RAYMOND S. OAKES

Dedication

The love and labor of many people have contributed to the building of Portland Junior College. It is not possible for The Stag to do honor to all who deserve it.

We of the current senior class wish to honor a man to whom we feel especially indebted. It was through his initiative and tact that the most desirable college site in Portland was acquired for a permanent campus. His influence and skill in negotiation were indispensable in the difficult business of acquiring surplus government buildings suitable for college use and transferring them to the campus. His statewide influence was chiefly responsible for the grant of state funds for converting the Deering Stable into auditorium and student union.

In acknowledgement of these services, freely given out of love for the cause, and in appreciation of his constant and continuing interest in the welfare of the college, the class of 1950 dedicates this issue of The Stag to Raymond S. Oakes, President of the Board of Directors.

Dean's Message

Today we look out upon a troubled world, vexed with tremendous tensions, fearful before revelations of immeasurable power, uncertain of the future.

Such conditions distress us all and especially those whose primary objectives in life are freedom from annoyance and a sense of security. Yet it is not necessarily an evil for the human spirit to be disquieted.

As we have studied the progress of the human race we have noted the occurrence of critical periods of history in which great issues were at stake that challenged the minds and hearts and wills of men.

It seems evident that we are now living in such a period of history, a period that may prove more significant to the future of all the peoples of the earth than any that has preceded.

If this be true, it is a glorious privilege to live in this time of historic challenges.

Do we believe it? Our lives will give the answer.

The Class of 1950

Nineteen Hundred and Fifty marked another successful chapter in the lives of the outstanding members of the senior class who will undertake graduation from college this coming June.

The senior class of Portland Junior College can well look back over a two year period, and bring to mind many unforgetful experiences that will forever live unsurpassed in their more than adequately educated minds. The several dissertations on the preparation of man going into a competitive world that were ably handed down to us by our noteworthy instructors will never go unheeded after our own individual minds have digested their importance. We shall never forget the friends we have made, or the experiences that we have witnessed throughout our course of study on the campus.

The student council has gained for the class of nineteen fifty more than just prestige; it has given the class the right to say that we were part of the participation that has already started to give Portland Junior College her ever increasing distinction. We feel that the experienced and capable men that represent us on this all important student government have led the remainder of the council to better understand the importance of a strong student ability in helping the administration staff and the Dean to see the student's point of view.

The senior class gift to the college is at the time of publication still undecided, but the senior class gift will be something that will bring our class to mind in future years, as well as to add to the beauty and utility of the school. We take pride in the fact that it was not something that was chosen on the spur of the moment, but several things, all useful, that are being given careful consideration.

Yes, the class of nineteen hundred and fifty has added to the college in many ways. We have been represented in the field of sports, social activities, publications, clubs, excursions, and last, but by far not least in the actual classes that we attended throughout every school day. For as any of the faculty will tell us in an unguarded moment, and sometimes otherwise, we have all done, in different capacities, naturally, a great deal to add to their own intellect as well as that of our fellow classmates and students. Why? . . . Because we were members of an organization that is for us one hundred percent. Let us all go our different ways after college with the express intent of someday returning to show our deepest gratitude to those who have made learning a joy instead of a task here at P. J. C.

Freshman Class History

This year the freshman class persevered through three days of official welcome and exams, and then shouldered their packs ready to climb up the mountain of knowledge. With the trail blazed by alumni and upper classmen, and with the Dean and faculty as guides, we felt confident we too might someday view the panorama of life from the top through college binoculars.

Almost immediately the class made their power (a 58 percent of the total enrollment) felt through the Student Council, the various clubs, and especially on the question of "beanies." They elected William Ladd, President; George Dunn, Vice President; Mervyn Taylor, Secretary-Treasurer; with representatives-at-large Calvin Andersen and Guy Hadlock. The campaigning was mild, but was highlighted by a Frosh rally and dance with speakers from the State Legislature. The class was well represented on the basketball squad as twelve men on the team were freshmen as well as both managers. Also the Frosh were right in there on the "Independents" team. There is a big turnout promised for the baseball team.

The freshmen claim their share of the "brains" in school. On the Dean's list at the half were: D. Anderson, G. Chandler, D. DiBiase, E. Feeney, D. Close, H. Furlong, V. Kelley, and R. Roy.

Especially active on the campus were: Marsh, Taylor, Outing Club; Levine, Sullivan, Glee Club; Langlois and Stinchfield, Dramatic Club; Sprague, French Club; Levy, Scales, I.R.C.; and Edwards, Scales, Hadlock, Mogul, Mason, Barter, and Noble, News, Stag or both; Levy, Noble, and Mason, Longhair Club.

During the first semester Bill Ladd and Cal Andersen had to resign because of other duties. George Dunn was moved up to President, and Norman Mogul was elected to fill the Council vacancy with Warren Noble being elected as the new Vice-President.

This year, perhaps our first experience with collegiate living, has proven a full and eventful one with each one of us enriched through the passing.

PRE - COLLEGE

The Pre-College Division

Although the number of pre-college students is in the minority at P. J. C., the class outweighs this lack by its strength in all activities. We all enjoy the many clubs that make for the fine college atmosphere of friendliness and cooperation. The class is represented by three of its members on the Student Council. A body which in itself is symbolic of the equality P. J. C. advocates. We all take advantage of the homelike atmosphere of the "CAF" which serves tasty food as well as savory arguments on flying saucers and the like.

Though many of us will move on to a senior college to continue our studies, we shall be mindful of the fine traditions and friendships we experienced at good old P. J. C.

The Stag 1950

For the third consecutive year, the Stag, under the fiery editorship of Roger Soucy, continued its publication. The unofficial motto of the Stag members this year, was, "The best yet," and with all the hard work that has gone into it, we have the finest year book to date. The boys really worked hard this year, and deserve a lot of credit. They have provided the students with a portfolio of pleasant memories that they may carry with them forever. Many more pictures of an informal nature were added to the yearbook this year in order to give all of the students a chance to contribute photographically to its success. Besides Editor-in-Chief Soucy, much credit should be extended to the various other editors, who are Philip Rocheleau, Richard Chandler, Edward Madden, Herbert Ring, Alfred Porrell, Peter Williams, Leon Clough, without whose tireless efforts the "Stag" would not have been produced and distributed on time.

International Relations Club

The International Relations Club began its third year of activities with Dr. Lathrop as faculty advisor. The club was a little late in getting organized this year, but once it did, it progressed rapidly. The aim of the club is to try and get students interested in things that are going on in the world, so that they may have a better understanding of contemporary thinking. The officers this year were elected at one of their later meetings; and after they had given more students a chance to become interested in its functions. They were Pete Williams, President, Herb Ring, Secretary-Treasurer, Al Levine, Executive Council.

This year, besides having an opportunity to hear several interesting speakers, the club elected the following members to attend the International Relations Conference at the University of New Hampshire: Bob Scales, Pete Williams, Al Levine, Sam Levy, and Guy Hadlock.

Pete Williams says that he feels the club made many invaluable contacts through the club, and carried on correspondence with members from other clubs.

The Outing Club

This was the Outing Club's most successful year. The Club's membership increased twice that of last year. Mr. Alfred Clarke, faculty advisor, was responsible for making the club such a success. He was aided by the Club officers; Steve Marsh, President; Herb Cushing, Vice President; Dick Chandler, Secretary; Bob Weeks, Treasurer.

The Outing Club made a trip to the Dartmouth Outing Club's Ravine Camp at Mount Mooselauke, N. H. Twenty members made this trip.

A ski slope was developed on Rattlesnake Mountain, Casco, Maine. Plans have been made to build a cabin, near the slope, next year.

A combined camping and canoe trip was made in the spring. This was one of the longest trips that the Outing Club has made to date. The trip was made to the Mystic Lakes region in the Northwest section of Maine. Four canoes were propelled some 45 miles over this region. The trip was quite an experience in that it covered a study in primitive transportation, a study in nature, and last, but not least, a real study in the methods of living close to Mother Earth.

The Dramatic Club

This year for the second consecutive year, the Dramatic Club of Portland Junior College continued its existence with unusual success. The club really started off on the right foot this year by "getting underway" early, and electing the following men, officers: Arnie Kuvent, President; Ed Madden, the old workhorse, Vice President; Herb Ring, Treasurer; and Dick Chandler, Secretary.

The first production presented by the club, was "Love Rides The Rails," or "Will The Mail Train Ride Tonite." The play was presented two consecutive nights at the Portland High School Auditorium, and was received with great enthusiasm by the good sized crowds. The second production of the year was "Rebecca."

One of the nicest things that could happen to a club, besides having Mr. Carl French for advisor, is to be presented with the honorary Drama Society Emblems, and that's what happened to eight of our Thespians. The following eight received their Delta Psi Omega Keys, for outstanding work: Arnie Kuvent and Ed Madden, who received gold keys; Herb Ring, Phil Rocheleau, Ed Pulsifer, Richard Chandler, Herb Andrews, and Gil McCue, all received silver keys.

Radio Club

The 1949-1950 RADIO CLUB under the leadership of the eminent John Jacques took to the WPOR air waves and created campus history in their excellent portrayals of college activities.

That club was equally divided into three groups, each of which developed interesting dissertations and debates on their respective subjects. The three groups fall under the titles of "The Battle of the Books," "Previews and Reviews of Local Films," and "The Record Review."

Each Wednesday night at 10:30 P.M. a familiar voice came through the wireless to introduce certain listeners to a classmate, a boy friend, a son, and in some cases a father, all of whom invariably had an interesting topic of discussion. On the other hand, concrete arguments prevailed.

The greatest disappointment concerning the club was that they were able to enlighten their listeners on current subjects for only half of the school year.

The Student Council

Nominated under a new procedure introduced by the faculty last fall, the Council was elected about the middle of October. The "Sovereigns" of the Student Body sat down one Monday early in November and dug into the pile of problems left over from last year and a mountain of new ones building up since Mountain Day. The Council found itself working "extra-legally" without a constitution and work was begun on that. A new constitution was ratified at a special assembly May 2.

The Council heeded the expressed needs of the students by obtaining a noon hot meal service in the "caf."

A series of Wednesday night socials were inaugurated at the beginning of the second semester with girls invited from W. J. C., YWCA, and the Nurses' Home. Each night was featured by music, dancing, cards and entertainment. Special nights included Splash Parties, Square Dances, Skits and come the warm outdoors, wienie roasts out at the fireplace built in the Pines by the Outing Club.

The Spring Swing was continued this year by the combined Councils of both P. J. C. and W. J. C. and was held at MacArthur Gymnasium this year with a King and Queen of the Spring Swing being chosen as usual.

The Council, along with Dean Bonney, sponsored a $50,000 Endowment

Plan with each new entering class paying two dollars per person toward it. This fund will be used for scholarships in the future years.

The Council also took care of the ring and pin situation, sponsored Mountain Day, Mountain Day Dance, a Spring Outing, and procured a juke box and clock for the cafeteria.

The Council is leaving a Constitution this year, hoping to set up the anatomy of a Student Government that will endure for many years and that we as members of the Council and Student Body can return to P. J. C. in the greying years of our life and view with an undying pride.

Portland Junior College News

After a stormy session, the members of the student council appointed Sherm Baker, a dark horse, to lead the Portland Junior College News. They couldn't have made a better choice; in the tradition of the fiery big city newspaper editor, who fights his way clear through tempestuous seas of criticism, Sherm carried on in a most admirable manner. With the help of a most capable staff, the paper performed its duties relentlessly. The aim of the News this year, was to have a bigger and better paper and they didn't let down the student body, for late in the year, they burst forth with an extra page of news. One of the reasons for the success of the paper, was that most of the boys were really interested in journalism, and were taking Mr. Woodbury's night course in journalism. Mr. Woodbury, who is editor of the Sunday Telegram, gave the boys guidance—Par Excellence.

The paper is financed partly by advertising and partly through the student activity fee. It has a large circulation among the students and alumni, numbering nearly 1,500. As is the practice of the News, next years leaders have been chosen as assistant editors, to be ready to carry on next Fall. Those chosen as Associate editors this year were Ray Edwards and Harold Kyte.

Les Confreres Gaulois

This is the fourth successful year for the Portland Junior College French Club. The club has had one of the finest reputations at Portland Junior College; it always has a very enthusiastic group of members, and when it comes to putting over a social, they are unexcelled. The club performs one of the most important functions of any club here at the school, namely, trying to establish friendly understanding with the French people. In times such as these, a club like the French club should be highly lauded. Mr. Clark, faculty advisor of the club, has done excellent work this year by bringing to the members and their guests, as many fine movies on French life and customs as were available. Through the intensely interested ingenuity of Mr. Clark, the members of the club really feel that they have come to know the French people personally. One of the nicest things about the French club, was the untiring efforts of all of its members to try and bring as many non members as they could garner to see these fine movies.

The officers selected for this year's club were: Bill Cousins, President, Dan Sullivan, Vice President, and Art Sprague, Secretary.

We think that the club has a record that next year's members will find hard to beat.

The Glee Club

Last year a group of students interested in harmonizing, organized Portland Junior's first official glee club; this year a few of the boys who were left over from last year's fine group decided to carry on. Result, for the second year in a row we have a fine glee club representing our school.

The boys meet weekly and sing four part arrangements for men's voices; the boys also presented pleasing programs at assembly.

Mr. Howard Stevens, director of the Portland Men's Singing Club acted as director along with the very capable and versatile Mr. Goff. A favorite selection of the group seemed to be the "Whiffenpoof Song" and last year's favorite "When Day is Done." Dean Bonney is an ardent admirer of the glee club, and whenever he comes upon them in practice he readily joins in.

We hope to see this grand group continue successfully this year, and again next year with, perhaps, a larger group. We know that if President Dan Sullivan has his way, the club will be giving any college strong competition.

The Long Hair Club

This fine and enthusiastic organization started its second year here at Portland Junior College with almost as many interested faculty members as students. Paul Nichols, the poet laureate of the campus, was chosen president, and he worked tirelessly to see that the club enjoyed a very successful school year. Chosen Secretary and Treasurer, was Bob Whiting. The club met weekly at the homes of the members and listened to classical records, and held many fine discussions concerning them. Many students thought this to be a very staid group, however, when reports leaked out about their seriousness of purpose, it was not long before they were besieged for membership. We are not sure, but we have heard rumors that even though the club was called the Long Hair Club, the faculty members belonging, let their hair down long enough to allow the students to call them by their first names. Mrs. Charlotte McCormack, according to the boys, was the favorite member; she worked unrelentingly to see that a spirit of conviviality pervaded the meetings.

Standing—Carl French, Faculty Advisor; Kenneth Giddinge, John Pettengill, Vernon Kelly, Paul Nichols.

The Student Review

The Student Review, one of the newest of school activities, is a literary magazine which publishes short stories, essays, poetry and other creative writing of the students. It differs from the P. J. C. News in that it carries none of the school news nor is it supported by advertisers.

The idea for this literary magazine in which the students could give vent to their inspirations, was conceived by Tol Young, and Hal Kyte; they are both freshmen. The first issue came forth from the press on January 27, and the magazine was officially recognized as a regular student activity in March. Mr. Carl French gave unstintingly and unselfishly of his time to this project. Mr. French is a man of no mean ability, and the assistance and guidance which he provided aided greatly to the notability of the Review.

Prospects for further success in coming years seems assured; there is no denying the fact that a need for such a paper is great. For as one perceives, there is much literary talent active around campus, fiercely desirous of getting their unrestrainable inspirations in print.

Basketball

Basketball

As the team took the floor for the first game this season, there were many new faces; only Vuskin "Bill" Amergian was left from last years fine club. The new men, for the most part, had never played before as a team but came along well, and P. J. C. ended up the season with a record of 11 wins and 9 defeats.

The Portland Junior College court men were at times sensational, but there were times when a year of playing together as a unit would have pulled ball games out of the fire. Coach Bicknell is hopeful, for nearly all the men will be coming back next season with a years experience, playing together as a team, under their belts. This season was a building year, but next season these Pre-College and Freshmen lads will provide stiff opposition for any team on the schedule.

Let's take a run down on the games. Portland Junior College started out with a bang, winning handily over Portland University by a score of 53-23. The scoring was fairly well divided with Speirs and Amergian the top scorers, with 10 and 9 points respectively. P. J. C. won the next two games, defeating New England College 74-51, and Laconia Business College 55-31. Lee, Amergian, Feeney, Speirs and MacVane all scored well in these games. The first loss came at the hands of Nichols Junior College by the close score of 38-34. Amergian was high man for P. J. C. with 12 points. The "Big Green" came back to the win column in the next game and trounced Hebron Academy to the tune of 62-45. Bridgton Academy followed Hebron in the loss column in the next game by the score 74-57.

P. J. C.'s next game was an exhibition contest played in the spacious confines of the Exposition Building. P. J. C. started well but faded at the three quarter mark. To enable Aceto's Atoms to win by the score of 58-39. This marked the first time in the history of basketball at Portland Junior College, that the team has played outside of scholastic competition, but it was for a good cause — The March of Dimes. Following this game P. J. C. started out on a long and disastrous road trip, losing to the University of Connecticut Frosh, Springfield Frosh, and the U. N. H. Frosh. The rest of the season was rather spasmodic with P. J. C. splitting two games with Northeastern Business College, winning over Portland University for the second time, losing to Colby College Frosh, winning over Nichols and avenging an earlier loss, defeating the Bowdoin Junior Varsity, losing to the Bates Frosh, Ricker Junior College, U. of M. Frosh, defeating Bridgton Academy for the second time, and losing the final game to Dean Academy.

Baseball 1949

Starting the season with but five hold-overs from last year — William Edes, catcher; Charles Amman, first base; Louis Waugh, converted last year from outfield to the mound; Andrew Lano, third base and pitcher; and Pierre Harnois, outfielder and pitcher — the Portland Junior College baseball team went on to win five out of its eight game schedule.

The Bicknellmen started out the season with a thrilling game against Nichols Junior College winning 9 to 8. Then the toughest game of the season, the first Maine Annex game, which went eleven innings only to be lost 11 to 10. Next the Connecticut Frosh took the long trek to Maine only to be sent back with an 18 to 2 loss. Then the club travelled to New England College of New Hampshire to garner their third win 7 to 6. William Edes will remember the next game, which was again with New England College. Edes, the two year backstop, was injured in the second inning and was out for the season, but the Stags went on to win with Edward Schultz backstopping, 12 to 10.

The Maine Annex and Nichols next came to the P. J. C. green to set the Stags back in two losses, 21 to 2 and 7 to 4, respectively.

Then the club grabbed the final game with Northeastern Business College, 15 to 7.

Beside the five two year men, there were Robert Ward, swap-off between second and third; Robert Orr, shortstop; Bernard Larson, left-field; Charles Crowell, center-field; Charles Churchill, pitcher-centerfield.

And Edward Schultz, catcher; William Amergian, pitcher- second baseman; Donald Cockburn, shortstop; Philip McCarthy, pitcher; and Ralph Roberts, right-fielder.

THERE IS A "DOWN EAST" way of doing things that is more than three centuries old and there is nothing secret about it:

Painstaking, careful, non-rushing methods.

Combine these elements with the finest of original raw materials and you have the secret of the quality and "home spun" flavor of Maine foods.

Nowhere is this principle more faithfully followed than in the Maine food industry. And nowhere in that industry is it exemplified more than in the plants of Burnham & Morrill Company.

In a broad sense Burnham & Morrill Company takes the fresh product of Maine's fertile fields and sparkling ocean waters and, with painstaking care and the "know how" of nearly 90 years of experience, it transforms these basic foodstuffs into good-eating delights for millions of humans.

Besides its Baked Beans and Brown Bread Burnham & Morrill Company has long been known for the excellence of quality and flavor of its ocean-fresh sea foods and Maine grown vegetables. Other specialty products include old fashioned Beef Stew, Mince Meat, Spaghetti, Welsh Rarebit and Maine Corn Relish.

The latest and best in quality control methods—plus the "Down East" knack of knowing how—and an efficiently functioning research division to maintain its high quality standards, insure Burnham & Morrill Company of a constant striving toward the goal of its founders—nothing short of perfection in food production.
