Other Biographical Info

From www.mainecef.org:

Over the years she has devoted a great deal of her time to Maine's nonprofit sector by serving on the boards of organizations ranging from Hurricane Island Outward Bound to Maine Medical Center to the University of Maine System, where she recently stepped down as chair. She was elected Chair of the Maine Community Foundation board of directors in June.

A Maine native, born in Bath, Sally graduated from the University of Maine with a degree in chemistry, which she quickly put to use by working as a biology and chemistry teacher. After leaving teaching, she made a commitment to serve the community by volunteering in the nonprofit sector.

"The place I call community is not a place I pass through, it's a part of me," adds Sally. "I believe we are placed on earth to learn from and care for each other, and the community we create together is worthy of our attention."

In addition to her board work, Sally is an avid golfer, scuba diver and mountaineer, who has climbed, among other mountains, Anapurna and Mt. Kilimanjaro as well as peaks closer to home. Later this year, she will travel to Nepal for a month to climb its third highest mountain, Kanchenjunga. The group she is climbing with will be accompanied by the son of the Sherpa who summited Everest with Sir Edmund Hillary.

Description of the Papers

The material consists of remarks, talks and speeches, testimony and other public and private utterances during the ten-year period of Ms. Vamvakias' membership on the University of Maine System Board of Trustees including the last four years as Chair of the Board. These are primarily hand-written drafts or edited typescripts of talks to student and alumni groups, testimony before several Maine State Government Committees, Commencement remarks, ground-breaking and dedication observations. These papers are about the status, development, funding and priorities of programs of the University Maine System. Some of the writings are personnel appreciations including but not limited to: Michael Eaton, Raymond Fogler, Frederick Hutchinson, Bennett Katz, Dale Lick, Elizabeth B. Noyce and Robert Woodbury. The documents are essentially official in nature, but Ms. Vamvakias' early life, education, and travel experiences are briefly alluded to in a 1998 talk to UMA student leadership.
