Class Ode

Tune: "Materna"

*Beneath the pines on Normal Hill,
We've passed our student days.
Their wind tossed branches wave adieu
And cheer our untried ways.
O classmates, loyal, tried, and true,
Take courage fine and great
From those old pines that sheltered us,--
The class of twenty-eight!*

*Their tops are gilded by the dawn
That makes our future glow;
The blue of northern skies smiles through
Their arms, on us below;
They whisper to our willing ears
Of duties that await
The brawn, the mind, the heart, the soul
Of nineteen twenty-eight!*

*What though the road be steep and rough?
We walk life's broad highways:
Our goal is righteousness and truth,
More wisdom day by day.
So let the pine trees' blessing fall
On duties small or great;
Let nothing daunt our courage fine,
O class of twenty-eight!*

*Now evening shades are deepening,
The setting sun's red ray
Is kindling on the tallest pine
A beacon on the way:-
So shall our lives a radiance cast
Whatever fortune wait;
So shall come true the best ideals
Of nineteen twenty-eight!*
