
Northern Lambda Nord

Dick Harrison

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcommons.usm.maine.edu/nln_communique

Part of the American Studies Commons, and the Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, and Transgender Studies Commons

Recommended Citation
https://digitalcommons.usm.maine.edu/nln_communique/79

This Book is brought to you for free and open access by the Periodicals at USM Digital Commons. It has been accepted for inclusion in Northern Lambda Nord Communique by an authorized administrator of USM Digital Commons. For more information, please contact jessica.c.hovey@maine.edu.
Has NLN Run Its Course?

by Donald Weatherford, Director

Well, we are standing at a fork in the road and all I can do is sit here and scratch my head in a quizzical way. We, being NLN, that is. There is talk going on that I think needs to be brought to your attention and hopefully we can get a little feedback from you as to what direction we should take.

At the last meeting of your steering committee, I asked a question, Has Northern Lambda Nord run it’s course? The conversation that ensued was, to say the least, interesting. For an hour many theories were placed upon the table as to what got Lambda perplexed all of us. Somewhere along the way, the people have lost interest and feel there is no need for this organization? People are moving away, thus membership is down about 20%. Participation in the social activities has been down to ten or twelve people, hence the reason for the decrease in doing big events.

I am lost as to what to think. So I am asking you, What shall we do? Should NLN call it quits? This organization was created by you, for you. Where do we go from here? I am asking for your feedback.

A few things to consider. If we remain a viable organization, we need the people’s participation. This is your organization. If you think that NLN has run its course, let us know via mail, phone, etc. As it stands right now, your steering committee has decided to ride the plateau. Sort of a wait-and-see attitude. Let us know what you think.

Well, that certainly was a downer, but I do hope that you all are enjoying this great summer that we are having. Why the other day I thought I was back in the South. I mean the heat index was in the ’90s! May you continue to enjoy this beautiful weather and have a safe summer. Until we meet again, take care.

Donald

From the Director’s Pen

This organization was created because there was a need. Is the need gone? Has NLN lost contact with the ones that it was designed to serve or is it simply that the people have lost interest and feel there is no need for this organization? People are moving away, thus membership is down about 20%. Participation in the social activities has been down to ten or twelve people, hence the reason for the decrease in doing big events.

I am lost as to what to think. So I am asking you, What shall we do? Should NLN call it quits? This organization was created by you, for you. Where do we go from here? I am asking for your feedback.

A few things to consider. If we remain a viable organization, we need the people’s participation. This is your organization. If you think that NLN has run its course, let us know via mail, phone, etc. As it stands right now, your steering committee has decided to ride the plateau. Sort of a wait-and-see attitude. Let us know what you think.

Well, that certainly was a downer, but I do hope that you all are enjoying this great summer that we are having. Why the other day I thought I was back in the South. I mean the heat index was in the ’90s! May you continue to enjoy this beautiful weather and have a safe summer. Until we meet again, take care.

Donald

Has NLN Run Its Course?

by Donald Weatherford, Director

Well, we are standing at a fork in the road and all I can do is sit here and scratch my head in a quizzical way. We, being NLN, that is. There is talk going on that I think needs to be brought to your attention and hopefully we can get a little feedback from you as to what direction we should take.

At the last meeting of your steering committee, I asked a question, Has Northern Lambda Nord run it’s course? The conversation that ensued was, to say the least, interesting. For an hour many theories were placed upon the table as to what got Lambda perplexed all of us. Somewhere along the way, the people have lost interest and feel there is no need for this organization? People are moving away, thus membership is down about 20%. Participation in the social activities has been down to ten or twelve people, hence the reason for the decrease in doing big events.

I am lost as to what to think. So I am asking you, What shall we do? Should NLN call it quits? This organization was created by you, for you. Where do we go from here? I am asking for your feedback.

A few things to consider. If we remain a viable organization, we need the people’s participation. This is your organization. If you think that NLN has run its course, let us know via mail, phone, etc. As it stands right now, your steering committee has decided to ride the plateau. Sort of a wait-and-see attitude. Let us know what you think.

Well, that certainly was a downer, but I do hope that you all are enjoying this great summer that we are having. Why the other day I thought I was back in the South. I mean the heat index was in the ’90s! May you continue to enjoy this beautiful weather and have a safe summer. Until we meet again, take care.

Donald

Has NLN Run Its Course?

by Donald Weatherford, Director

Well, we are standing at a fork in the road and all I can do is sit here and scratch my head in a quizzical way. We, being NLN, that is. There is talk going on that I think needs to be brought to your attention and hopefully we can get a little feedback from you as to what direction we should take.

At the last meeting of your steering committee, I asked a question, Has Northern Lambda Nord run it’s course? The conversation that ensued was, to say the least, interesting. For an hour many theories were placed upon the table as to what got Lambda perplexed all of us. Somewhere along the way, the people have lost interest and feel there is no need for this organization? People are moving away, thus membership is down about 20%. Participation in the social activities has been down to ten or twelve people, hence the reason for the decrease in doing big events.

I am lost as to what to think. So I am asking you, What shall we do? Should NLN call it quits? This organization was created by you, for you. Where do we go from here? I am asking for your feedback.

A few things to consider. If we remain a viable organization, we need the people’s participation. This is your organization. If you think that NLN has run its course, let us know via mail, phone, etc. As it stands right now, your steering committee has decided to ride the plateau. Sort of a wait-and-see attitude. Let us know what you think.

Well, that certainly was a downer, but I do hope that you all are enjoying this great summer that we are having. Why the other day I thought I was back in the South. I mean the heat index was in the ’90s! May you continue to enjoy this beautiful weather and have a safe summer. Until we meet again, take care.

Donald

Has NLN Run Its Course?

by Donald Weatherford, Director

Well, we are standing at a fork in the road and all I can do is sit here and scratch my head in a quizzical way. We, being NLN, that is. There is talk going on that I think needs to be brought to your attention and hopefully we can get a little feedback from you as to what direction we should take.

At the last meeting of your steering committee, I asked a question, Has Northern Lambda Nord run it’s course? The conversation that ensued was, to say the least, interesting. For an hour many theories were placed upon the table as to what got Lambda perplexed all of us. Somewhere along the way, the people have lost interest and feel there is no need for this organization? People are moving away, thus membership is down about 20%. Participation in the social activities has been down to ten or twelve people, hence the reason for the decrease in doing big events.

I am lost as to what to think. So I am asking you, What shall we do? Should NLN call it quits? This organization was created by you, for you. Where do we go from here? I am asking for your feedback.

A few things to consider. If we remain a viable organization, we need the people’s participation. This is your organization. If you think that NLN has run its course, let us know via mail, phone, etc. As it stands right now, your steering committee has decided to ride the plateau. Sort of a wait-and-see attitude. Let us know what you think.

Well, that certainly was a downer, but I do hope that you all are enjoying this great summer that we are having. Why the other day I thought I was back in the South. I mean the heat index was in the ’90s! May you continue to enjoy this beautiful weather and have a safe summer. Until we meet again, take care.

Donald

Has NLN Run Its Course?

by Donald Weatherford, Director

Well, we are standing at a fork in the road and all I can do is sit here and scratch my head in a quizzical way. We, being NLN, that is. There is talk going on that I think needs to be brought to your attention and hopefully we can get a little feedback from you as to what direction we should take.

At the last meeting of your steering committee, I asked a question, Has Northern Lambda Nord run it’s course? The conversation that ensued was, to say the least, interesting. For an hour many theories were placed upon the table as to what got Lambda perplexed all of us. Somewhere along the way, the people have lost interest and feel there is no need for this organization? People are moving away, thus membership is down about 20%. Participation in the social activities has been down to ten or twelve people, hence the reason for the decrease in doing big events.

I am lost as to what to think. So I am asking you, What shall we do? Should NLN call it quits? This organization was created by you, for you. Where do we go from here? I am asking for your feedback.

A few things to consider. If we remain a viable organization, we need the people’s participation. This is your organization. If you think that NLN has run its course, let us know via mail, phone, etc. As it stands right now, your steering committee has decided to ride the plateau. Sort of a wait-and-see attitude. Let us know what you think.

Well, that certainly was a downer, but I do hope that you all are enjoying this great summer that we are having. Why the other day I thought I was back in the South. I mean the heat index was in the ’90s! May you continue to enjoy this beautiful weather and have a safe summer. Until we meet again, take care.

Donald