DEDICATION

Captain James A. Lewis

Warmly loved and deeply respected by the hundreds of UMP students who have sat under his instruction, Captain James A. Lewis has made of astronomy a fascinating subject whose presentation has been enriched by his years of experience as a navigator.

Captain Lewis was brought up within sight of salt water on the island of North Haven, where he was born on January 30, 1889, and the use of the stars in navigation became familiar to him from early childhood.

A Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Bowdoin in 1915, he has received further education at Harvard Law School and the University of Maine, in addition to his naval officer's training at Annapolis in 1918.

After his World War I service as an officer on the battleship U.S.S. New Jersey, he continued in the naval reserve between wars, serving on a variety of naval vessels during his periods of reserve duty. Recalled to active duty in 1940, he served for six years in World War II, after which he was retired in 1946 with the permanent rank of Captain USNR.

As an educator, Captain Lewis started his teaching career as principal of the grammar school at North Haven in 1913, although he was still an undergraduate at Bowdoin at that time. After World War I he served as head of the science department of Portland High School for nearly four years and as principal of Westbrook High School for six years.

He then became captain of the training vessel of Tabor Academy (now an Honor Naval School), teaching chemistry, mathematics, and nautical subjects from 1928 to 1940 and again, after his active duty in World War II, from 1946 to 1954.

Returning to the Portland area, where he had been stationed as Executive Officer for some time during World War II, Captain Lewis started teaching at our campus one year before the 1957 merger which established the University of Maine in Portland.

A loyal member of the American Legion, the Settlers' Club of Portland, the Fish Hawks' Club of Vinalhaven, and the Beta Theta Pi Fraternity of Bowdoin, Captain Lewis has earned the love and respect of all who know him.

A r t h u r C l e m e n t P u l l i n g

April 2, 1887 — September 28, 1963

When the University of Maine decided to re-establish its school of law in 1961, it was exceedingly fortunate in being able to engage the services of Arthur C. Pulling, who was then about to retire from the post of law librarian of Villanova University.

Dr. Pulling had had a most distinguished career, as law librarian of the University of Minnesota from 1912 to 1942 and director of the Harvard Law Library from 1943 to 1953.

In all three libraries that he directed before coming to Maine, Dr. Pulling had left his mark as a great builder. In the volume and quality of his acquisitions, he had become preeminent among law librarians.

Of the many fine qualities that distinguished Dr. Pulling, probably the most remarkable was his absolute devotion to duty. He worked incessantly, employing all his energy and skill to develop the library of whatever law school was fortunate enough to count him among the members of its faculty.

Though accustomed to managing great libraries with large staffs of assistants, when he came to Maine he threw himself at once in a highly personal way into the task of building, adapting his own life immediately to the needs of the new library.

The seventeen thousand volumes he had obtained by gift that had already arrived in Portland when he first reported for duty in August, 1962, were a harbinger of what we came to expect from his zeal and skill: during his off-duty hours in the spring and summer of 1962 he had arranged for those books — duplicates given by libraries and individuals throughout the United States — to be sent to the new law school.

Within a short six months after Dr. Pulling joined us, the collection of the University of Maine School of Law already far surpassed mere accreditation requirements.

Dr. Pulling's magnetism for books was the result, not only of his wide acquaintance among librarians and his untiring industry, but also of a quality of courtly charm that made a request from him hard to resist. His advancing years seemed to enhance rather than diminish that quality in him, his optimism and courage in the face of declining health evoking admiration on the part of all who know him.

It is unfortunate that Dr. Pulling died before he could share with the rest of us the triumph of the early provisional approval of the School of Law by the American Bar Association on February 17, 1964. He was with us long enough, however, to impress deeply upon us an understanding of the vital importance of a good library to the long-term growth and power of a law school, and we shall continue to go forward with the immense benefit of that understanding.

For Arthur Pulling's accomplishment in one year in Maine in establishing the law library of the University on a solid foundation, the University — especially the School of Law — and the legal profession in Maine will always be in his debt.

Edward S. Godfrey

Dean, School of Law

A D M I N I S T R A T I O N

Dr. Lloyd Hartman Elliott, who became President of the University of Maine in 1958, has played the leading role in the development of the Portland Campus. Under Dr. Elliott's presidency Payson Smith Hall has been opened, a four-year curriculum in business administration has been established, the graduate School of Law has become a part of the University of Maine, the Continuing Education Division has been organized, the faculty and library facilities have been greatly expanded, and another new building has been authorized to meet the needs of the 1,000 full-time students expected in the Undergraduate Division on the Portland Campus.

Dr. Henry Austin Peck, Vice-President for Academic Affairs of the University of Maine, is currently devoting substantial time and effort to insure that our new building will be ready for the surge of students expected in September 1965. Dr. Peck has worked closely with the UMP faculty, the architects, and other members of the University administration to meet the needs for a vastly expanded library, numerous faculty offices, seminar rooms, large classrooms, and a lecture hall of more than double the size of the third-floor lecture hall in the Payson Smith building.

Dean Edward S. Godfrey has developed a graduate School of Law which meets every professional accrediting standard. Located at 68 High Street, Portland, the School of Law possesses a carefully chosen professional faculty and a superb library of more than 30,000 volumes.

The Director of Undergraduate Studies, Mr. William L. Whiting, is the administrative head of the full-time undergraduate student body at the Portland Campus. Mr. Whiting sees that the quality of undergraduate education meets every standard set by Orono and that college life at UMP provides the full values of a university education.

▲ John M. Blake, Associate Director for Continuing Education, stands before a map indicating the location of the 21 centers at which the University offers evening or Saturday courses.

Almost 3,000 students from all 14 counties of Maine, together with a few from New Hampshire and New Brunswick, were enrolled in such courses during each semester this year.

◀ Walter P. Fridinger, Assistant Director of Continuing Education, is in charge of the CED program at the Portland Campus, where more than 1,250 individuals attend evening or Saturday classes each semester.

A large proportion of the juniors and seniors in the Day Division of UMP complete requirements for degrees by taking one or more evening or Saturday courses to supplement the curriculum available during the day.

LIBRARY STAFF PLAN FOR THE FUTURE

Under the direction of Miss Marjorie Duval, Head Librarian at UMP, our college library is meeting the needs of students enrolled in an increasing variety of day and evening courses.

Mr. Franklin Talbot, our Cataloguer, who is pictured at the left, and Miss Marian Shaw, our Catalog Consultant, work industriously behind the scenes so that students engaged in reference assignments may locate sources of material with maximum efficiency.

The picture below shows Mrs. Dorothy Craig, Mrs. Muriel Leighton, Miss Duval, and Miss Shaw processing books before they are placed in the stacks.

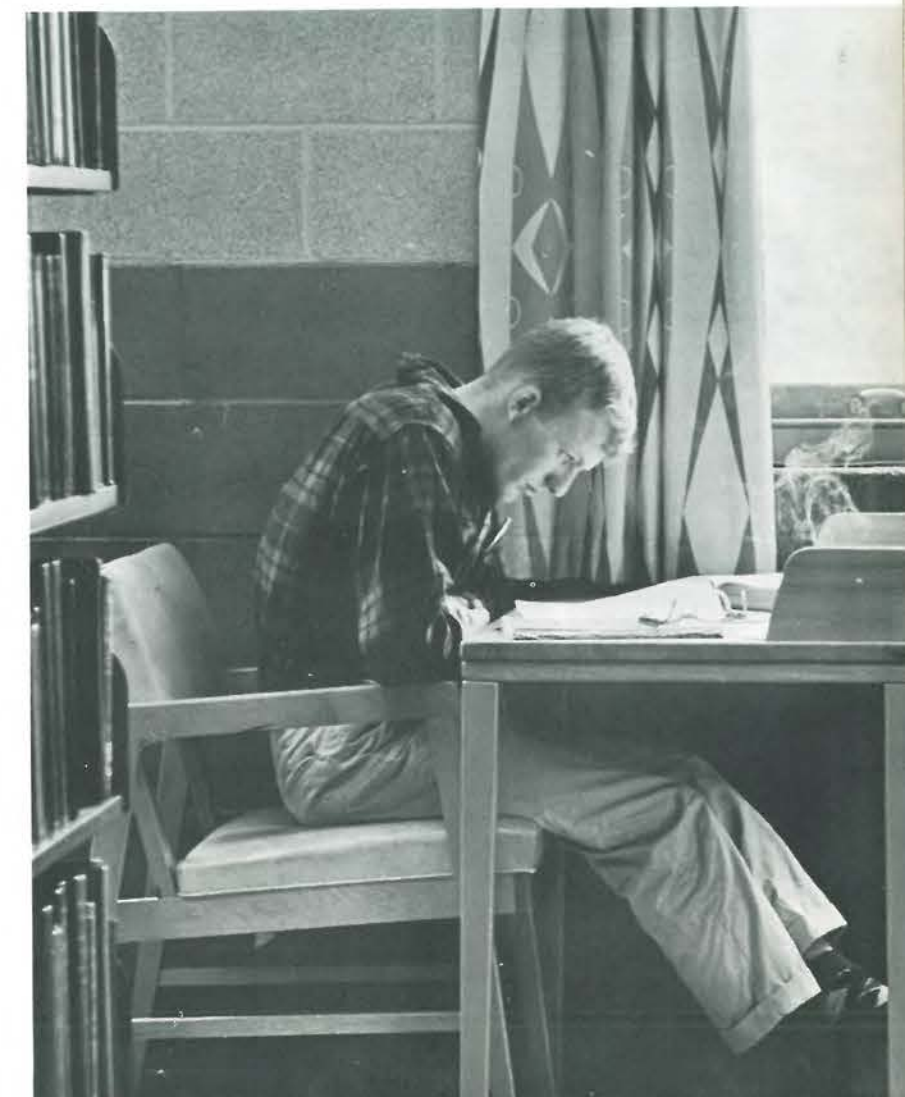

The UMP Library currently occupies the entire western end of the first floor of Payson Smith Hall, but it will soon move to a new building which will provide approximately six times as much space for books and study facilities.

Dr. Keyes D. Metcalf, who designed the Lamont Library at Harvard, has conferred with Dr. James C. MacCampbell of Orono and Miss Duval of UMP to make sure that our new library, whose construction is scheduled to start next summer, will embody the latest improvements in college library design.

Individual carrels, similar to the one shown at the lower right, will be provided in sufficient numbers so that students may work with undisturbed efficiency close to the particular books to which they need to refer.

Judy DeRocher checks references in the card files.

Harold Sonia studies in an individual carrel.

FRESHMAN ORIENTATION

Vice-President Peck welcomes the incoming students.

THE FIRST DAY . . . AND WHAT A DAY IT WAS!

UMP Freshmen
Receive Their Welcome
As College Opens
September 13, 1963

Once a freshman has a beanie, he is no longer a stranger, but a member of the school. As pictured on the left, the first stop for new students on Orientation Day is at the table where Mr. Jaques checks names off the list and dispenses beanies.

After this, the Sophomore Owls and Eagles welcome the new freshmen and make them feel thoroughly at home.

At the lower left, Eagle Peggy Horton hands Margo Thornton her badge, while some other freshmen girls study their booklets.

Student Council President Dave Steele also made a point of welcoming the new students, as pictured to the right.

It was a busy day, with an opening convocation addressed by Vice-President Peck, a lecture on how to take notes on college lectures, ably presented by Professor Kern, meetings with the Dean of Men and Dean of Women, skits by the Owls and Eagles, and the President's Reception, pictured on the next page.

Below: Marie Vincent, who studied at the Sorbonne last year, chats with Jeffrey McConnell.

There is something wonderful about shaking hands with Dr. Elliott, the president of the University.

IT IS A DAY THAT YOU DON'T FORGET TOO EASILY.

Luckily we are all from the State of Maine and understand these things.

Upper classmen were busy the first day too. It seems there are so many things to show the freshmen.

Even the Governor must practice.

AFTER THE SPLENDOR OF ARRIVING,
COMES THE PAGEANTRY OF THE YEAR.

Freshmen Week is over. Classes are well under way.
Good Luck, FRESHMAN, this is your year!

MOUNTAIN DAY

When the fall foliage is at its height, Mountain Day offers UMP students and faculty a day of informal outdoor sports and games, together with hiking on mountain trails, and a splendid cookout.

Mountain Day provides an opportunity for the freshmen to become well acquainted with the older students and the faculty members. It is a day to be treasured in memory.

The pictures on this page and the next, together with several other photos scattered in other parts of this book, show some of the UMP Mountain Day activities at Bradbury Mountain State Park on the second Sunday in October 1963.

Chief cooks and bottle washers

Too many cooks? I don't know, they weren't too bad. Were they?

Ever feel insignificant?

Once in each two years, UMP brings together editors of college newspapers and professional journalists from all over Maine for a day of interesting panel discussions and lectures on journalism.

At the left, Prof. Verne Edwards, chief editorial writer for the Detroit Free Press lectures on the problems of the editor.

At the right, student editors from various Maine colleges listen as Roger Snow of the Westbrook American and Ernest Chard of the Press Herald-Express-Telegram analyze the weaknesses and virtues of our UMP Campus newspaper.

Below, professionals and collegians listen to Edward Hudon of the U.S. Supreme Court Library speak on the problems of the freedom of the press.

The Chamber of Commerce of the U.S.A., in cooperation with the Maine State Chamber, played host to representatives from UMP, Bowdoin, Colby, Nason, St. Francis, and St. Joseph's at the Eastland Motor Hotel for a day-long meeting at which students were urged to pose group questions to a panel of economic experts and to participate in two-way discussions.

Problems of unemployment and technology, governmental supports and intervention, free enterprise, and the impact of the ECM on the American economy were discussed, the students often challenging the opinions of the speakers, who came from Washington, D.C., Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Massachusetts.

OUTDOOR FALL SPORTS

Touch football, soccer, and cross country running are the most popular fall sports at U.M.P.

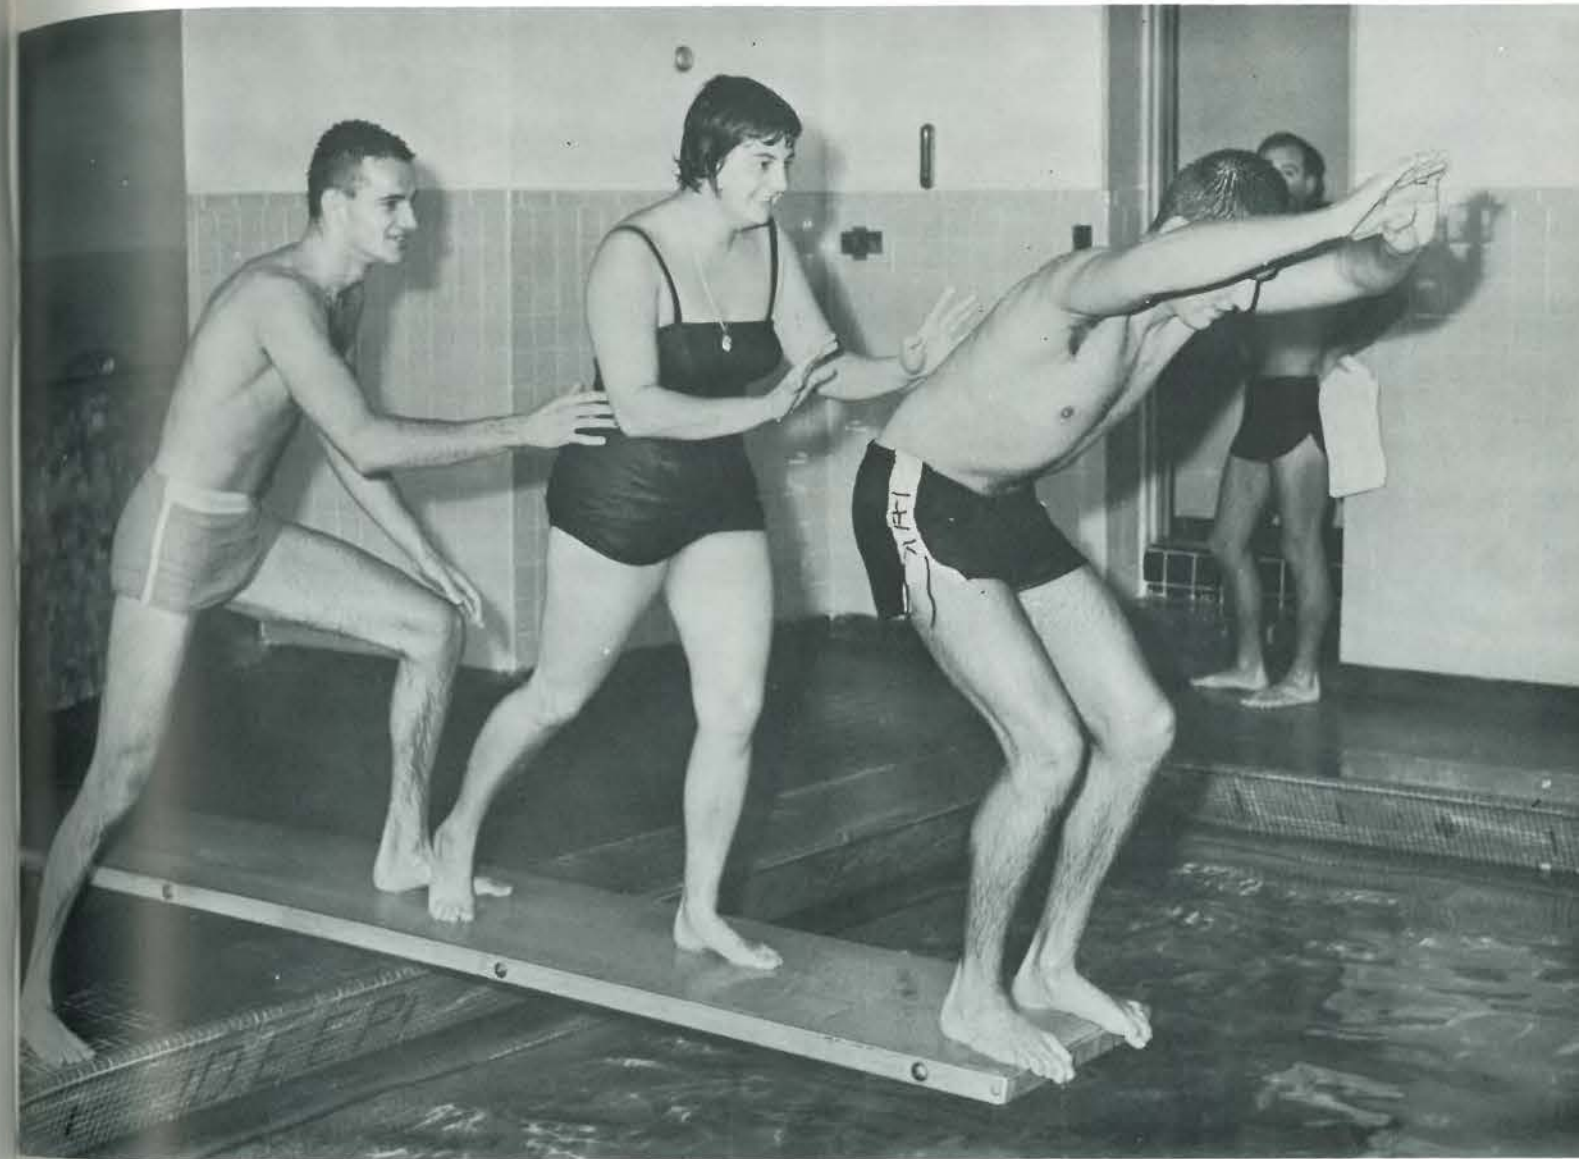

In the picture at the right, Chick Coleman is running well ahead of his competition.

The Cross Country Team pictures Coach Sturgeon, David Lowell, Mike Carey, Chick Coleman, Jeff Trecartin, and Larry Dyer. Other members of the team include John Beaudin and Keith Weatherbee, the manager.

THROUGHOUT THE YEAR—SWIMMING

WINTER ACTIVITIES

STEIN WEEKEND

CHRISTMAS PARTY

A gala Christmas Party, sponsored by the Owls and Eagles, opened Stein Weekend festivities on Friday afternoon, December 18.

The Eagles prepared sufficient sandwiches, cookies, and other goodies to satisfy even the hungriest freshman — let alone the hungriest faculty member!

Santa Hall distributed gifts to the faculty, including a live white rat for Mrs. Sanborn, a beribboned python for Mr. Kern, and an unmentionable ashtray for Mr. Kendall, as shown in the pictures on the opposite page.

That evening, Circle K sponsored a Christmas dance in the cafeteria.

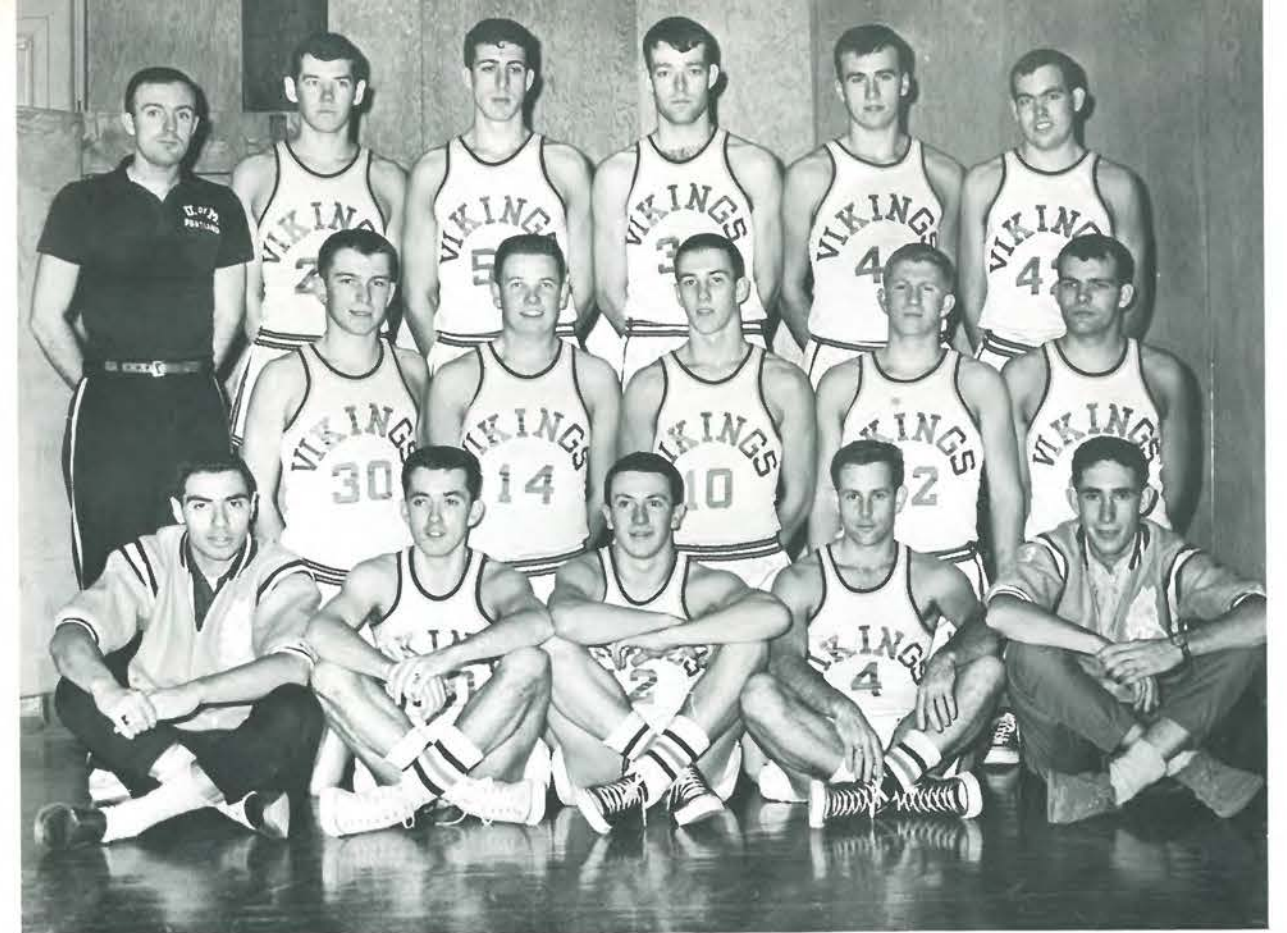

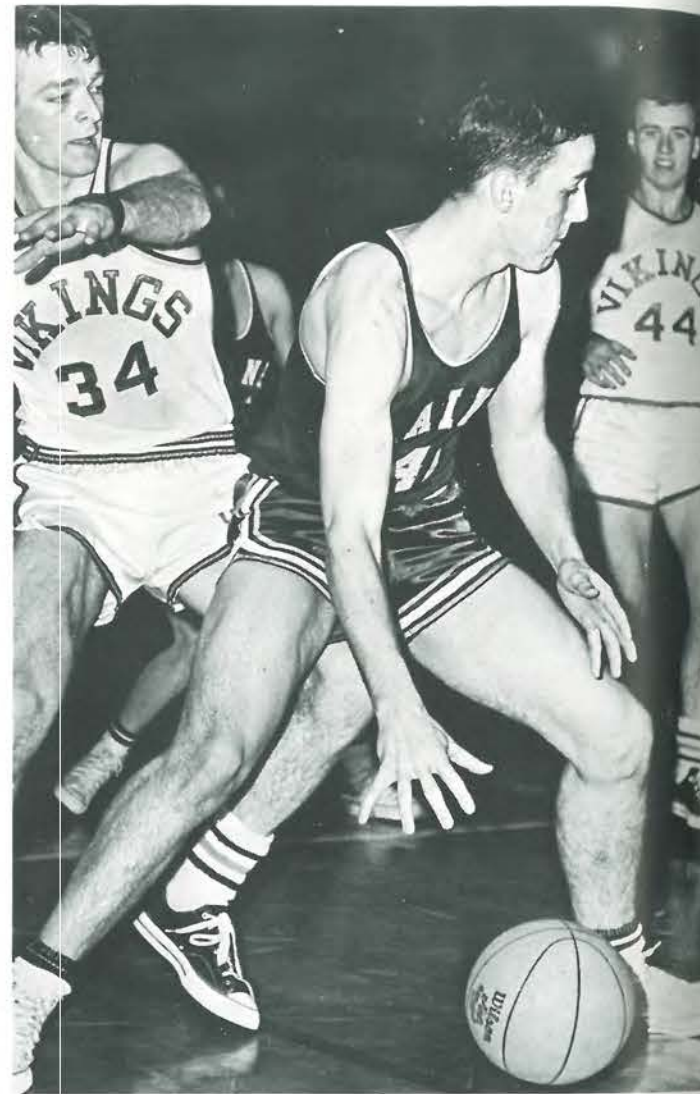

Saturday evening featured an exciting basketball game between the UMP Vikings and the Orono Bear Cubs, two pictures of which may be found on Page 64.

The game was followed by a very successful dance put on by the cheerleaders and open not only to UMP and Orono students but also to the vacationing students from many other colleges.

ROARING TWENTIES

Winter Carnival

Three evenings and two days of fun and frolic characterized the UMP Winter Carnival of 1964, which officially opened on Friday evening, February 28, with a Roaring Twenties costume dance in the gym. The Knightmen played music appropriate to the theme, there was a lively Charleston contest, and everybody turned out in appropriate costume, as shown in the picture to the right.

The carnival climaxed months of planning and days of frenzied activity. Clubs picked their candidates for the queen, groups toiled long hours erecting snow sculptures, committees toiled night after night preparing the decorations, and the Businessmen's Fraternity scored a marked success in raising money for their scholarship fund by putting on a spaghetti supper the evening before the carnival officially opened.

CARNIVAL CREATIVITY

A speak-easy of the 1920's, complete with bootleggers and their molls, was created for the Friday night festivities.

The snow sculpture, judged on Saturday morning, was equally nostalgic. First prize went to the Owls and Eagles for their touring car, roomy enough to hold Archie Giobbi, Bob Goode, and Frank Tordoff on the front seat, with Anita Nason, Eddie Moses, Peggy Martin, and Charlotte Adriance riding behind.

The Tech Boys created an almost-working model of a bootlegger's still, while the Frosh modeled the Victor Talking Machine with its dog, here pictured with Rick Souza, Paul Strout, and Rosalie Notis.

The AWS designed the MGM lion to guard the Student Union.

LEAP YEAR'S SEMI-FORMAL

How many coeds took advantage of the calendar to put the question to the boys, no one will ever know; but no better date could be imagined than Leap Year's Day, February 29, the night of the Winter Carnival semi-formal dance at the Eastland.

After the snow sculpture was judged in the morning, the girls racked up their annual victory over the male faculty at the basketball game at the gym. Refreshments and a hootenanny in the Student Union brought the forenoon activities to a close, bringing a welcome breather before the gala ball at the Eastland Motor Hotel in the evening.

Gazing over the colorful scene, Chuck Saunders, Janice Packem, Carol Clappison, and Rick Souza paused for a moment before joining the dancers.

Al Reali and his band provided the music, while Mr. and Mrs. Blake, Mr. and Mrs. Whiting, and Mr. and Mrs. Lempke acted as chaperons at this, the biggest dance of the UMP school year.

ART EXHIBIT

Spring is a time for the best in everyone to be seen. All the paintings on this page are works of the students and faculty. The paintings were held on exhibition for a few weeks to allow fellow students to enjoy local talent.

PROFESSIONAL ART EXHIBITS

This school year we have been very fortunate to have several visiting art shows here at U.M.P. Thanks to Miss Fernald, of the English department, and her deep interest in art, we have seen such works as those of Picasso and other leading modern artists.

GOLF TEAM

Oh now, Dick, don't look so bored.

SPRING SPORTS

Baseball always attracts the largest following of any of our spring sports, but golf, tennis, and cross country also arouse much enthusiasm on the part of their followers. Faculty members are very apt to join the students in informal games of golf and tennis.

ATHLETIC AWARDS BANQUET

Each spring we honor all the letter-winners for each sport and also the championship team in our intramural basketball tournament.

Each of five sports are represented by the award-winners above: John Littlefield, Cross Country; Walt Abbott, Basketball; Coach Sturgeon; Tom Trufant, Baseball; Bob Cantwell, Tennis; and Dale Moyikens, Golf.

Below: Coach Sturgeon gives some pointers to Dave Taton, Dave Morrill, John Tolan, and Steve Foster of the UMP Baseball team.

BASEBALL TEAM

STUDENT COUNCIL ELECTIONS

David W. Steele
Junior candidate

A little imagination . . .

Frank Blanchard
Sophomore candidate

Every spring the students at UMP hold their annual Student Council elections. They cast their ballots for the man they think will best act as president during the following Fall and Spring semesters. This year Dave Steele carried the elections.

- Council members elected this year were
- Vice-President Don Hoffman
 - Secretary Judy DeRocher
 - Treasurer Peggy Martin
 - Corresponding Secretary Bob Silva
 - Senior Representative Dick Grotton
 - Senior Representative George Morrill
 - Junior President Frank Blanchard
 - Sophomore President Ed Gorham
 - Sophomore Representative Pat Miele
 - Freshman President Jack Burner
 - Freshman Representative Chris Doten
 - Freshman Representative Garry Curtis

OWLS AND EAGLES

Each year at Maine Day six freshmen boys are selected to carry on the proud traditions of the Owls for the following year. They provide hospitality for the incoming freshmen at Orientation, put on the gala Christmas party for the entire student body, and exert campus leadership. Eddie Moses, Archie Giobbi, Bob Goode, John Supranovich, Frank Tordoff, and Bill Conley were Owls this year.

Both Owls and Eagles wear stars on their foreheads at official occasions. The Eagles, who are the feminine counterpart of the Owls, established a splendid record this year. Peggy Horton, Charlotte Adriance, Sue Butterworth, Peggy Martin, Mary Donahue, and Anita Nason devoted themselves to many worth-while projects during the school year of 1963-64.

. . . made it so confusing, but we voted.

UMP STUDENT PUBLICATIONS

UMPIRE - UMP CAMPUS UMPUS

Clover Willette, Paula Wing, and George Morrill of the UMP Campus discuss layout with Rick Souza of the Umpire.

Ken Benson and Margo Thorton prepare copy for the UMP Campus.

Pam Titcomb and Walt Abbott bring in the news for the weekly issues of the UMPus.

Ward Graffam, Editor-in-Chief of all UMP Student Publications, confers with Mr. Rogers, the Faculty Advisor.

Frank Tordoff, Greg Smith, and Charles Keniston work on advertising contracts.

Richard Grotton pulls the trigger.

Judy DeRocher and Rick Souza discuss yearbook layout with Mr. Rogers, Faculty Advisor.

Nancy Libby, the Editor-in-Chief of the UMPus, is always cheerful.

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS CLUB

Mr. Pease is shown with Gilles Doucet, the secretary of the University of Montreal IRC.

The officers of the International Relations Club are Jim Athanus, President; Judy Mann, Secretary; and Miyoko Uemeno, Treasurer.

IRC At Montreal

by James Athanus

The purpose of the International Relations Club is to promote an understanding of world problems and a facility in correlating them meaningfully. Of course, such skills can not entirely be cultivated in an intuitive vacuum, as the ensuing results are liable to be quite provincial.

This was one of the real motivations for the Congress that was held in Montreal. The International Relations Club of the University of Montreal extended an invitation to all such clubs in eastern Canada and New England. The purpose of the conference was to allow students to discuss world problems under qualified direction from members of the Canadian foreign service who specialized in the fields being discussed. There were panel discussions on Asia, Africa, Latin America, and U.S.-Canadian relations.

UMP's Jim Athanus signs the City of Montreal's guest book, while the Mayor of Montreal looks on.

Prof. Pease chats with M. Gilles Lalande, the featured speaker on Japan and China at the University of Montreal conference.

Seated, Left to Right: Mr. VanAmburg, Faculty Advisor, E. Moses, D. Taton, P. Monighetti, S. Rainsford, Mr. Klug, Kiwanis Advisor. First Row: J. Brown, G. Watson, D. Lowell, J. Beaudoin, G. SPANISH CLUB

BUSINESSMEN'S FRATERNITY

UMP students majoring in Business Administration have an excellent opportunity to discuss developments in modern business with leaders in each field. Here Joseph Scully, Operations Vice-President of the Casco Bank and Trust Company; Dick Allen, the President of our UMP Businessmen's Fraternity; Edward Kerr, the State of Maine Representative for Burroughs Corporation; and Professor Harry Waters, the club advisor, confer before a meeting.

At a meeting of the UMP Businessmen's Fraternity, Mr. Edward Kerr, the State of Maine Representative for the Burroughs Corporation, demonstrates the use of card-punch processing for the club members.

A W S

Plans for UMP's Winter Carnival are being completed by the girls of AWS, who are determined to win distinction for a prize-winning snow sculpture, a solid victory over the faculty in the fun-games of the year, and a costume party that will bring the spirit of the "Roaring 20's" to UMP.

AWS is the popular name for Associated Women Students, a chartered service organization at the Portland campus of the University of Maine.

This organization opens its door to all female students of the university, although attendance has indicated that the freshmen co-eds have a tremendous amount of school spirit in comparison to the upper-class female students.

Despite the poor attendance, the active members have sparked in their enthusiasm to participate as members of AWS. Many and varied activities give evidence of their unfailing support.

The first activity of the year was a paper and bottle drive. From the proceeds, we were able to begin to build up our treasury. As the winter progressed we held our first social event of the year in conjunction with Circle K. This UMP event, a Hootenanny, was by far one of the highlights of the first semester as well as being the best attended school function.

At Thanksgiving season we sponsored a dance called the "Hobble Gobble." At this time, we distributed a Thanksgiving basket to a needy family of the community. Our most recent contribution to UMP was the oil portrait of our late President, John Fitzgerald Kennedy, which now hangs in the main lobby of Payson Smith Hall.

The first of our many events planned for the Spring semester will be our contribution to Winter Carnival.

At the end of this school year, we shall have a banquet to honor our faculty advisor, Mrs. Sanborn, and to elect a new president for the coming year.

Continuing Education Division 1200 Evening and Saturday Students

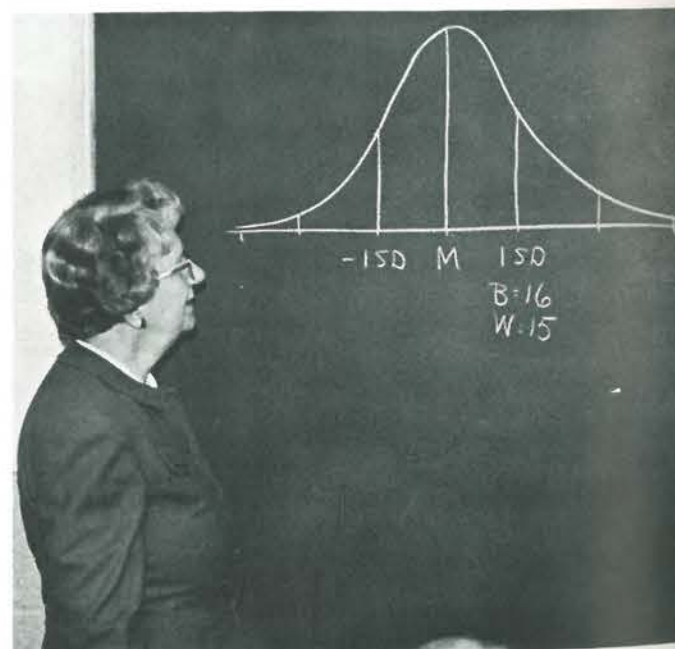

Students in the Continuing Education Division represent a broad spectrum of businessmen, teachers, upperclassmen from the day division, and other adults, all united in a common love for learning.

Teachers work toward graduate degrees.

Portland's famous authority on testing and mental measurements, Dr. Margaret Allen, regularly teaches CED courses.

◀ Wayne McGarvey, like nearly all other seniors, is enrolled in both evening and day courses.

The UMP library is crowded every evening with students representing both the daytime Undergraduate Division and the evening Continuing Education Division. Education is a never-ending process.

Miss Catharine Beatley brings the benefits of her Radcliffe education to a doctor from Argentina who needs to perfect his English.

AND SO, FAREWELL!

It's late at night. The month is March, though the snow still remains, piled deep on either side of the slumbering street.

One lone student stands shivering on the terrace, waiting for transportation home.

Darkened, too, is the UMPIRE office, for the last page of the dummy has been completed, just in time for the March deadline, which assures delivery by the 15th of May.

Months of planning and picture taking, fun and frustration are over — until another year.

To you, the readers, we, the staff of the 1964 UMPIRE, bequeath this book. As you scan its pages — have fun!
