Mr. John Herbert Keenan

For twenty years Mr. Keenan has been identified with the development of our program in business administration, first at PJC, and then, after the merger with the University of Maine, at UMP. His sincere interest in every student and his skill in explaining the fundamentals of economics and accounting have done much in assuring the success of those who have studied in the business program.

Born on May 6, 1899, in Virginia, Maine, a hamlet which is now part of the township of Rumford, Mr. Keenan started his formal education in a one-room school in Wales, Maine. His father was woods superintendent of the Brown Company, directing the timber operations of that company, first in one area and then in another throughout northern New England. From the age of 15, John Keenan spent his school vacations working with the lumbermen, usually assisting one of the surveyors.

Mr. Keenan prepared for college at St. Michael's Academy, Winooski, Vermont, but World War I called him into the service for one year after he received his academy diploma. After his return to civilian life he went on to Dartmouth, where he earned his A.B. degree in 1923.

Another year of work in tall timber intervened before Mr. Keenan returned to Dartmouth, this time in the graduate program of the Tuck School of Business, from which he received the degree of Master of Commercial Science in 1925.

Mr. Keenan then returned to the Brown Company to supervise a group of lumbering operations. The division which he headed ran lumber drives down the Androscoggin from Weld Pond in Dixfield to the mills at Rumford.

When the great depression came and lumbering operations were curtailed, Mr. Keenan was invited to help develop the CCC program in northern New Hampshire. He superintended CCC camps in Newport and Danbury, New Hampshire, until 1936, when he was appointed manager of the Forest Products Cooperative, which marketed pulp and lumber products for its members in northern New Hampshire and Vermont.

Mr. Keenan's work with the CCC program had, however, stimulated his interest in the education of young men. After two years of development of the Forest Products Cooperative, he decided to prepare himself for college-level teaching. He enrolled for graduate work at Columbia, specializing in economics and business administration, was awarded his M.A. there in 1938, and returned to the CCC program as an educational advisor in New Hampshire until the program was terminated by World War II.

The Second World War found Mr. Keenan adapting his knowledge of the handling of lumber to the handling of steel. Starting as a checker at the Broadway Plate Yard of the South Portland Shipbuilding Corporation, Mr. Keenan rapidly won promotion until he was in charge of the truck transportation which moved sufficient steel into the fabrication areas so that a ship could be launched every five days during the height of the operation.

V-J Day brought about the closing of the shipyard and the reopening of Portland Junior College. As soon as the Associate of Arts in Business Administration program was organized in the latter part of 1946, Mr. Keenan was chosen to teach economics and other business courses. His broad academic background, his wealth of experience in administration, and his understanding of young men, gained through his work with CCC trainees, all contributed to his success at PJC.

After the University of Maine took over PJC in 1957, Mr. Keenan was made Assistant Professor of Economics. Mr. Keenan has now reached the age of retirement, but he will be remembered with affection and gratitude for years to come by all of the hundreds of students who have been privileged to benefit by his teaching.

A D M I N I S T R A T I O N

Dr. Lloyd Hartman Elliott, who became President of the University of Maine in 1958, has played the leading role in the development of the Portland Campus. Under Dr. Elliott's presidency Payson Smith Hall has been opened, a four-year curriculum in business administration has been established, the graduate School of Law has become a part of the University of Maine, the Continuing Education Division has been organized, the faculty and library facilities have been greatly expanded, and another new building has been authorized to meet the needs of the 1,000 full-time students expected in the Undergraduate Division on the Portland Campus.

Dr. Henry Austin Peck, Vice-President for Academic Affairs of the University of Maine, is currently devoting substantial time and effort to insure that our new building will be ready for the surge of students expected in September 1965. Dr. Peck has worked closely with the UMP faculty, the architects, and other members of the University administration to meet the needs for a vastly expanded library, numerous faculty offices, seminar rooms, large classrooms, and a lecture hall of more than double the size of the third-floor lecture hall in the Payson Smith building.

Dean Edward S. Godfrey has developed a graduate School of Law which meets every professional accrediting standard. Located at 68 High Street, Portland, the School of Law possesses a carefully chosen professional faculty and a superb library of more than 30,000 volumes.

The Director of Undergraduate Studies, Mr. William L. Whiting, is the administrative head of the full-time undergraduate student body at the Portland Campus. Mr. Whiting sees that the quality of undergraduate education meets every standard set by Orono and that colleg life at UMP provides the full values of a university education.

Ever growing and developing, the University this year welcomed its largest Freshman class to the Portland Campus. Two hundred forty Freshmen were oriented to the life here on Friday, September 11, with hearty welcomes from Vice-President Peck, Dean Whiting, Student Council President Bob Silva, various faculty members, and the Owls and the Eagles.

Friday night, the Freshmen and their parents met the administration, from Portland and Orono.

Saturday, the students registered for the new year. That night, Orientation Week End came to a successful close with the "Ice Breaker Dance" sponsored by the Owls and the Eagles. The '64-'65 year was off to a rousing start.

The Ice Breaker Dance

A gala Ice Breaker Dance, held Saturday evening, September 12, marked the end of the Orientation Weekend and started the year's social calendar. The dance, sponsored by the Owls and the Eagles, provided lots of fun, with the Citations playing, and a chance for the Freshmen to get acquainted with the upperclassmen before the academic year started, the following Monday.

Indigestion? No, the monkey.

Ma, she's making eyes at me!

Mr. Sottery's educational toys.

An old Maine grad has his say.

Kangaroo Court, held the last few days of the Orientation Week, is for the benefit of Freshmen who, in the eyes of upperclassmen, have not met with the standards set by the University, such as knowing the Stein Song.

At the Court, where the Owls and the Eagles sit in judgment, the punishments fit the crime. Forgetful freshmen are sentenced to sing the Stein Song in the cafe, or wear a large name sign if their smaller identification label is forgotten or lost.

All together now . . .

The Owls and the Eagles are members of the Sophomore Honorary Society. When in official function, the Eagles wear a star on their foreheads, and the Owls wear a black dot on theirs. These signs symbolize the qualities expected of the members of the society. The major function of the Owls and Eagles is to help the incoming Freshmen. They sponsor several student activities, such as the Orientation Program, the Christmas Party, and several dances.

Among other things . . .

They entertain . . .

AWS

The Associated Women Students, more commonly known as the AWS, is a service organization open to all women students at the University of Maine at Portland.

AWS is ready to help all organizations with their activities. We also have several successful endeavors of our own. To open this year, we had a food sale outside the cafeteria at night which the CED students seemed to enjoy. Our next event was the Halloween Dance, followed closely by our annual Thanksgiving Dance which is one of the most popular dances of the year. At Christmas time, members donated food for a Christmas to go to some needy family. As a Christmas present to the school, AWS presented a check for $250 to be used for a new trophy case.

Second semester, AWS helped to decorate the gym at King Junior High School for the big Winter Carnival semi-formal. We also decorated our gym for the Friday night dance where we came up with the unforgettable Stein Tap Room. In March, a "grub dance" was planned to chase away those spring fever blues. The last events of the year, the annual tea for incoming freshman girls and the annual banquet are yet to come, and we hope they are as successful as those in preceding years. — Sue Rosen

Circle K

Circle K is a service organization for college men operating on the campus and is similar to Kiwanis. It is a leadership and character building group which serves the campus and the community. It is unique as it offers many opportunities to college men to serve and learn at the same time, as well as to meet many people in business and the professions.

One of our projects for UMP students is our Dean Bonney Loan Fund of $200. We also have a Blood Bank available to any student or faculty member or their relatives. Circle K members conducted the annual United Fund Drive here at school, have assisted the Portland Kiwanis Club on various occasions, have donated to the Bruce Roberts' Fund, but one of the biggest service projects was to the Pineland Hospital where we helped with a swimming program for retarded children.

In addition to the service projects, Circle K sponsored several dances, the biggest event being the Hootenanny when we co-operated with the AWS. — Lee Sapiro.

Gary Curtis and Bill Brownell check equipment at the Downeast Recording Library for the Blind.

As in Kiwanis, the Circle K motto is "We Build" a building for justice, liberty, democracy, and a better world in which to live. The Circle K Club is a driving force, developing the leadership for tomorrow while it creates a better college or university community today.

Y G O P

YGOP members Ed Knowles, Deanne Slye, Ruth Dodge and Dwight Pendexter talk with Mr. Richard Bakke.

Because of the elections of 1964, both the YGOP and the YDEMS had quite a year.

When Mr. Goldwater came to Portland last fall, the YGOP, along with a great number of Portlanders, met him at the airport and heard him speak. Although their campaign for their candidate was to no avail, the YGOP campaigned vigorously and held their own against the YDEMS in the debate they held in the UMP Lecture hall.

Mr. Goldwater speaks at Portland Municipal Airport.

Y D E M S

YDEM Frank Blanchard speaks to the YDEMS at their organizational meeting.

Even after a long wait for President Johnson, the YDEMS were still enthusiastic about the President's speech in front of City Hall. Energetically campaigning against the YGOPS, the YDEMS heard various speakers, and debated against the YGOP before the UMP student body.

Business Club officers Secretary R. Maher, President G. Smith, Treasurer R. Allen, and Vice President M. Adams meet with Mr. Robert G. Nisbet, Advertising Director of the Portland Press Herald, Express, and Sunday Telegram.

Business Club

The Business Club of UMP is an organization established to serve the interests of the students in the School of Business Administration. Its membership consists mostly of business students but is open to any interested university student.

During the past year, the club has held biweekly meetings featuring such speakers as Mr. John M. Daigle, treasurer of the Casco Bank; Mr. Edward Kerr, state representative of the Burroughs Corporation; and other prominent businessmen of the state who have supplemented our classwork with their practical experiences.

Each year the Business Club sponsors a series of dances and a spaghetti supper for the benefit of the Club's loan fund which is available to any student. In May, a Career Day Program is presented by the Club. It helps the students determine their major by presenting the major fields in Business Administration.

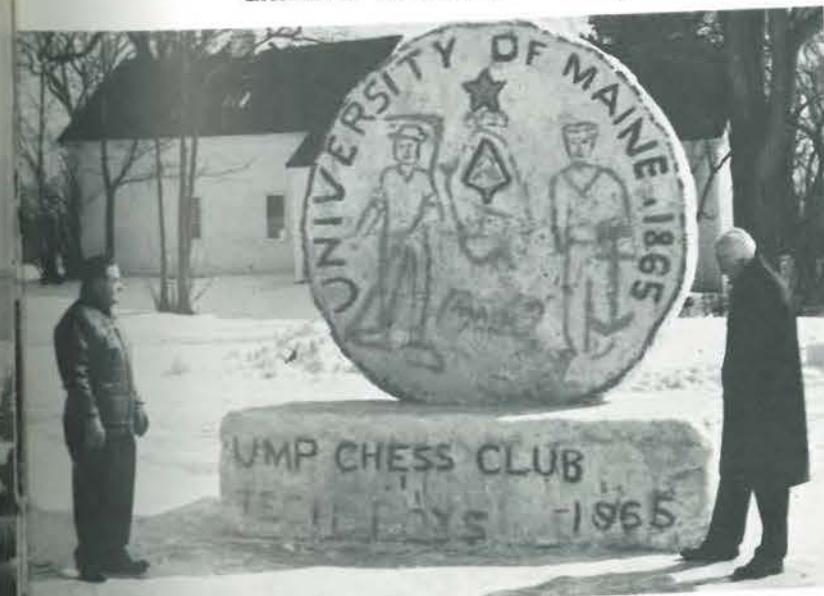

Business Club President Greg Smith talks to Club members.

Chess Club members George Cemodanovs and Randy Johnson play while Mr. Hopkinson advises them.

Chess Club

The Chess Club, meeting several times a month, played in a match against Deering High School which they lost, but planned to meet them again. The Chess Club, mostly "Tech" boys, is open to all chess players and to all those interested in learning how to play the game.

Mr. Hall and Mr. Van Amburg look over the Chess Club's winning snow sculpture.

Age is no barrier when there is food.

"How come there's ants at every picnic?"

Mountain Day, a tradition at UMP, offers students and faculty an opportunity to get better acquainted under the exhilarating and pleasant atmosphere at Bradbury Mountain.

The Student Council provided an abundance of hot dogs, hamburgers, and cider. The day was spent singing, playing soccer and football, climbing trees and, of course, the mountain. Of course, it wouldn't be Mountain Day without Bradbury Mountain.

Stein Week

"Who needs a pillow, any more?"

Stein Week

Stein Week began Thursday, December 17, with a successful spaghetti supper sponsored by the Owls and the Eagles, followed by a hootenanny with the Portlighters, and a rally with the Cheerleaders. Friday, the Owls and the Eagles gave the annual Christmas Party and gave appropriate gifts to faculty members. Faculty representatives, in turn, presented Maine Mugs to student leaders. Other events in the Week were the Stein Dance on Saturday, the Caroling Party on Sunday, and the Christmas Ball at the Eastland Hotel sponsored by the Freshman Class. The combined and individual efforts of many hard working people made this year's Stein Week a successful and memorable event.

Winter Carnival, this year not the rousing success it usually is, was, nevertheless, enjoyed by all. To the ski resorts' owners' dismay, the report given by the Farmers' Almanac was a false alarm. Due to the lack of snow on campus, snow had to be trucked in from Westbrook, thanks to White Brothers Trucking and Bradlees Shopping Center.

Friday night, February 19, a costume dance was held in the "Stein Tap Room." Saturday morning, the 20th, judging of the snow sculptures took place, the Chess Club entry being the winner. Saturday afternoon the gym at King Junior High School was decorated for the big Winter Carnival semi-formal. Judy Whitman was crowned the Winter Carnival Queen at the dance which was a big success.

Even though the team won only six games and lost ten, they broke eight team school records while ranking fifth in the nation's small colleges in fewest fouls committed per game, 14.9.

Some individual school records made were:

Most field goals attempted by Harold Moulton — 306

Most field goals made by Harold Moulton — 114

Most free throw attempts by Rick Bowie — 112

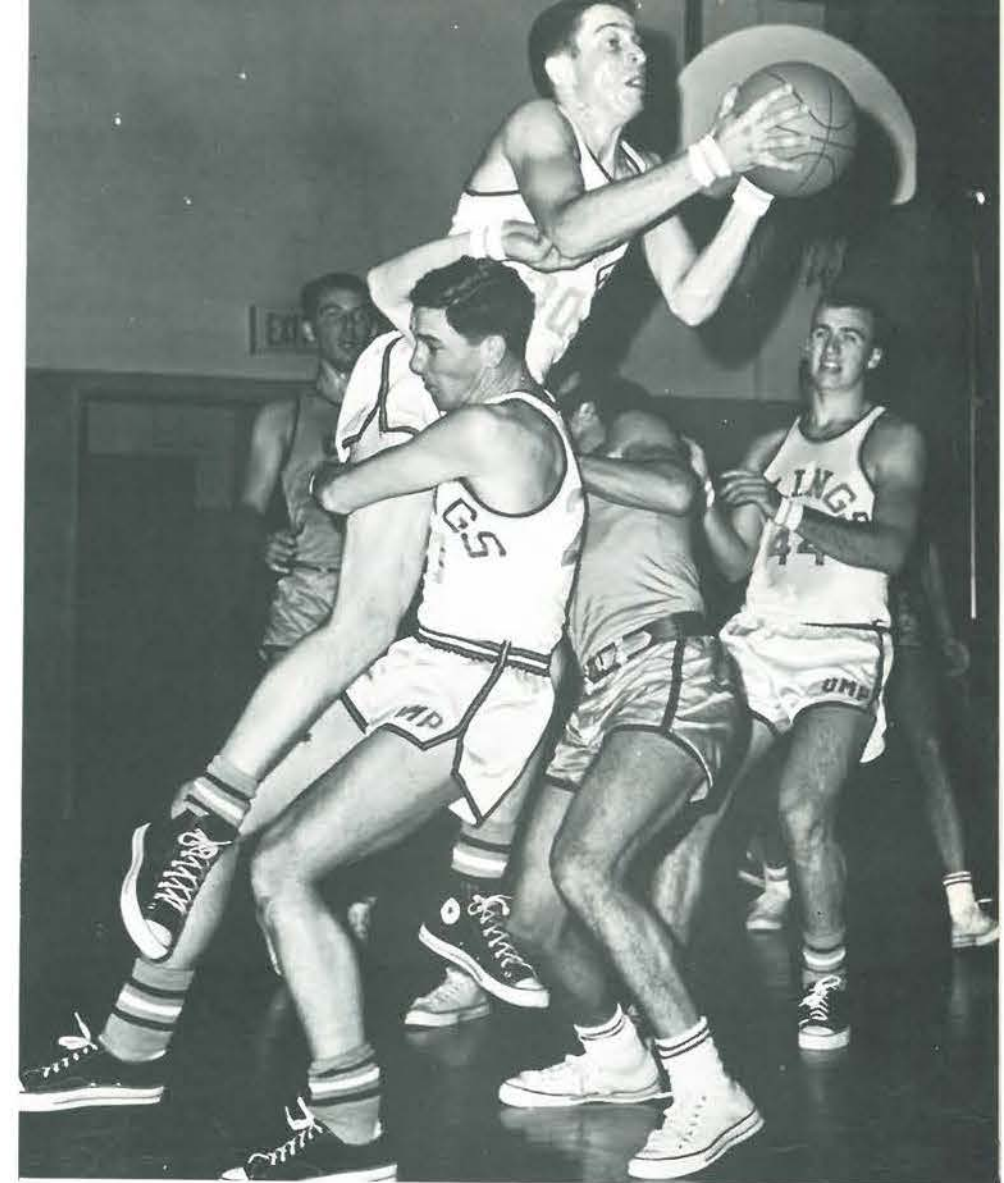

Most free throws made by Rick Bowie — 80

Top rebounder was Bob Francoeur with 232 — a new record

Most assists were made by Dick Emerson — 48 — a new record.

Our Centennial Celebration, held on February 26, 1965, marked the 100th birthday of the University of Maine, although the Portland branch is a mere eight years old.

Old Falmouth's earliest settlers turned back the bloodiest Indian attack on their new homes on the slope leading to where the mansion now stands. The Deerings who built the mansion in 1804 were a breed of seafarers, merchants and gentlemen of wealth and good taste. The little white house, our oldest building, was constructed prior to 1800. The present gym was built in 1804. In the War of 1812, the oldest part of the mansion was used as a prison. In 1820, the site was considered for the state capitol.

Portland University Extension Courses were incorporated in 1933 and were popularly called the Portland Junior College. The University first bought part of the present campus in 1946. Naval Administration buildings from Great Diamond Island were purchased under the Lanham Act of 1947. The University of Maine took over Portland Junior College in August of 1957. Payson-Smith Building was opened in September of 1960. Portland University merged with the University of Maine in September of 1961.

To Bring

Pride

in the Past . . .

The UMPIRE is quite unlike our other student publications, the UMP Campus, the UMPus, and UMP Profiles, for our yearbook is designed to be of increasing value in future years. As you look through these pages now, we believe that the pictures will bring back pleasant memories. As you leaf through this book ten years or twenty years later, we hope this record of college life at UMP will bring back a strong sense of "Pride in the Past" — and also a "Faith in the Future."

We have made improvements over the books of past years, adding many pages, adopting a more modern page size so that the UMPIRE will fit more easily into your bookcase, arranging the faculty pictures by department, and improving the coverage of special events, such as Orientation Weekend, Mountain Day, Stein Week, and the Winter Carnival. We have also arranged the advertising section so that almost every ad adjoins an interesting picture illustrating life at UMP in 1964-65.

This yearbook would not have been possible without the support of our advertisers and other loyal friends of UMP. As editor of the UMPIRE, I wish to thank our advertisers and the CED office for generous support. I also want to thank the photographers of the Portland Press Herald, Evening Express, and Sunday Telegram for glossies of their best news shots of UMP activities.

Many of our pictures were photographed by John James, who came to our campus time after time to take special pictures for use in the UMPIRE. Other pictures were contributed by James Quinn, Wayne Daniels, and Mr. Rogers.

Darkroom work and enlarging of many pictures were done by Inness Photo Service at a very modest price. Expert assistance in page layout and special effects were provided by Walden McFarland of Portland Lithograph Company, whose craftsmanship enabled us to produce this very handsome book.

Most of all, I wish to express my thanks to the UMPIRE staff. Special thanks go to Jim Quinn, who did much of the layout work, John Burrell and Dave Hawkes, who solicited the advertising and worked out the financial problems, and Frank Tordoff, who advised, solved endless problems, and made us laugh when we were about ready to climb the wall. Finally, I wish to thank our advisor, Mr. Alvin D. Rogers, who worked closely with our staff and with Mr. Walden McFarland of the Portland Lithograph Company in providing technical advice and suggestions.
