as editor-in-chief listened to all our concerns and groans cheerfully, and offered support and encouragement when it was needed.

And to the U.Pus staff who willingly worked and listened to all the complaints thanks to: our assistant editors Judy O'Toole and Jean Scanlan, who we couldn't have gotten along without. Judy, who never cesses to amaze us as Sonja, has assed a sparkling quality that can never be replaced. Jean has been the gal Friday, the jack of all trades of the staff and has handled everything from news stories and art critiques to editing the U.Pus; to Walt Abbott, our opinionated sports columnist, who never missed a deadline; to Sally Butterworth, who has rounded up the activities on campus and put them in readable calendar form; to Kathie Durgin, who always pulled through with last minute assignments; to Sue Gard who spent hours in the Student Senate meetings and then condensed the minutes into interesting paragraphs; to Gene Berg, a relatively new member to the staff, but as dependable as "death and taxes"; to Judy O'dham, our pinch hitter, who helped out when things got busier than usual; to Sue Fiske and Janie Jacobs, our typists, who spent many long hourson Tuesdays over their typewriters, correcting our misspellings and then listening to the complaints the rest of the week.

To them all the U.Pus is deeply indebted and thanks them for jobs well done.

INSIDE SPORTS
With Walt Abbott

Last Saturday UMP's track team was overwhelmed by Nichols College while the baseball team was sweeping a doubleheader from Naeson. Some individual UMP heroes were provided by Eaton, Feury, and J. Burner.

The baseball squad dropped a game last Thursday due to errors. Lapp pitched a good game against the victorious St. Francis team but lost it on teammates errors and their inability to hit in the clutch.

In the boxing finals last week Lynch took the lightweight crown via a TKO victory over Peters in a relatively dull fight. Then in the welterweight division, Emerson danced around the ring until Hayes pulled a muscle in his side for a TKO decision in the first round. The fighting began to pick up however in the middle weight division when Amorose wrestled Blanchard around the ring. Although knocked down, Amorose managed to land a few solid blows and was generally aggressive enough to come away with the decision. Then in the light heavyweight division Christie wisely circled right and managed to elude the left hand of Butts for a decision. In the final, Eastman and Cushan fought to a draw, but Eastman slugged his way to a victory in the extra round.

These boxing matches proved to be quite popular with the spectators. In fact, these matches had larger crowds than many organized, varsity athletic events. For that matter most of the speeches, discussions, and debates around campus don't even pull a nominal percentage of the spectators at the boxing matches. This is indeed a sad state of affairs. Instead of progressing, we are regressing and, in the process, are sacrificing values for satisfaction.
