July 11 Nina Mollicone

What Counselors Need to Know About Us

Nina Mollicone, former nurse turned counselor, will share results of her recent research project "What Counselors-in-Training Need to Know to Work Effectively with People Who are Lesbian and Gay." This study is part of Nina's effort to help counselors, teachers, nurses & other professionals understand the issues and needs of clients and students who are l/b/g/t. Research participants were USM graduate students and faculty members, and local mental health providers who work with lesbians and gays. The audience will be encouraged to share their ideas about making counseling of our community members more effective.

July 25 - Peter Callnan: Money

Do you find money useful or confusing or both? Would you like to have more control of your money and have a better financial plan? Peter Callnan will give us advice on how gay men and women can structure their finances. There are significant financial planning considerations that affect gay men and women. Peter is a CPA and the author of the financial advice column for Community Pride Reporter "Money Matters". He has been advising gay men and women on financial matters for years. Bring your questions, Peter can help you have a future with a better financial plan.

August 22 - Tony McCann: Coming Out Stories

One of the experiences that most gay men and women have in common is the process of telling other people that they are gay, lesbian, bisexual or transgendered. When we get together, sharing these experiences is a way that we connect with each other. Come listen to the stories of our members. Some will be happy, some funny, some sad, some angry and some will be all of these. Bring your own story to share. Tony McCann will guide us through this memorable evening.

September 12 - Tom Cathcart

Taking A Stand Against Discrimination

How does a religious organization wrestle with issues of discrimination? What do you do when your regional association tries to kick out of your church? Hear Tom Cathcart describe the process Immanuel Baptist Church followed, how they took a stand against discrimination, and what happened next! A truly dramatic story.
