Dear Sumner:

Good Morning!

There is nothing else to write about, for things are running smoothly and nothing unusual is happening, I make inquiry concerning your postage. When a soldier sends mail in the regular way there is no postage and I am wondering whether air mail requires the additional three cents or the total of six cents. This is a very important financial problem which requires attention. My frugal habits and sense of economy compel me to make the inquiry.

Mother is in Boston with Helen but I am expecting her back either this afternoon or tomorrow. No doubt she will write you from there.

Keep in good cheer. Are you straightening out so that you will walk erect and without a slouch?

Affectionately,
