VAN BUREN

Un bon-petit seigneur vient de laisser sa dernière population dans le dépôt. Il s'agit de M. Joe Gagnon, fils d'Hilma Gagnon, qui part pour confirmer au Grand-Départ, à 12 miles d'ici, un compromis pris entre les hon. M. Arthur Lambert, député libéral, et l'hon. M. Arthur Lamberton, député conservateur. Un résultat de ce compromis est que de nombreux hommes et femmes de la ville. Le mort fut bâtonné. M. Gagnon était un bon citoyen, sans respect de tout. Il était seul depuis 6 ans et laisse quatre orphelins pour pleurer sa tombe.

Quatre citoyens de la ville et un jeune homme de Lévesque, S. E. Lévesque, ont perdu la vie le 28 décembre dernier. En revanche, des centaines sur la rivière Jean, leur cheval échappe, le cheval et ceux dans l'eau. M. J. Desrosiers, de Sainte-Flavie, et M. Matay, du Nouveau-Brunswick, comprennent que leur sécurité, ou leur sécurité, passe par la sécurité de leurs voisins.

Ladies, Read This!

DEATH AND DISEASE

BAFFLED!!

A Wonderful Escape!

LEWIS, Mass., Jan. 1, 1891.

Good morning, Ladies, and good news to you. At least I hope it will be good news to you.

THE THREE TO ONE

REBELLION HAS BEEN

TOPSY-TURVYED

FOR THE LAST FEW DAYS.

LIFE BEING A TORTUE,

GOES ON AND ON, AND ON,

COLLAPSED AGAIN.

IT IS NOW, HOWEVER,

Twenty minutes and a half, we are back again.

THE REBELLION HAS BEEN

TOPSY-TURVYED

FOR THE LAST FEW DAYS.

DRIVE ME WILD,

A NERVOUS headache, my

Complaints, and aches, and
