Dear Sumner:

Good morning!

No special news this morning other than that I think you would like to know the local news and so I am arranging to have the Press Herald sent to you.

Because I plan to write to you every day, even if it is only to say just hello, I am writing you before I get started on the work in the office. Obviously your lonesomeness must have begun to wear off and soon you will be thinking in terms of serving as first aide to General MacArthur.

Affectionately,
